BIG FIGHT COMING ON PARCELS POST.

Postmaster General Meyer to Earnestly Urge General System in Chicago Speech Next Month.

ATTITUDE OF CONGRESS.

Express Companies Will Vigorously Oppose; Official to Favor Postal Savings Banks, Too.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Postmaster General Meyer will have an interested audience when he goes to Chicago the middle of next month to discuss parcels post and savings banks before a conference of postmasters, bankers, and business men now being arranged for by Postmaster Campbell.

The postmaster general is much in earnest not only for the establishment of postal savings banks but for parcels post as well. He believes the government can secure deposits of money and pay 2 per cent on them, loaning the money again to the national banks at an advance of from ½ to 1 per cent.

As to the parcels post, he is prepared to make a still more vigorous recommendation, because the objection to that is chiefly administrative rather than financial, and about the only competition the government would encounter would be that of express companies, which are not only soulless but friendly corporations at times. There is every likelihood that there may be legislation at the next session of congress for the establishment of parcels post. It would require no really new machinery in the postoffice department, and there is no doubt it would be immensely popular with the people.

Experimental Parcels Post.

This administration has few really administrative reforms in view on which to make an appeal for support. Rural free delivery was established under McKinley, and grew to be an immense success. There is a general desire now to have President Roosevelt's administration marked by a similar improvement in postal service, and a great many country congressmen, as well as those from cities, are in favor of passing a law at the present session providing for an experimental sort of a parcels post, to be followed later on by certain improvements which have already been sketched out by the postmaster general.

That there will be a fight in congress over this question goes without saying. The most bitter opposition will come, of course, from the express companies. They have a personal support on the floor of the senate in Mr. Platt of New York, for many years president of the United States Express company. The express companies are immensely powerful. They touch every important town in the United States, and have thousands upon thousands of employés, who are generally loyal to their employers. Besides that, express companies are closely affiliated with the railroads. Stock in these two branches of the transportation business is held indifferently by both interests. A railroad generally has some interest in the express company running over its lines, and vice versa. Business of transporting small parcels has been immensely profitable to everybody concerned. Express companies were put under the operation of the interstate commerce rate law, but the commission has been so crowded with other investigations that it has done little or nothing in the way of the reduction of freight, passenger, or express rates.

Means an Extraordinary Battle.

It is not likely any measure proposing to break down such a profitable business can be passed through congress without an extraordinary battle. The near approach of the presidential election is favorable to the reform in one way and opposed to it in another. Many members of congress hesitate to antagonize transportation interests by the adoption of parcels post. On the other hand, if it comes to a showdown, there are few members of the house who would like to put themselves on record against a scheme which seems to be so manifestly in the interest of the individual public.

The policy of congress this year will be to do as little as possible, so as to avoid having any new measures to defend in the presidential contest, but at the same time there is, as I have explained, a general desire to permit the Roosevelt administration to go before the people with some tangible reform.

If the express companies alone were to fight the parcels post they would probably lose. As it is, a great many rural congressmen are likely to be influenced by appeals of country storekeepers. These small merchants, doing business in general stores in villages throughout the country, have quite generally conceived the idea that if the parcels post system is adopted all their business will be taken away from them by the big mail order houses in the large cities.

This same line of argument was used by the same people and for a time successfully against the establishment of the rural free delivery service.

Rural free delivery service and interurban trolley lines have built up country merchants as nothing else ever did.

Big Aid to Country Storekeeper.

It is the belief of the postmaster general and postoffice officials generally that the parcels post will be even a greater boon to the country storekeeper than to his customers, because it will enable him to get small quantities of supplies to meet emergencies at a much less rate than he formerly was charged by the express companies. In the nature of things the country storekeeper cannot carry a large stock because he has such a variety in his store. A parcels post system which would enable him within a day or two to renew his stock of needles, thread, soap, candy, and dozens of other small commodities at a nominal rate for transportation charges would add immensely to the value of his store and make it a good deal more attractive to the country customer.

When the plans of the postmaster general for a parcels post are fully consummated they will involve especially low rates for rural routes alone and a local rate for the large cities, but even without these concessions the idea of reducing the present merchandise rate from 16 cents to 12 cents a pound and increasing the limit of weight from four pounds to twelve pounds is so simple that it can easily be grasped by the average voter, and congress is therefore likely to take at least the first step in the direction of the general parcels post system.

Mystery in Fate of Miss Jennie L. Stevens, Found Lifeless in Cofferdam in the River.

MAN SOUGHT AND APPEARS

Friend of Mrs. Hollister May Have Fallen Into Muddy Depth Fleeing Imaginary Foe.

A mysterious river tragedy is involved in the death of Miss Jennie L. Stevens, for seventeen years organist of Wesley Methodist Episcopal church, whose life ended on the banks of the north branch of the Chicago river, near Halsted street, Wednesday night. She had lived at 3921 Langley avenue.

The bruised body of Miss Stevens, who was 40 years old, was found in the muck of a cofferdam in the river early yesterday morning. The manner in which it was found practically precludes the possibility of the theory first advanced—that the woman was a suicide. Whether Miss Stevens was murdered or lost her life while fleeing from a real or imaginary enemy, the police can only conjecture.

Affected by Hollister Murder.

A significant as well as a pathetic feature of the case is that Miss Stevens had been driven to the verge of insanity through brooding over the murder of Mrs. Bessie Hollister, one of her closest friends and a fellow member of the choir of Wesley church.

Her mind in the last few weeks had reached such a state that her one idea was that she was to be attacked as was Mrs. Hollister. Her friends now believe that if she was not murdered she fell into the cofferdam while trying to escape some one—perhaps imaginary—who she believed intended to attack her.

Placed on Car by Bartender.

One clew, that a strange man had offered to direct Miss Stevens to a car for the south side, and that he might have been responsible for her fate, was cleared late at night when Henry Keim, a bartender, voluntarily went to the police and told them he was the mysterious man. He said he walked with her south in Halsted street to Washington street and put her on a car. She told him to telephone her mother and notify her she was on the way home. The appearance of Keim only deepened the mystery. He was not held.

The police do not think she could have had suicide in view when she gave Keim the message to her mother, which, however, was not delivered.

Bridge Constructor Finds Body.

It was shortly after 6 o'clock in the morning when several workmen arrived at the temporary structure about which a new bridge is being built across the river at Halsted street and discovered Miss Stevens' body. Edward Healy, a bridge constructor, first saw the body.

With several companions Healy climbed over separating pilings and stringers to the temporary dam. There, in the thick muck and slime, lying face downward upon the surface, was the woman's body. There was no water in the box-like dam, its muddy bottom had not been disturbed by the slightest struggle, and the huddled manner in which the body was lying indicated, at first glance, that the body had been thrown there. The hands were lying loosely across the woman's back and her feet were outstretched.

Nearly fifty feet away and with much timber and débris between were found Miss Stevens' pocketbook and back comb. In the pocketbook there was 3 cents. The discovery of her watch in a fold of her garments showed that robbery was not the motive of the attack, if there was one.

The fact that there was not the slightest disturbance of the half hardened contents of the dam in which her body was found is taken as evidence that the woman was unconscious when she fell or was thrown into the death trap.

Story Told by Watchman.

A few minutes after the discovery of the body O. J. Hogobaum, a watchman employed by the Crescent Coal company at the place where Miss Stevens met her death, identified it as that of a woman who had inquired a direction of him about 10 o'clock the night before.

The watchman said he was standing near the river when the woman, whom he now recognized as Miss Stevens, walked nervously up to him and asked where to get a car to Thirty-ninth and Halsted streets. Hogobaum said he was about to reply when another man approached and interrupted him.

"Why, I just told you how to get to Thirty-ninth and Halsted streets," the man is quoted as saying, disregarding the watchman.

Then, according to Hogobaum, he took hold of Miss Stevens' arm, saying he would show her how to go to a car south in Halsted street. That was the last the watchman saw of the woman.

The man whom Hogobaum referred to undoubtedly is Keim, the bartender.

Identified by Choirmaster.

A short time later the police succeeded in identifying the body as that of Miss Stevens. The mother of the woman had reported her disappearance to the police Wednesday night, and an examination of the description in the police records caused a visit to the Stevens home.

By a strange coincidence it fell to the lot of George Congdon, choirmaster at the Wesley Methodist church, to identify the body of Miss Stevens, just as he identified the body of her friend, Mrs. Hollister, nearly two years ago. Mrs. Hollister's body was found near the Congdon residence, 348 Belden avenue.

"Yes, that is Jennie," said Mr. Congdon. "It looks as if she had met the fate that she feared so much."

Through the choir leader it was learned that Miss Stevens was compelled to give up her work as organist at the church last Easter morning because of the condition of her nerves, brought on by meditating upon the murder of Mrs. Hollister.

Slight Bruises on the Body.

Shortly after the identification Coroner's Physician Rinehart conducted a post-mortem examination of the body at the undertaking rooms, 694 Noble street. This examination disclosed two distinct cuts on the skull, a wound on the left temple, another wound upon the nose, a cut on the chin, and severe bruises upon the legs. The woman had not been mistreated, however, as was feared at first.

The wounds, according to the physician,

THE PRESIDENT AND THE "THIRD TERM TALK."

OCEAN CROWN TO LUSITANIA

Big Turbiner In; Four Day Boat, with Every Record Smashed.

THRILLING DASH AT END.

Spurt from Nantucket to Sandy Hook Light Makes Mariners Gasp.

New York, Oct. 11, 2 a. m.—[Special.]—The turbine steamship Lusitania is queen of the seas. It finished its second run to this port at 1:17 o'clock this morning and anchored near the Sandy Hook lightship, waiting until sunrise before entering the harbor through the Ambrose channel.

The Lusitania made the voyage from Daunt's rock across the Atlantic in four days nineteen hours forty minutes, clipping nearly six hours off the time for its first trip. The Lusitania is the first four day boat to cross from land to land and now holds all the records of the western ocean.

Shortly before 1 o'clock, at 12:54, to be exact, the marine observer stationed at Sandy Hook first made out the masthead lights of the steamer. The Lusitania was traveling fast. All lights were shining on board, and it was evident that interest in the passage was great among the passengers and they were staying up to learn exactly by how much the record had been beaten.

The pilot who will bring the record breaker up the Ambrose channel went aboard at 1:30 a. m., and at 2:05 a. m. the Lusitania dropped anchor outside the bar.

Every Ocean Record Smashed.

The Lusitania left Daunt's Rock at 10 o'clock last Sunday morning, or 5:37 a. m. New York time. If it traveled over the same course it has averaged well over twenty-four knots all the way across, an unprecedented feat in ocean travel.

The Lusitania made a run of 608 miles one day and 617 the next, and averaged for the best day's run 24.76 knots. These two runs wipe out the record held by the Deutschland of 601 miles and an average of 24.19 knots. For the entire voyage the Lusitania has settled the question of supremacy that has troubled the supporters of the Deutschland and Kaiser Wilhelm II. The Deutschland ran from New York to Plymouth in 5 days 7 hours and 38 minutes, averaging 23.51 knots, but the Kaiser Wilhelm II. on a voyage to Cherbourg averaged, it is said, 23.58 knots.

The last day's run of the Lusitania apparently was the fastest of the trip of the big turbiner.

Majestic Picture in Action.

The Lusitania was 331 miles east of Sandy Hook at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and passed the Nantucket lightship.

It was daylight and the wireless was not needed. A string of flags was run up on the steamer which the men on the lightship read, "All well. Will reach the bar at 1:15."

The steamer was so close to the grim old lightship that passengers could be seen crowding against the rails, and as the steam whistle on the lightship sounded a salute handkerchiefs were waved and the big siren on the Lusitania sounded three screeches in salute. A shower of spray was spurting high up its outwater, smoke was rolling out of all four funnels and blackening the sky far down to leeward, while its wake stretched miles astern.

The sea was smooth, the weather clear, and the wind light from the eastward, but, although the breeze was astern, the Lusitania left a trail of smoke as if it were speeding against a hurricane. It was sunset as the Lusitania passed, and at 6 o'clock the lights in its after cabin disappeared into the darkness.

Still keeping up the terrific pace, the big turbiner passed Fire island at seven minutes after midnight and never slackened speed till the trip was ended.

Honors of First Record.

With the Lusitania's trip the Cunard line and England capture from Germany the eagerly sought record for possessing the fleetest ship on the Atlantic. The Hamburg-American liner Deutschland has held the record for a number of years. Steamship men also claim that the achievement of the Lusitania proves the superiority of turbine engines over the reciprocating type. Reports from the ship state that the trip has been a pleasant one and the ship has shown little vibration.

The average of the Lusitania's first trip, which ended at Sandy Hook on Sept. 13, was 23.01 knots an hour, or five days fifty-four minutes for the trip. The Lusitania's first trip gave it the record for the Queenstown course, formerly held by the Lucania of the same line, which made the voyage in 1894 in five days seven hours twenty-three minutes.

Crushed Under Car He Trys to "Flip" on Way Home—Hampered by Bundle of Books.

Just as Richard Smith's mother was thinking it was about time for him to arrive home from school yesterday afternoon his mangled form, attended by a throng of sorrowing schoolmates, was borne into their home at 8001 Mackinaw avenue. He died within half an hour.

In sight of his school friends, homeward bound from the Myra Bradwell school, the 11 year old boy had slipped as he was trying to "flip" a street car at Seventy-eighth street and Marquette avenue.

The school books which he held in one hand hampered him and he fell under the wheels.

PIGEONS CARRY NEWS OF GAME.

Baseball Bulletins Borne to Blue Island Every Half Inning by Homing Birds.

No lack of telegraph wires was allowed to deprive Blue Island of its baseball reports yesterday. Homing pigeons carried to the suburb news of the progress and result of the championship game.

Four cages containing forty of the birds were carried to the west side park by a Blue Island automobile party consisting of Mayor Gobet, City Clerk Homan, Ald. Rohrback, Robert Kreuger, and George England.

Two pigeons were liberated every half inning, and at the end of the game five raced away with the news of Chicago's victory.

He suffered a probable fracture of the right arm. His driver, Albert Riley, suffered bruises.

5,000 PRAY TO SAVE WOMEN

Ask Divine Aid to Rescue a Sister's Mind and Mother's Life.

SCENE IN DR. TORREY'S TENT.

Moody Workers Complain That Some Hobos Impose on Them.

Asking that one woman might be saved from insanity and another from death by a broken heart, 5,000 persons followed the Rev. R. A. Torrey in prayer last night. A striking scene was witnessed as all in the huge canvas inclosure at Chestnut and North Clark streets rose to their feet.

The prayers for divine intervention were sought in response to a written request pressed into Dr. Torrey's hand at the beginning of the night meeting.

The note, which was read before the prayers were asked for, follows:

"Dr. R. A. Torrey—Dear Sir: Please pray for a sister. She is at the point of losing her mind, as she thinks she cannot be saved. Please ask your praying brothers to pray for her. Her mother will die of a broken heart if she doesn't get saved. A SISTER."

"Converted" to Get a Bed.

It is found that there are too many hobo converts at the "big tent" to suit many of the spiritual workers. Most of the latter are young men students of the Moody Bible institute. The objectional feature is that in many instances the "conversions" are found to be only a means towards the end of successfully soliciting the price of a bed and breakfast.

Among those who went forward and stood up were two tramps. They admitted they were such, and told quite remarkable stories.

"We are troubled a great deal by a certain class of men who are not sincere in their conversions," said the head usher, who is a student at the Moody institute. "Every night there are several tramps who are profuse with repentance who are nothing more or less than confidence men. They have become so numerous that several of them have been investigated and followed. They haven't made good—in fact, quite the contrary.

From Mourners' Bench to Saloon.

"The other night one came forward here. He said he hadn't quite made up his mind, and further confided that he was as much in need of something to eat as he was of salvation. I gave him half a dollar, and observed that he soon left the tent. I followed him. He went directly over to the institute. When I got there I found him taking up a collection among the boys. I followed him after he left the institute and was indignant to find that our donations were dissipated in a nearby saloon."

One of the "hobo converts" last night was taken to the altar by A. L. Miller, a Moody institute student.

"The man had been drinking, but protested his faith so strongly I believe he was sincere," said Miller. The tramp carried a bundle under his arm and remained until after the meeting, when he mentioned to one of the workers that he was out of money. The worker took him to a Clark street hotel and paid for a night's lodging. The tramp's testimonial was interesting.

"I have taken my last drink. Tonight I take my stand with Christ," said the man of decidedly hobo type. "Yes, I am a tramp, but I intend to do better. I am out of work and out of money. Today a saloonkeeper gave me a job cleaning out his place and paid me by getting me drunk. I am sick of this business. I want to lead a better life."

BY I. E. (SY) SANBORN.

Chicago's twice champions licked those Tigers again yesterday and led them back to their Detroit lair last night as tame and docile as the pet tiger kitten which Bill Donovan took out to the west side park for a mascot. For there was a double knot that won't come out in the tail of the Tiger and the inscription on the tag which marked the second twist was 5 to 1.

Manager Jennings tried left handers against the frisky young bears yesterday, having heard they were inclined to shy off to the tall timbers on such occasions and found the report a canard. Chance's warriors pounded Siever off the slab in a hurry with a bunch of five hits in four innings. Still Jennings was not convinced and drafted Killian, sore arm and all, into the fray. Killian also pitches from the left side of his anatomy, but he met an equally hot reception.

With five runs to their credit in as many innings the Cubs seemed to be content and husbanded their strength against future need, for they still have two games to win and nail the silken pennant to their pine spire, and Reulbach always held the Tigers by their chain.

Reulbach's Brilliant Pitching.

Six hits were all the man eating, would-be Cub eating herd could get off Reulbach, who pitched a brilliant game before support which was as sterling as his work deserved. For four innings he pushed the enemy back from the plate with ease and certainty, only one scratch hit being made off him in that time. Twice in those rounds he disposed of the high touted sluggers, Crawford and Cobb, with ease, fanning the boy wonder on three pitched balls the first time he faced him.

By that time the Cubs had gained a safe lead of four by the cleanest kind of hard hitting off Siever and there was no further occasion for Reulbach to pitch his arm out of its socket. Evers (of Troy) was the new batting hero of the day, for he drove in the first run of the game and wound up with a record of two clean doubles and a single. Steinfeldt contributed two solid hits to the process of nailing down the game and every one, except Slagle, participated in the festivities. Even Reulbach, who usually hits a home run or nothing, cut loose with a single in the merry fourth, which sent home a run and made his own slab task that much easier.

Eleven Hits Off Tiger Sou'paws.

Eleven hits altogether were ripped off the hides of the two Tiger sou'paws, eight of them off Siever in the four innings he lasted. But the Cubs did not star in batting alone. Their fielding was fast, confident, and deadly sure. Twice when the Tigers were getting restless and threatened to bite a piece out of Reulbach, lightning double plays were pulled off. Both of them stopped swelling buds of runs and one of them was performed by Tinker without assistance, but with sensational trimmings.

That was when he leaped in the air half a dozen feet and pulled down a liner from O'Leary, which would have driven home two runs surely in the fifth inning. With that drive safely pinched in his skilled paw it was an easy task for Joe to hop to second base and complete a double play, which would have been an easy triple play if there had not been a man out already.

Steinfeldt came to Reulbach's rescue in the next round with a swift and sure double play, in which Evers was the pivot and that play put the brakes on a rally by the Tigers, which netted them three hits and their only run. With their teeth gritted in desperation, there is no telling what Jennings' Tiger kitties might have done if Steiny had faltered in that play.

Cub Outfielders Prevent Trouble.

Sheckard and Slagle took care of everything within reach and some things which did not seem to be within reach when they started for them. Evers, who made the only slip of the day, was Johnny on the spot in every critical stage, and his error was a low throw to Chance on a slow hit by Killian which he had to hurry to get in time.

Kling was a fearsome object to the enemy all day long, and not a man of them made even a bluff to take any liberties on the bases. He handled Reulbach's sharp, tricky curve with as much ease and elegance as if he were sitting in a Morris chair at home in the parlor counting his share of the winner's end of the coin.

Schmidt came back to receive for the Tigers and, with two left handed pitchers to hold the Cubs on their bases, he had a more enjoyable afternoon than on the opening day, as he had no throws to make to stop runaway Cubs. Altogether it was far and away the best game of the three played here, although less thrilling, and convinced the Cub rooters it is only a matter of what day they will cash their tickets.

Big Slump in Attendance.

The crowd was as much smaller than the opener as the game was better. Only a little over 13,000 fans paid to see it, but the decrease had a double cause, all hinging on Tuesday's tie game. That tie disarranged the schedule which the rooters had committed to memory so they could not forget it even in their sleep and by which they had made all their plans. In consequence many did not know yesterday's game was to be played here instead of in Detroit, and more could not get off for it even if they knew of it.

In addition, the Detroit delegation of fanatics was compelled to return home Wednesday night, as their excursion tickets ran out on that date. The railroads failed to allow for rain or tie in making their plans, and they were glad of it. They would have had a tough task handling both the returning Detroit delegation and the invading Cubs rooters last night, but by splitting them over two nights their rails stood up. The hole left by the Michigan contingent was a large one, and for the first time in the series it was not nesessary to stop selling seats, while the patches of clear space on the seats furnished relief to eyes which had gazed so constantly for the better part of two days on nothing but solidly banked rows of heads and hats, hats and heads—and white handkerchiefs.

No Place for Tiger Rooters.

The rooting was all one way, but there would have been small chance for Detroiters to enthuse, so thoroughly and everlasting did Reulbach and his pals keep the Tiger's tail twisted, making him eat humble pie and like it. They almost made him say he liked it.

Short, sharp, and clean cut was the victory in marked contrast to the sloppy, nervous work of the opening game, and the tedious dragging moments of the second when the stage picture moved more slowly that the turtle's trail. It required only a little over an hour and a half to clip the second straight paring of the Tiger claws, after which the manicuring parlor was closed, perhaps not to be reopened this season—if the Cubs should clean up the next two games in Detroit.

Both teams made quick work of the opening inning, three men on each side going out in a row. There was a joyous bark from the rooters when Reulbach put a strike over for Cobb, first up in the second inning. Sharper and gladder was the yelp that greeted the second "strike," and when the boy wonder missed the third ball pitched to him by a couple of feet there was a roar. Sheckard made a great catch of Rossman's fly and Coughlin was taken care of by Tinker.

John of Troy a Slugger.

Things began happening in the Cub half of the second. Steinfeldt, with a fresh cud between his teeth, pulled a scorcher past Coughlin along the left foul line for two bases and sneaked to third on Kling's sacrifice. That proved a crafty but unnecessary suicide, for Evers walked up to the plate, swung around, and ran right back again down the base line as fast as he could on a stinging double just inside the first base line. That rap scored Steiny and the first run. Schulte and Tinker was retired on grounders.

Once more in the third Reulbach retired the Tigers with ease, the third out being a great stab by himself of Siever's hot rap. The Cubs wasted one hit in their half when Sheckard hit a double into right after two were out. Chance's popup closed the round.

Schaefer got the first hit off Reulbach with one out in the fourth. It was a high bounder which Reulbach tried to spear with one hand over his head, diverting it out of Tinker's reach. But the Tiger got no further than second base before Crawford and Cobb were disposed of with remarkable ease, Cobb's effort being a tiny rap to the pitcher.

Siever's Painful Finish.

That round marked Siever's finish, and before it was over Jennings had Killian loosening up the sore joints of his left wing down by the clubhouse, for the Cubs certainly did line out that ball. Steinfeldt led in the fourth with a long fly which Davy Jones pinched. Kling sent a bounder whistling past Schaefer's ears so fast he hardly saw it until Cobb tossed it back to him from right. Evers followed with a ringer into right over Rossman's head and the other John was perched on third when the dust cleared.

Schulte, late of the hospital staff, waited patiently until "three and two" compelled Siever to put one over and then soaked it straight out into center for a single, scoring Kling. Evers tried to go to third on the hit but was cut off by Siever's throw and run to earth while Schulte meandered down to second. Tinker gave the ball an awful blow and it sailed high and far out, with Jones in full cry after it. Back, back, back went Davy, with the hit still soaring toward the crowd in deep left. With one last desperate lunge Jones reached the ball wtih his hands, but he could not hold it, and before it came back all that distance Tinker was on third and Schulte had scored the second run of the inning. Reulbach bumped a fly safely through right center on which Tinker trotted home, and Slagle popped out.

Tinker's Great Catch Stops Rally.

Those four runs cinched the game in every one's mind except Jennings', but the Tiger leader switched pitchers in the fifth, after his men threatened to get into the running. The first half of the middle inning brought the first difficulty for Reulbach. Rossman caromed a single off Tinker's shins and Coughlin worked the hurler for a pass before any one was out. Schmidt hit a crazy bounder toward right and Chance nabbed it, tossing the ball to Reulbach, who had to hustle to beat the Tiger to first. There were men at second and third with one out and what few Tiger rooters were left began to be heard from.

Their joy was shortlived. O'Leary responded to the situation with a hard liner straight over short field. Tinker gauged it to a fraction of a second and less than a fraction of an inch, for he sprang into the air and grabbed the dangerous missile with his gloved hand, its force causing him to topple over as he hit the ground again. Both Tiger runners were clawing up the dirt on the trail to the plate and it was as easy as chewing gum to double up Coughlin without assistance off second.

Killian on the Slab.

Killian appeared in the gunner's place for the Cub half, and retired Sheckard, but Chance showed his opinion of sou' paws in general, and Killian in particular, by smashing a double into right field. Steinfeldt seconded that opinion by driving a single into center field, on which the manager scored. Kling flied out, but Evers tore off his third successive safety, a double into right center, which hit the barrier in front of the crowd, and compelled Steinfeldt to stop on third on account of the ground rules. Schulte popped to Coughlin close to the plate.

That finished the Cub attack. In the other three innings in which they faced Killian Chance's men were content with one pass and no hits, Steinfeldt being the deadhead after two were out in the seventh.

Detroit's most determined rally came in the sixth. Killian himself led it, with a clean single to left. Jones was passed, and there were two on and none dead. Schaefer pulled a hot low grounder toward third, but Steinfeldt pounced on it and, despite an instant's juggling, shot the ball to Evers, who relayed it to Chance for a telling double play. Killian reached third, and scored the lone run when Crawford beat out a high slow bounder to Tinker near second. Cobb made his lone hit right there, but the rally faded away when Rossman popped a fly to Slagle in short center.

Tigers Bid, but Fail.

There was a bit of uneasiness in the seventh when a pass and Evers' low throw let Tigers reach first and second. But there were two out, and it was a simple matter for Tinker to corral Davy Jones' grounder and retire the side. The eighth was one, two, three for Detroit.

Slagle's miss of a hard running catch on Rossman's short fly to center gave Detroit one last slender chance in the ninth, but the Tigers were unable to respond, despite Manager, Jennings' undiminishing, undismayed rooting and grass pulling on the lines. Coughlin hit to Tinker, forcing Rossman at second. Schmidt popped a little fly to Evers and Sheckard gathered in O'Leary's fly, hardly waiting until he had the ball in his hands before scampering for the clubhouse with half the world's pennant nailed down tightly.

PRESIDENT COMISKEY IS ILL.

White Sox Baseball Magnate Collapses at His Home and Is Ordered to Take a Rest.

President Comiskey of the White Sox collapsed from nervous exhaustion while eating dinner at his home, 3952 Michigan avenue, last night, and will be under the doctor's care for several days. The strain of the pennant race and the excitement of the world's series told on the veteran, and he has been ordered to take a complete rest. He was obliged to forego the trip to Detroit, and Secretary Fredericks took charge of the

DETROIT AWAITS THE TEAMS

First Chance in Twenty Years to See World's Series Game.

BASEBALL PARK INADEQUATE

Expect 20,000 to Be Admitted, with Seats for Only 8,500.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—Detroit baseball enthusiasts are on edge tonight in anticipation of the fourth game here tomorrow in the world's series between Detroit and Chicago.

It is the first time in twenty years, since the old Detroit National league team, with the famous "big four" in its lineup, won the world's championship from St. Louis in 1887 that local baseball fans have had a championship team of their own to enthuse over.

The indications tonight are Bennett park will be jammed to its utmost capacity long before play is called at 2 o'clock. The gates of the park open at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and the selling of the general admission tickets begins at the same hour. Every reserved seat for both Friday's and Saturday's games was sold days ago, and thousands of would be purchasers were disappointed when the seats were exhausted before their wants could be supplied.

There are seats for 8,500 people in Bennett park, but it is expected there will be nearly 20,000 jammed into the inclosure. Standing bleachers, such as are used frequently at football games, have been erected to accommodate 5,000 people in the outfields, and Secretary Navin tonight estimated between 4,000 and 6,000 more could stand behind the ropes in deep center field.

Since the last American league game here the park has been enlarged considerably and bleachers built which add several thousand to the former seating capacity.

The weather tonight is clear and cool, and the bureau's prediction is for partly cloudy, cool weather tomorrow afternoon, with a tendency toward clearing. The wind probably will be light, with the temperature somewhere in the 50s.

There has been a good deal of fault finding among baseball patrons here over the manner of selling the tickets, and it is alleged speculators have secured 750 seats. The police are actively campaigning against the speculators and tonight arrested one of them.

Both teams will arrive here on early trains. It is expected several thousand "rooters" will accompany the Chicago team, and excursions will be run into the city tomorrow from all over the state, with a number also coming from Canadian points.

TWO THOUSAND LOCAL FANS OFF FOR DETROIT CONTESTS.

Great Delegation of Rooters to Cheer the Cubs in Battles in Michigan Town Today and Tomorrow.

Two thousand Chicagoans went to Detroit last night to cheer for the Cubs in the games there today and tomorrow. The local representation departed as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Michigan Central at 9:30 | 300 |
| Michigan Central, at 10 | 300 |
| Michigan Central, at 10:10 | 400 |
| Grand Trunk, at 10:30 | 500 |
| Wabash, at 11 | 500 |
| Total | 2,000 |

The players of both teams, members of the National commission, and the firing line correspondents left on the second special over the Michigan Central. The first special took back home some of the Detroit fans who had invaded Chicago in their endeavor to pull their team home in front. The regular train carried a mixture of Cub and Tiger fans. All the trains will arrive this morning before 9 o'clock.

There was little noise at the Michigan Central station before the departure of any of the trains. Much interest was shown in the players of the two teams.

Silk O'Loughlin, the American league umpire, also took the players' train. He is being held in reserve by the commission.

Among the fans who left on the first train are: Charles Fredericks, secretary of the White Sox; John Agnew, Bob Walsh, Robert Cantwell, Joe Farrell, Daniel Walsh, Edward Heman, and James Markham, secretary of the police department.

There was a much noisier crowd at the Polk Street station, whence the Grand Trunk and Wabash trains departed. Cheers for the local players, with an occasional "Yee-haw" for Detroit were kept up while the travelers were piling into the coaches. Fully 100 women were on the two trains.

FEMININE FANS FAVOR CUBS

Women Rooters Foremost Where "Tribune" Reproduces Game.

PLAY IS CLOSELY FOLLOWED.

Undiminished Enthusiasm Before Scoreboards in Two Big Halls.

Reproductions of the ball game between the Cubs and the Tigers for the world's championship were witnessed by more than 5,000 baseball fans, who were guests of THE TRIBUNE yesterday at the Auditorium and the First Regiment armory.

The fans gave no indication of diminished enthusiasm. They yelled just as loudly as on the two previous days and the excitement over good plays was equally warm.

A larger number of women than on the two previous days was present at the Auditorium. And the women were "real fans," too. They rooted for the Cubs with an enthusiasm that displayed a truly marvelous feminine lung development.

The women's partisanship for the Cubs was displayed in the most conspicuous manner. Each woman carried a little Cubs pennant, which was waved enthusiastically, or had tied around her arm a varicolored sleevelet marked "Cubs" in large letters.

Great Crowd Before the Doors.

Anxious to get as good seats as possible, the fans began to arrive at the doors of the Auditorium as early as 12 o'clock. The big outer corridor was packed in less than half an hour and by 1 o'clock there was a crush. When the doors were opened the crowd stood several deep on the sidewalk and extended into the street toward Wabash avenue.

There was a good deal of yelling for the Cubs before the doors were opened. Occasionally a lonesome "Rah for the Tigers" was heard, but it was drowned out quickly by a chorus of "Cubs, Cubs, rah, rah, rah." When the waiting fans finally were admitted there was a grand rush for seats. And the noise began immediately.

"Play ball," yelled the crowd. Then the big steel curtain was raised, revealing THE TRIBUNE score board in position several feet above the stage and plainly visible from every part of the big theater.

The first flashes indicating the lineup with Jones of the Detroits to bat brought a yell of delight from the big crowd.

"Jones is up." "There they go," were yelled. When Jones went out the crowd sent up a wild scream of joy. It was a Cubs crowd and no mistake.

The greatest excitement prevailed from the first few innings. When Steinfeldt scored on a two base hit by Evers the big crowd went wild.

As the runs for the Cubs piled up inning after inning the joy of the fans increased. Every time Chance came to bat he was applauded. Other favorites were Kling, Steinfeldt, and Evers.

System Is Well Understood.

How well the crowds understood the system of flash lights was seen at the Auditorium. Four runs were indicated on the board, when suddenly five runs were flashed, without giving the plays or indicating how the fifth run was made. This was rectified quickly, but before it was done the fans demanded loudly to know how the fifth run was scored.

Today's game will be reproduced by THE TRIBUNE at both the Auditorium and the First Regiment armory. On account of a matinée at the Auditorium THE TRIBUNE has arranged to display the returns at Orchestra hall tomorrow afternoon.

FOOLS THE TWINS; WHIPS BOTH.

Teacher Thus Makes Sure He Gets the Right One, but Angry Mother Sues Him.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Prof. John A. Hollinger, assistant principal of the Soho school, got tired of being fooled by Halbert and Albert Knightlinger, two 13 year old twins who can scarcely tell themselves apart, and yesterday, when one of them got into mischief, Hollinger licked them both just to make sure the guilty one would not escape. Today he was sued for assault and battery by Mrs. Knightlinger, the angry mother. Hollinger will have a hearing tomorrow night on a charge of assault and battery.

Western Union Pays Under Protest.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Western Union Telegraph company today paid into the state treasury, under protest, $19,710.90, with $331.70 interest penalty for delay, in payment of its taxes under the ad valorem law. The company threatens to contest in court.

CUBS' SLUGGING BEATS DETROIT.

Locals Gain Strangle Hold on Tigers and Make Game Brief; Score, 5-1.

IN REULBACH'S CLUTCH.

Batting of Siever and Killian Is Fierce; Cobb Gets a Hit; Lemon Play Made.

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.

Brevity is the soul of baseball as well as of other things where the favorites have a strangle hold on the enemy. Those wretched Tigers emitted just one wheeze in the clutches of Reulbach and the second completed game of the bughouse series went to Chicago by a score of 5 to 1.

The vociferous biff of the bat put the Detroit rooters in the deaf and dumb class before the combat was many minutes old. Southpaw Siever endured four rounds. The last seen of that misguided Tiger he was beating it to the bench attended by a large tin can with five dents in it. These cruel post season blows netted the Cubs three tallies, which, added to what they had and one more made off Southpaw Killian, completed the string. Siever yielded eight safe swats in four rounds and his sad-eyed successor submitted three for publication.

Some Hitting by Cubs.

These eleven potent factors included five two baggers and one triple for a total of eighteen bases. In the language of the immortal Prof. J. Bardell, that was some hitting. Not an error, misplay, or stolen base figured in the decisive combating of the Cubs. Nothing but loud, long swats.

As for Mr. Reulbach, he was the whole cheese imported from Germany, where they make them large and strong. From the expression on the faces of certain Detroit bugs a fellow would imagine they could smell Reulbach's pitching. In all but one round the demoniac Dutchman had the Tigers shut up in the dark room. A single ray of light filtered through in the sixth. One base on balls and three singles were required to illuminate the situation long enough to let the Tigers find the plate.

Reulbach Pitches Safely.

Reulbach toiled like a man who had a certain stint or stunt to perform, after which he could go fishing or otherwise enjoy himself. Not a runner reached first base in the first three rounds, and the only first and original swat was a scratchy thing Schaefer splashed off Reulbach's mitt in the fourth. In all the enemy amassed six safeties, all singles, and be it known far and wide that T. Raymond Cobb whacked one of them.

The wearer of diamond swat medals butted into the little batting jubilee in the sixth, but his hit did not figure in the tally. Killian and Crawford pushed the run across before Ty had made up his mind to oblige. The slump of this sensation of the century is quite a puzzle to Cobb himself. To the Cubs the situation is as plain as the bat in Ty's fists. The Cub pitchers are too dodgasted intense for him.

Cobb Figures It Out.

As to his failure to steal bases, Cobb can elucidate that point himself. He thinks the diamonds in the National league are larger than those in the newer organization. At least they look bigger, and until he gets used to the increased distance between bases and the haunting shadow of J. Kling, the young phenom would be foolish to take chances. Hence his modest, not to say coy, demeanor in these parts.

It is predicted that when Ty gets back to Detroit and the smaller diamond he will kick up some dust on the paths and hit the ball against Mr. Yawkey's new world's series seats in right field. But enough about Ty Cobb. There are others in the Tiger den feeling as badly as he. He is not the only goat.

No Falling Off in Sky Parlor.

There was a decided falling off in attendance, but not in the sky parlor district outside the grounds. Any falling off there would have been announced by the ambulance gong's harsh note. The owls, gulls, and bugs on the roofs looked down upon a gathering of 13,114 chivalry and beauts in gay world's series plumage. It is thought the decrease was due to the tie game, which knocked the schedule galley west by north.

Perhaps the absentees agreed the game was at Detroit instead of Chicago. Again the gentle sex and some tender hearted he bugs may have recoiled at the thought of blood. For have not the papers stated time and again that the series was for blood? Sure thing, and it is just possible that the hole in the nightcapped peanut eating squad was due to Detroit enthusiasts and the fact T. Cobb was not living up to his picture on the front page of Sporting Life.

Plenty of Room on Circus Seats.

Those present were slower reporting than at the two previous games. Ladies as well as gents came in a few minutes ahead of play time after a meal at their own firesides and found plenty of perching places even among the circus seats, which are touted as desirable locations at $1.50 per squat. In fact, there was space for the gentlemanly purveyor of hand painted sandwiches to circulate without obstructing the view of a single two bagger. The ham in the sandwiches was painted in so deftly as to deceive the most delicate palate.

Two humorists in the circus section sprayed Siever and Reulbach with their yellow wit—i. e.: lemons. Think of the profound study and preparation and sleepless nights required to train the human intellect sufficiently to roll a lemon at an athlete doing the best he can. No wonder baseball has taken such a grip on the American public.

Didn't Need the Lemon.

Siever did not need the lemon, as an outburst of hits had soured his sunny disposition before the joke was sprung on him. The Detroits met up with his first batch of trouble in the second round. Steinfeldt and Evers thumped him for cushion carom doubles and one run. Both hits struck the circus seat bulkhead and glanced off for doubles under ground rules.

Ordinarily this walloping of the ball should rate a lemon, but the joke on Siever was reserved until the fourth. He wiggled through the third spasm all right, using a raise curve ball said to be a distant relation of Joe McGinnity's Old Sal. However that may be, the Cubs lit into it and tore off five safeties, one of them a triple. Then it was the lemon rolled at the feet of the palpitating Siever. Quick as it fell the alert Cap Bill Coughlin pounced upon the yellow token. We have an idea Bill preserved that lemon to season the broiled squabs he will eat this winter.

Bad Judgment by Joker.

The lemonizing of Mr. Reulbach disturbed the kaiser element in the sixth, an extremely important round. The lemon is not an adjunct of the whole cheese anyhow, and the chap who tossed it displayed poor judgment. He should have butted in one round earlier when the Tigers were laying their one best bet. With men on second and third and one out, the agile Tinker cut in with a play that took the steam out of the enemy. Joe went up in a compact body for O'Leary's liner and came down all spraddled out. Two leaps carried him to the bag, and by placing his hoof thereon he doubled up Coughlin without the aid of human beings. Cheers.

But there was one more spasm left in the Tigers and they threw it in the sixth. The lumping of three hits tipped over the lime bucket and bade Jennings hope for more good luck. He pulled all the wires known to his art, to say nothing of Mr. Murphy's grass, but Reulbach had flared up at sight of the lemon and refused to be buffaloed. Great man, Reulbach.

Tigers Get Early Hunch.

Detroit got a hunch that all was not well when Reulbach put two strikes over on Jones at the getaway. A rap to Evers carried Jones out of the whiff zone just in time. Crawford and Schaefer caused no excitement whatever. Cobb rose up in his might in the second and struck out on three pitched balls. This looked like rubbing it in on poor Tyrus Raymond.

In the Cub half Steinfeldt pushed a double between Coughlin and the bag. Kling sacrificed and Evers rapped a two bagger over first, scoring Steiney. The way they were spreading the swats on him worried Siever. He would have liked to see one go down the middle or into the sky so his pals could get it. Schulte and Tinker were easy outs.

Pop Fly Stops Chance.

Sheckard cracked his two bagger against the bulkhead in right after two were gone in the third, and Chance ended the round by popping to O'Leary. In the fourth Steinfeldt had passed away to Jones when Kling hit for one base. A single by Evers sent John to third. Schulte dropped a safety in center, on which Kling scored. Evers was caught between the bases and chased to death by a quartet of Tigers, Schulte taking second on the play. Tinker tripled to left. Jones got his talons on the ball after a long run, but could not quite connect. Schulte was seen passing in, and Tinker reported a moment later on Reulbach's surprising single to right. Slagle flied to Coughlin.

Tinker in Star Play.

Rossman's drive bounded badly for Tinker in the fifth. Coughlin drew a base on balls, and both advanced on the out of Schmidt, Chance to Reulbach. Then Tinker rose to O'Leary's fly and that crisis blew over. Killian went on for the Tigers in the fifth. With Sheckard out of the way, Chance hit a two bagger to left, and scored on Steinfeldt's single. Kling skied to center. Evers slipped in his second double, and Schulte flied to Coughlin.

The sixth opened with Killian's safe rap to center. Jones drew a pass. Schaefer hit to Steinfeldt, and he and Evers, by fast work, doubled up Jones and Schaefer. Crawford gave Tinker a hard chance, which Joe took back of the bag, too late to stop the fleet Sam at first. Killian scored on the play. Cobb singled to left, and Rossman flied to Slagle. But one more hit was made by the Tigers, Rossman's safety in the ninth being it. Following the salute in the fifth, Killian was invincible, not a hit being made.

NOTES OF THE SERIES.

All eyes will be turned eastward today.

An expert is said to be at work figuring up the loser's end for Detroit.

The spikes of Chance tore a three cornered hole in Schaefer's leg in the previous game. No harm done.

Three balls were all Reulbach required to strike out Cobb in the second inning, but few Detroiters were there to see his humiliation.

Jennings kept his cap glued to his Schenectady, near Auburn, hair throughout the pastime, and was not molested by Hank O'Day.

The only slip on either side was Evers' low throw on Killian in the seventh. The ball beat the runner to first, but bounded away from Chance.

Strikeouts were infrequent. Reulbach set down the shelled Cobb and O'Leary on strikes, while Siever struck out Slagle, and Killian fanned Sheckard.

When Reulbach steps up and slaps the ball on the nose the victim on the slab stands little show against the rest of the gang. Great man, that Reulbach.

Of course, there was a possibility that Reulbach might blow, but Cap Chance kept Brown and Lundgren warming up in the offing ready for instant use.

If the series lasts until Sunday, and the laundry comes home Saturday night, we look for the nightcap exhibit on the circus seats to break all previous records.

For what shall it profit the female bug who holds a $60 sky piece in her lap on the circus seats and wears said finery home full of peanut shells? You may search us.

The crowd of rooters which accompanied the Cubs to Detroit last night was not as great as would have been the case if the series was a tighter fit to date.

Mr. B. Sullivan paused at the press coop long enough to whisper some glad tidings about the Sox playing Callahan's Logan Squares on Saturday and Sunday.

Any one with half an eye could see that Mr. O'Day's trousers were freshly creased for an afternoon behind the bat. Also, that Hank wore a shirt with attached cuffs.

The crowd of 13,000 odd which left patches of emptiness on the west side would have choked the Tiger plant, and it is doubtful if the attendance of the next two games exceeds it.

Still another athlete-scribe rose up in our midst to send copious language to his paper. He is Mr. C. Carr, first baser for the Indianapolis team. He sat with Mr. A. Joss, syndicate writer.

There was nothing the matter with that swatting, the only hit the Tigers had even a chance to get being Tinker's triple. If Davy Jones had pinched that it would have been thuggery.

When his baseball days are over, and nothing else turns up, Jennings might get a job pulling weeds in a truck patch. His practice plucks on the grass should make him a world beater.

The Cubs and Tigers will be back on the west side on Sunday if the Tigers win one of the two games in their own town today or tomorrow, otherwise the series will end Saturday night.

Maybe John Evers won't sell a power of gum boots and things at Troy, N. Y., this winter if he returns there a champeen of the universe. The John J. Evers' association is planning the blowoff of its career.

The Cubs left for the camp of the enemy at 10 o'clock last night, their immediate party numbering close to fifty people, as the entire team went along, and with them many gatemen in addition to officials and newspaper men.

Without those two double plays by Tinker and Steinfeldt there would have been a tighter fit at the finish, but Joseph and Harry are paid to do those things, moreover, they help cop the big end of the wad which is piling up in the vaults of some bank.

"Wild Bill" Donovan started warming up just before the game, but apparently found his arm too tired after its twelve gruelling innings of Tuesday to permit returning to the slab yesterday. Mordecai Brown was ready in case anything happened to Reulbach.

Manager Chance probably will repeat the trio of pitchers he has used, and in the same order. That would make it Overall's turn to work today, and Pfiester's tomorrow. Manager Jennings has no choice but to send Donovan against the Cubs today, and probably Mullin again tomorrow.

Yesterday's crowd, although not comparing in size with those of the previous two days, raised the total attendance almost to 60,000, and the total receipts to over $70,000, of which the players' share now is $38,774.70, which is greater than they received for four days of winter weather last season.

IN THE WAKE OF THE BASE HIT AND ERROR.

BY HEK.

THROUGH SHE SPECS.

"Why do they call it baseball?" I asked after having tried vainly to duck the assignment.

"Because the ship sailed on Thursday," answered the sporting squeeze rather vaguely, crabbedly, and cruelly, I thought. But then he is a great big awful man who has no patience with the ingénue, although uniformly kind withal and invariably good to his folks when they can beat him to the cashier.

"Why do they call the Detroit men the Tigers?" I ventured again, with a column staring me in the face.

"Well," answered the sporting idiot, more cordially than before, "I'm no nature faker, but I think it's because the Cubs have them buffaloed."

"Why do they wear those horrid and unpicturesque costumes?" I asked again, with ample assurance that he would not turn me down, because he wasn't listening.

"How," he replied, answering my question by asking another, "would they look without them?"

Passing up the S. E. as a hopeless claim, I bravely resolved to do some digging on my own account.

I looked out beyond the sea of humanity, and what did I behold? Men, men, men—nothing but men, except here and there a last spring lid and an automobile veil that never had inhaled the odor of gasoline except at the cleaner's.

Presently all was action. A large man who seemed to be in authority, inasmuch as he was attired unlike the others and had a clothes horse on his face and a pony mattress draped à la princesse in front of him, shouted some word of command and the person sitting next to me and who seemed to be Joseph to the intricacies told me that the game had started.

I at once conceived a horror of a man who I afterwards learned was Mr. Jennings. He so lacked repose and had a voice of such raucous timbre that it fairly got on my nerves.

At last I singled out Mr. Chance. Lovely man. I intend to write to him, care general delivery, and then tip it off to him over the telephone. He is the handsomest man I ever saw outside of the bull pen. Mr. Kling, who, I understand, was on the same side as Mr. Chance, has the figure of a Greek deity. I should love dearly to meet him face to face even at a distance. Why, pray, doesn't he turn around and confront the amphitheater as Mr. Reulbach does? But of course that is something that is not given me to understand. I would like to ask, but I am so fearsome of a patronizing glance or at best a cold throwdown.

Well, amid all the fanfare, the blowing of trumpets, the riot of color, the odor of the crisp autumn earth and fresh roasted peanuts, those lovely Cubs won.

How? Search me.

I am simply exploiting my charming ignorance. That's the way with us litterateuresses.

SOPHIE GLUTZ.

P. S.—See that the unspeakable copy butcher plays this up for an eighteen point fudge, and spell my name right.

We are sorry to disappoint our readers, but there are a few extenuating circumstances. We expected this morning to print an account of yesterday's contest as seen by a cheese sandwich on rye, but a careless waiter went south with the mustard. However, we expect to morrow to make good with the observations of a fall hat and a sea green parasol. If your newsdealer or favorite bootjack does not handle us collide with his face and we will spring you if you are pinched.

Our friends need have no misgivings as to our comfort in congested Detroit during the pending spasm. In answer to our telegraphic request for a portion of the modern conveniences we received the following message:

"Have bedded down stall 26, barn A, at the Windsor racetrack for you. Hay free; oats extra.

"DAN MURRAY."

While the returns are going in to John Kling's Kansas City atelier these days the following schedule of prices prevails: Billiards, 60 cents per hour; pool, two bits per cue. Patrons bringing their own chalk will be charged corkage.

Meanwhile, how fares the South Shore Country club horse show?

The Latonia bookmakers are getting an extra race without additional cost these days. They are doing business on the ball games with the usual percentage.

We are not prepared to give accurate figures on Garry Herrmann's batting average since this series began, but you would be quite safe in paying off on .400.

Charles Comiskey is the only scribe connected with the outer fringe of the left wing of journalism, who has not preëmpted four seats in the coagulated press gallery for self and friends.

The returns from Meriden, Conn., are to the effect that Ed Walsh's incubator is hitting around .333 and most of 'em pullets.

The breeze from the stockyards has a treasonable Tigerish tinge.

Mr. Jennings declares that Chicago shuffles up the most impartial mob he ever played forninst. In this particular case there may be a reason.

The megaphone of the premeditative rooter was a still small voice these games. Somehow the popular ditties do not mesh with the west side tunes.

Of course, even the south side fans are climbing into the band wagon now.

An ardent Sox rooter who was inclined to play the string out by rooting for the Tigers visited the west side yard yesterday and lost $5 and his commutation ticket without getting action for either.

A great many of us adolescent bugs are braving the hardships of a trip to Detroit for the simple reason that we would feel eternally disgraced if we didn't.

The last note of the "Eee Yah" had a mournful cadence.

TRIAL BOARD ACTS, OUSTING COPPERS

Four Patrolmen and Phone Operator Fired in House-cleaning Session.

STRANGE TALES ARE TOLD

Frailties of People in Private Life Bared When Two Officers Are Exonerated.

Five members of the police department—four patrolmen and one telephone operator—were discharged from the service yesterday afternoon by the trial board. Two of the patrolmen were found guilty of assaulting and robbing citizens and the other three officers were dismissed for persistent neglect of duty due to intoxication.

In the four hour session which broke all records of the board for dispatch the civil service commissioners brought their judgment to bear upon a variety of human frailties not only in official but also in private life. They listened to the moving narrative of how a widow, Mrs. M. C. Kunze, 84 South Wood street, celebrated her birthday and judicially determined that when Patrolman James J. Doherty took possession of $9.80 change due her after the last round of drinks he proved himself her benefactor. The patrolman, who proved the money had been returned, was exonerated.

Then they heard the account of the strange adventures that befell Mrs. Jansen Roubak, 7121 Aberdeen street, on her return from lodge meeting with a neighbor, Mr. Nels Jensen, 7224 Carpenter street, and decided that Patrolman Guy P. Wadsworth, as a friend of Mr. Roubak, was well within his prerogatives in shadowing the couple.

The action of the board was a decisive step in the direction of clearing the police force of disreputable and inefficient officers.

Officers Who Lose Stars.

The officers discharged were:

THOMAS WOODWARD, patrolman, Warren avenue station, who was bound over to the Criminal court for assaulting and robbing Herman Pfam in a saloon at Grand avenue and Wood street on Sept. 9. He was appointed March 21, 1907.

JOHN C. McKAY, patrolman, Englewood station, who was sentenced to the penitentiary recently for assaulting and robbing Vilanti Jankowsky of $135. He was appointed March 10, 1906.

JOHN J. COURTNEY, patrolman, Desplaines street station, who in the six months of his probationary service was arraigned three times for intoxication and neglect to patrol his beat and report to his superiors.

EUGENE E. DONOHUE, patrolman, central detail, intoxication and neglect of duty, second offense. Appointed April 6, 1906.

WILLIAM V. FITZSIMMONS, telephone operator, California avenue station, intoxication and neglect of duty. Appointed June 18, 1906.

The board also fined Patrolman Edward E. Hartung five days' pay and Patrolman William T. Curry ten days' pay for intoxication.

Story of Handsome Widow.

The story of the bibulous birthday celebration was an absorbing one. Mrs. Kunze is a handsome widow, who was in the dressmaking business on the west side for twelve years. She said that on Aug. 19 last she met Patrolman Doherty of the West Lake street station in front of the Ashland club. The officer, she said, remarked upon her blithesome appearance, and she explained that it was her birthday. He suggested that she buy, Mrs. Kunze told the commission, and she countered with a proposal that he buy. Finally the widow compromised on buying a drink for herself.

"Officer Doherty, who had on his uniform, star, and club, accompanied me to Steiner's saloon at Lake and Wood streets," the widow testified. "I ordered a gin fizz, he took a bottle of beer. We had several rounds of drinks, and Officer Doherty went out and invited in a friend, Dr. Baker, and we all had some more drinks. I spent all my small change, the officer not offering once to buy, and then I gave the waiter a $10 bill for the last round. He brought me the change, which I put in my purse.

Money Gone, Says She.

"It was raining hard, and after Officer Doherty had gone I ordered a cab. The driver demanded his pay in advance, but when I opened my purse I found I had no money and my watch was gone. I had at least $45 in my handbag when I entered the place."

After vainly trying to get money from friends she drove home and told the driver to send her a bill. Then she claims to have tackled Doherty and secured $5 from him. Later he brought $4.40 to Steiner's saloon, where she met him again.

"He laid the money on the table," said Mrs. Kunze, "and the bartender grabbed it, saying he had paid for the cab I had."

The widow said she and Doherty frequently had foregathered over the flowing bowl.

"I always bought," she said, "and he always took whatever change the waiter brought. I protested always, but he said I could stand it, as I was rich. He only bought once that I remember."

Tell Different Stories.

But the "birthday tragedy" was placed in a different light by the other parties to the celebration.

"I was sitting in the drug store at Lake and Wood streets in my citizen's clothes when Mrs. Kunze entered in a state of intoxication," testified Patrolman Doherty. "I have known her many years, and I have often tried to get her to sign the pledge. She said she had been downtown celebrating her birthday with a lot of nurses. I refused to drink with her and followed her into the saloon and told the bartender not to give her any liquor.

"She seemed ill, so I had them send the porter for Dr. Baker, who came and told the bartender not to give her more drinks. She paid for a gin fizz with a $10 bill, and the bartender brought back $9.80, which I told him to keep till Mrs. Kunze was feeling better. The bartender objected and wanted me to keep it, and Dr. Baker advised me to. So I put it in my pocket and, being unable to get Mrs. Kunze to go home, I went away."

Doherty said he would have returned the widow the amount the next time he saw her but that he had left it in his citizen's clothes at home. So he paid her $5 of his own money and the rest later.

Dr. W. E. Baker corroborated Doherty's story. F. Arman, the bartender, said Mrs. Kunze drank a gin fizz, but threw a seltzer and lemon on the floor, saying, "There's no gin in that." He said he paid the cabby $3.75 to drive her home.

Policeman Follows Couple.

In the Wadsworth case Mrs. Roubak said she returned from lodge meeting about 11:30 p. m., Mr. Jensen taking a Center avenue trolley car directly to Seventieth street. Soon after she got home Patrolman Wadsworth knocked at her door and told her Mr. Roubak had been hurt. She knew this was untrue, as Mr. Roubak was safe in bed.

Wadsworth said he saw a couple, Mrs. Roubak and Jensen he supposed them to be, acting suspiciously in the shadow of the church at Center avenue and Sixty-seventh street. He followed them some distance and dispatched a boy, Willie King, to follow them farther. The boy reported they went to Roubak's house.

"I used to work with Roubak on the cars," said Wadsworth, "and as a friend I thought I ought to do something if Jensen was in the house. So I went to the door intending to frighten Mrs. Roubak and Jensen. But Roubak came to the door and Jensen was not there."

The next day Mrs. Roubak went to the Englewood station and beat Wadsworth over the head with an umbrella.

OVERCOME BY THE MEDAL HOODOO.

GIRL DIES; MIDWIFE HELD.

Mrs. C. H. Haueser Accused of Ending Life of Irene Henry.

MAN IMPLICATED IS SOUGHT.

Law Students Mentioned as Having Deserted the Young Woman.

Miss Irene Henry, 23 years old, died at the Marion Sims hospital late Wednesday night from the effects of an illegal operation which had been performed some time before by a midwife. The last words of the dying woman were uttered in an attempt to conceal the identity of the man who was responsible for her condition.

An investigation was begun immediately by Coroner Hoffman, with the result that Mrs. C. H. Haueser, a midwife living at 389 Grace street, was arrested and locked up at the Hudson avenue police station. Representatives of the coroner's office say they have proof that Mrs. Haueser performed the operation which resulted in Miss Henry's death.

Miss Henry was taken to the hospital late Wednesday afternoon, where it was found a short time later that she could not recover. Attending physicians endeavored to get a statement from her as to the identity of the man who was responsible for her condition, but with little success.

"The man is a Northwestern university law student," the young woman replied to the repeated questions that were put to her. "I don't know his name."

Later, when questioned closely by one of the hospital physicians, she said the young man was a member of a wealthy north side family and that his first name was "Harry."

"I met him several times at dances and we went out together, but I never learned what his last name was," she said.

She added that she had received several letters from him, but that he had denied all responsibility for her condition. He deserted her shortly before the operation was performed.

Miss Henry had been living with a sister, Mrs. Charles Emerson, at 1139 Montana street, until a few weeks ago. Mrs. Emerson admitted to the coroner yesterday that she had accompanied her sister to the house of the midwife and that an operation had been performed there, but said she did not at that time know the nature of the operation.

BELIEVE E. S. EVARTS MARRIED.

Reports of Chicago Lawyer's Wedding at Newport Find Credence Among His Friends.

Despite denials made on behalf of his relatives yesterday at Evanston, the report that Edward Spencer Evarts, aged 60, a wealthy patent lawyer of this city, had been married in Newport, R. I., to Mrs. Alice Roboteau, a widow of 50, is generally credited in local legal circles and among the supposed benedict's friends.

Nothing is known of Mrs. Roboteau in Evanston, where Mr. Evarts has lived with his niece, Mrs. James R. Smart, since the death of the first Mrs. Evarts about a year ago. At the home of the Smart family, Hinman avenue and Lee street, Evanston, a nurse said Mrs. Smart was ill.

"But she does not believe Mr. Smart has got married," said the nurse. "He has been in Boston about a week. Mrs. Smart is certain he would have told her if he had any plans of the nuptial sort."

Mr. Evarts has practiced law for thirty years in Chicago. He is a native of New York and is a cousin of the late William M. Evarts.

Police Are Asked to Seek Judson R. Richardson, Who Has Disappeared from Heck Hall, Evanston.

The Chicago police have been asked to search for Judson R. Richardson, 24 years old, of Little Falls, N. Y., who disappeared from his room in Hack hall, Evanston, Oct. 1, after he had registered as a student in Garrett Biblical institute.

Richardson's absence was not noticed for several days, and then it was believed he had returned home, but word was received yesterday at the university that he had not gone to his home.

Inquiries will be made today in hospitals in Chicago and surrounding towns.

REAL HORSE LOVERS ATTEND

South Shore Club Show Visitors Shiver in Chill Air.

"DAVE" MONTGOMERY ANGRY

Barring of His Pony and Horse Arouses the Ire of the Actor.

Cold weather last night drove many of the visitors to the horse show at the South Shore Country club inside the clubhouse. Those who braved the chill night air and remained in the boxes proved themselves genuine admirers of the horse. Men and women stood in little clusters and shivered in their overcoats and wraps.

Every one said the horseshow and the evening's events were satisfactory, but the weather—well, they said it was "beastly cold." Even John Farson, an enthusiastic admirer of horseflesh in addition to being an automobile enthusiast, was compelled to seek the more congenial temperature of the clubrooms after spending a few minutes seeing the horses in the arena.

Some of the more interesting events during the evening were class 63, high school horses, high steppers, and hunters, shown two abreast. The greatest interest was displayed in the "trick stepping" done by the "high school" horses. Their high stepping, side stepping, and "marching" to the music played by the band were applauded liberally.

In the high school class Mabel Le Grand, exhibited by John D. Robnett, captured first prize, Artist King, exhibited by C. L. Pierce, got second, and Alston, shown by Mrs. G. E. Pearsall, won third.

Actor Montgomery Ill Treated.

"Dave" Montgomery, the actor, was red hot with indignation at the treatment he received when he showed some of his fancy animals. His chief dissatisfaction was caused by the findings of the judges in an exhibit of local ponies in harness, catalogued as class 17, in which Marvelous Watson, a pony owned and exhibited by Montgomery and driven by Mrs. Fred Stone, was barred from the class. Montgomery said Dr. C. De Garmo Gray, director of the arena, had urged him to show the pony.

Besides Marvelous Watson, which, the owner contends, is the finest pony in America, there were three entries. They were Tommy, exhibited by John O. Roberts; Squirrel, exhibited by Harry McNair; and Custard, shown by Miss M. Burton. Squirrel captured first prize when Marvelous Watson was barred.

"The barring of my pony was the greatest injustice to which I ever have been subjected," said Montgomery. "Dr. Gray has about as much idea of how to run a horse show as a rabbit has of astronomy.

Humiliates Mrs. Stone.

"He had urged me to show the pony. He even begged me to do it. And he promised me Mrs. Stone could drive it, after I told him that the class was for children and that I couldn't trust my pony in the hands of a child.

"Then after permitting Mrs. Stone to enter the ring, he humiliated her and me, by forcing her to line up while the other ponies were showing and contesting. Mrs. Stone didn't know what to make of it. Everybody there could see that Marvelous Watson was the finest pony, and when they learned that the animal was barred from the class the spectators hissed." Mrs. Stone is Alene Crater of the "Red Mill."

Mr. Montgomery said he fared equally bad when his horse Danny was to be exhibited in the runabout class. The horse was driven into the arena, but one of the judges told Montgomery that he could not exhibit in that class, as it was a "local" one.

"I never lived anywhere but in Chicago," said Mr. Montgomery. "The judges told me I live in New York. That's the first time I ever heard that. I tried to tell them that there must be some mistake, but it was no use. I hold my residence at 2160 Prairie avenue.

"I am going to make it hot for somebody, that's all I can say."

Benefit for Fountain Fund.

A play will be given within two weeks at the Garrick theater to swell the drinking fountain fund being raised by the Chicago Women's Outdoor Art league. Donald Robertson and company will appear. The fountains will be placed in the north and west sides.

ROWDY GONE, MISTRESS SICK; HAVE YOU SEEN LITTLE DOG?

Five Year Old Margaret Oglesby Can Now Take No Interest in Dolly and Teddy Bear.

Five year old Margaret Oglesby's curly headed doll sat neglected all day in a corner of the nursery yesterday. Gazing at her in blank wonder was a brown, fuzzy Teddy bear in a most uncomfortable position.

The dolly and the bear seem to be wondering about the same question: "What grief has befallen our little mistress?"

The silence that enshrouds the Oglesby home, 177 Dearborn avenue, the cause of Margaret's fretting herself sick, all centers around one fact: Rowdy is missing, and somewhere a French poodle undoubtedly is wondering why he ever was so foolish as to wander off on Wednesday to see the world.

In the hope of bringing the little poodle back, Mr. Oglesby put the following advertisement in the newspapers yesterday:

LOST — DOG; LITTLE GIRL HEARTBROKEN; French poodle; Wednesday morning; name Rowdy; clipped; sits up and shakes paws. Report 181 N. Clark-st., got reward. OGLESBY.

"Haven't you seen Rowdy?" is the appealing question little Margaret asks every one who comes to the flat. "He has white silk curls, and will sit up and beg, and say his prayers. Dodo feels as bad about Rowdy being lost as I do, don't you, Dodo?"

Dodo is Rowdy's mate, a little French poodle with long, white, curly hair.

The 117th anniversary of the birth of Father Mathew was celebrated last night in Willard hall, under the auspices of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of Illinois. The Rev. P. J. O'Callaghan of St. Mary's church, presided.

After singing by St. Mary's church choir and a recital by Miss Harriett Lee Isham, an address was delivered by the Rev. John Daly of Milwaukee. Father Daly, after reviewing the life of the famous Catholic apostle of total abstinence, spoke in praise of President Roosevelt and William Jennnings Bryan for their temperate habits.

The speaker cited several instances which had come under his observation where women of high social standing used liquor to excess in public places.

Young Jack Walsh Hero of Nativity Parochial School.

CROWD TRAMPLES ON CHILD.

Little Sadie Cavanaugh Falls When 1,100 Make Rush for Exit.

When the confusion resulting from the bursting of a steam pipe at the Nativity Parochial school yesterday morning had subsided it was found the net results were several children slightly bruised, one little girl severely injured, and one boy a hero.

The school is at Thirty-seventh street and Lowe avenue, adjoining the Church of the Nativity of Our Lord. There were 1,100 pupils at their classes when the great steam pipe broke with a roar and clouds of steam poured through the corridors of the building. Joseph McGovern, 7 years old, 936 Thirty-seventh street, began to shout fire, and the pupils, especially in the lower grades, broke away from their teachers and rushed into the halls. Sixty pupils from the primary room became jammed in a struggling mass.

Sadie Cavanaugh, 7 years old, 3727 Wallace street, fell and was trampled on, suffering severe injuries. She was saved from death beneath her playmates' heels only by the coolness and nerve of Jack Walsh, 3715 Wallace street, 13 years old, a pupil in the eighth grade, who forced his way to where she lay and carried her out of the jam. He laid her out of harm's way under a stairway.

"Didn't Do Much," Says Boy.

When seen yesterday afternoon he said: "Why, I didn't do much. I saw there wasn't any fire, but just steam, and the kids were so scared they didn't know what they were doing and were trampling on the little ones and hurting them, so I just got in and helped the little ones out."

But Mrs. Cavanaugh, sitting beside her daughter's bed, had no such moderate opinion of what "Jack" did. "Sure, he's brave enough to be a fireman," she said.

"I fell down and all the kids were tramping on me," said Sadie, her pretty face almost hidden by bandages, "and I called to the sister, but she didn't hear me; but Johnny Walsh heard me and he shoved in where they were standing on me and got me out."

Willie Walsh, 9 years old, Jack's younger brother, jumped from a second story window, but was uninjured.

Priest Quiets Throng.

The Rev. Father Patrick McGee exerted himself to the utmost to allay the panic within the building, while Officer William Stark, the first policeman to reach the scene, was opening the jammed exits from outside.

CHICAGOAN OF 60 IN ROMANCE

Charles H. Nichols Weds Miss L. A. Kinsella at Salem, Mass.

BRIDE A GIRL OF 22 YEARS.

Lynn Pastor Foils Effort to Have the Knot Tied Secretly.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—A romance has come to light here in which one principal is a man of 60, a retired Chicago millionaire real estate owner, and the other a girl of 22 years. The culmination of the story was reached yesterday, when Charles H. Nichols of Chicago was married to Miss Lillian A. Kinsella of this city.

The bride and groom, accompanied by the bride's mother, went to Lynn last Tuesday and engaged an apartment in order to give Lynn as the place of residence when they applied at the Lynn city clerk's office for a marriage license.

They got the license, but the Rev. George R. Grose, pastor of the First Methodist church, to whom the couple applied to be married, found out that the bride's real place of residence was in Salem and refused to perform the ceremony unless they procured a license from this city. Mr. Nichols and Miss Kinsella then engaged a cab and drove to Salem, where they were married by the Rev. Alfred Manchester.

Despite the disparity in ages, friends of the couple say their marriage was the result of a real love match. Mr. Nichols, who has been accustomed to visit the east every summer for several years, made his usual visit this year, and soon after his arrival in this city he attended a social function, where he first met Miss Kinsella, and a close friendship ensued, and finally the young woman consented to become Mrs. Nichols.

Mr. Nichols lived in Salem about thirty years ago, but moved to Chicago, where he became wealthy and married. A few years ago he was divorced from his first wife, who lives at 3630 Grand boulevard, in that city.

$20,000,000 GONE; OIL LOAN PUZZLE.

Pipe Line Books Show P. S. Trainor Got Cash; He Enters Denial.

HEARST GAINS AN ALLY.

Fusion with League Accepted by Republicans After Stormy Session.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, Oct. 10.

Loans of over $20,000,000 which the books of the Southern Pipe Line company show were made to P. S. Trainor between 1899 and 1905 became more puzzling of solution to Frank B. Kellogg, conducting the federal suit against the Standard Oil company, today, when Mr. Trainor, taking the witness stand in the oil suit, testified that the money had never been paid to him, and that he had never heard of the account.

$20,000,000 Loan Proving a Prize Puzzle.

The Southern's books show that unsigned vouchers were received for these loans, and that the money was never handed back to the company. Mr. Trainor said he was formerly crude oil purchasing agent for the Standard Oil company of New York, and, as such, purchased all the oil and sold it to the refineries. He said he acted in a similar capacity now for the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

Mr. Kellogg called Mr. Trainor's attention to the various loans, amounting to over $20,000,000, which were made by the Southern Pipe Line company, and charged to "P. S. Trainor," and asked him to tell all he knew concerning the loans.

"I do not know anything about these loans," answered Mr. Trainor. "I had an oil account with the Southern company, but no money account. I never gave them any vouchers and never heard anything about the loans."

Mr. Trainor said that he fixed the price paid for crude oil after consulting with John D. Archbold, vice president of the Standard. These consultations were held daily, Mr. Trainor said, and after they were over he made public the market price of crude oil.

H. M. Tilford, treasurer of the Standard Oil company of California and president of the Continental Oil company, when asked to produce the reports of the Continental company, testified that whenever a new report was received he invariably destroyed the old one. The reports of the Continental contained information regarding business done by competing oil companies.

Mr. Kellogg will have a conference with Attorney General Bonaparte at Washington tomorrow to discuss the progress of the government's case against the Standard Oil company.

After a bitter fight and a scathing denunciation of William R. Hearst and the proposed Parsons-Hearst alliance, the republican county convention late tonight nominated a joint republican-Independence league ticket for all the county offices. These are the nominees:

Roast Hearst, Then Join with His League.

For justices of General Sessions—Charles S. Whitman [rep.], Melvin G. Palliser [I. L.], Nathan Vidaver [I. L.].

For judges of the City court—William H. Wadhams [rep.], Douglas Mathewson [rep.], Isidore Wasservogel [rep.], H. C. S. Stimson [I. L.], James A. Donegan [I. L.], Edwin S. Merril [I. L.].

For sheriff—Max F. Ihnsen [I. L.].

All the nominees were cheered, but hisses greeted the name of Max Ihnsen, Mr. Hearst's political manager of many campaigns.

The financial depression which has been felt in the United States is world wide, according to former Senator William A. Clark, who returned today from a three months' tour of Europe. He attributes the condition abroad partly to what he terms a decided lack of confidence in American securities, lack of confidence in the stability of American business men and of American business methods.

Foreigners Lack Confidence in Our Securities.

"France is the only country that could lend us any money at this time," said Mr. Clark. "I found a decided lack of confidence abroad in American securities, brought on, I think, by what are termed the business scandals. The meat and insurance disclosures, together with those developed in the present local traction investigation, they regard in a questionable fashion."

Smoking a cigaret as unconcernedly as if on Broadway, 680 feet below, "Jack" Capella, a rigger, swayed to and fro in the wind on top of the flagpole of the new Singer building, tallest of skyscrapers, this afternoon, while below in the street all business was suspended and the thoroughfare was choked with watching men, women, and children.

Works 680 Feet Above Broadway on Singer Flagstaff

Capella was placing in position the big ball at the top of the flagpole, and later he will gild it and paint the pole. He made the ascent in a boatswain chair, and worked away without a tremor.

It was necessary to call out the police reserves before surface traffic could be resumed on Broadway. Capella received $1,000 for the job.

An order, directing Joseph Day Lee, a lawyer, to produce the alleged marriage certificate and a letter in which his client, Mae Wood Platt, alleges Senator Thomas C. Platt admits his marriage to her, was made by Justice McCall today. The proceeding was preliminary to the trial of Miss Wood's suit for divorce from Senator Platt, which is on the calendar for early in November. Plaintiff's counsel said Miss Wood held the papers and that it would require ten days to bring them east. A postponement of ten days was agreed upon.

Mary Ann Scannell-Pepper-Vanderbilt, who has entertained so many people by communicating to them messages from the so-called spirit "Bright Eyes," was arrested today on a warrant charging her with grand larceny in the second degree in that she, as alleged, forced a house and lot from her husband, Edward Ward Vanderbilt, by false and fraudulent representations. The warrant was obtained by Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, daughter of the spiritualist's husband. Mrs. Vanderbilt was released on $1,000 bail.

CIVIC MEN CONFER OVER FUND.

Prevailing Sentiment in Favor of Accepting Corporation Gifts for Research if Not Concealed.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—There was a conference this morning in the offices of August Belmont & Co. of several officers of the National Civic Federation over the disclosure at the session of the traction inquiry on Wednesday that $15,000 of the funds of the Metropolitan Securities company had been used to defray the expenses of the committee of the federation which went abroad last year to study municipal ownership.

It is understood that August Belmont was in favor of making a public statement, but that the other officers dissented. The prevailing sentiment was favorable to the acceptance of corporation funds for research so long as the payments are not concealed on the books of the corporation giving the money.

Friend of Murdered Mrs. Hollister Is Found Dead in River Cofferdam.

MISS JENNIE L. STEVENS.

might have been caused by falling and stumbling against the piers and obstructions on the bank of the river, or by blows. There was nothing, however, to substantiate the suicide theory.

After carefully examining the ground in the vicinity of the place where the body was found, the police, headed by Lieut. Duffy of the Rawson street station, inclined to the belief that Miss Stevens had met death in a mad flight from an imaginary assailant.

"Had she cared to commit suicide she certainly would not have climbed along those narrow stringers which lead to the dam in order to get to the peculiar place where her body was found," said Lieut. Duffy. "She might have jumped into the river in a dozen more convenient spots than the place where she finally died or was killed. All about was water in which she might have drowned herself. Where she was found there was no water."

Seek Stranger; Keim Appears.

The watchman, with other persons employed in the vicinity, insisted that the arrest of the man who last was seen with her would solve the mystery.

"If the woman was not murdered there certainly are many features of the case that this man could clear up," said John D. Robbins, construction superintendent at the bridge. "I saw the body a few minutes after it was found, and I am sure that it did not look as if it had fallen there. It was thrown there while the woman was unconscious."

Late at night Bartender Keim convinced the police that, though he was the man last known to be with Miss Stevens, he was not involved in her death. He lives at 24 Alaska street and works for George Hogan, 23 Desplaines street. He walked into the Rawson street station and said he saw the story of the mysterious man in the newspapers and hastened to the station to disprove any theory of foul play the police might associate with his action.

His story, if true, lends the added mystery to the case of how the young woman got back to the point where her body was found. The police still believe the young woman was murdered.

Keim Story in Detail.

Keim's story follows:

"I first met the woman when she started in a wrong direction, after being directed by the watchman. I saw her going down a side street—Hooker street, I believe—and, having overheard her say to the watchman that she wanted to go to Halsted and Thirty-seventh streets, I ran and overtook her and told her of her mistake.

"I then told her that I was going south on Halsted street, and that, if she did not object, I would accompany her. She consented, with thanks, and I walked with her clear to Washington boulevard. At this point I placed her on a south bound Halsted street car, paid her fare, and got her a transfer for the south side.

"Just before I alighted she asked me to call up her mother, giving me a telephone number, and tell her that she was all right and would soon be home. That was the last I saw or heard of her."

Keim was not held, the police being impressed with his truthfulness. The mystery remains: How she got back from Washington boulevard to the bridge where she had met him.

Mind Disturbed by Brooding.

In the afternoon Mrs. Stevens, mother of the dead woman, overcame her hysterical grief sufficiently to tell of the circumstances surrounding her daughter's departure from home on Wednesday.

"About 2 o'clock in the afternoon she was playing the piano, when she suddenly arose and hurried from the house," said Mrs. Stevens. "I was surprised at the suddenness with which she left. She had been accustomed to take a daily walk, however, and I thought little of it. She took a pocketbook, in which there was little more than car fare—15 cents, I believe. I fear now that she may have been put off a car for lack of money. And to think that we have plenty here!

"Six months ago my daughter was compelled to give up her work in the church. We had noticed that her mind was affected some time before that.

"I am sure the principal cause of her mind giving way was worry and grief over the tragic death of Mrs. Hollister. They were the closest of friends. Frequently they would change shifts, my daughter playing for Sunday school and Mrs. Hollister for church.

Organist at Friend's Funeral.

"Jennie played at Mrs. Hollister's funeral. So great did her fear become that after Mrs. Hollister's death she never would enter the church alone to practice. She was afraid to come from the Thirty-ninth street car line to her home, but a half block, alone after nightfall. When she would return from the evening services at the church I would meet her at the drug store at Thirty-ninth street and Cottage Grove avenue and accompany her home.

"Although we tried to relieve her mind of the terrible impression the loss of her friend left on it, she became worse. Jennie used to sit there in the front window evenings watching the street. 'I don't see how those women dare go out alone,' she would repeat every time she saw a woman go past unaccompanied."

Too Nervous for Office Work.

Although receiving an income from property left to her by her father, Miss Stevens wished to occupy her mind with work and until a year ago was employed as a stenographer in the law office of Adolph L. Benner, in the Chamber of Commerce building, in addition to being organist for the large church choir. Soon after Mrs. Hollister's death, Miss Stevens' nerves began to give way, and last October, warned by physicians that she must give up some of her work, she quit work in the law office.

The consciousness of her failing mind was a heavy blow to her, and shortly after giving up her position as organist she went to the Oscar King sanitarium, Lake Geneva, where she staid several months and showed signs of recovery. Mrs. Stevens said her daughter encountered considerable annoyance in caring for property belonging to her at Main and Maple streets, Evanston.

"O, the terrible thought of poor Jennie wandering about, and finally meeting that terrible death, chilled with cold," sobbed the broken hearted mother. "I am confident she had no suicidal intentions."

In Good Spirits on Wednesday.

"Miss Stevens visited my house Wednesday morning," said Mrs. G. M. Beckwith, 167 East Forty-fourth street, "and appeared in the best of spirits. She told me she never had been back to Wesley church since the last Sunday she played there, but longed to go back."

All agree that Miss Stevens' motive in going to the north side was to go back to the church or perhaps to Rosehill cemetery, where her father was buried.

The south side neighborhood where she lived was alarmed at the absence of Miss Stevens Wednesday evening and aided the police in the search. Jenkin Lloyd Jones conducted the search. Abraham Lincoln center—All Souls' church—is next door to the Stevens residence.

Miss Stevens came to Chicago with her parents from Janesville, Wis., twenty-nine years ago. Her father, R. R. Stevens, was a well known real estate man. She was educated in the old Dearborn seminary on the north side, which was attended by children of many well known families. Miss Stevens was known among musical circles in the city. Her instruction as an organist was obtained under Clarence Eddy. She was an only child.

A brother of Mrs. Stevens, C. L. Valentine, postmaster of Janesville, Wis., arrived in Chicago in the afternoon. Miss Stevens herself latterly was a member of St. Mark's Episcopal church.

TRACTION JUGGLE IS UP TO HUGHES

If Jerome Fails to Probe Scandal, Plea May Be Made to Governor.

LIGHT ON CHECK MYSTERY

Dolan and Widener Say Paper Was to Pay Obligations of Late W. C. Whitney.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—If District Attorney Jerome does not act on recent disclosures in the investigation of the traction lines the public service commission may set the facts as they have found them before Gov. Hughes. It is understood that the advisability of such a course has been discussed by some of the commissioners. Any communication which the commission might send to the governor would, in any event, be merely a statement of facts. It would be up to the governor to decide whether there was any need for the appointment of a special district attorney. Gov. Hughes, when seen at Norfolk, Va., today, refused to say what he would do.

William M. Ivins, the commission's counsel, practically challenged P. A. B. Widener and Thomas Dolan of Philadelphia to appear before the commission and give their explanations of the checks which went to them in the Wall and Cortlandt street ferries deal. Mr. Ivins' challenge was inspired by the statement which came from Widener, Dolan, and the executors of the estate of W. L. Elkins in regard to the Anthony Brady checks for $111,652 which went to them. The Philadelphia explanation was that the checks were in payment of loans made by them to William C. Whitney, with interest. Each of them had lent Mr. Whitney $100,000, and they knew nothing of the source of the checks which he sent in payment.

Letters "Explain" Checks.

"Mr. Dolan and Mr. Widener," said Lawyer Ivins, "have written letters explaining that the money was received in payment of an indebtedness of William C. Whitney. That is interesting, but not nearly so much so as it would be if Mr. Dolan and Mr. Widener would come here and let me examine them in regard to the history of the Metropolitan street railway and the Metropolitan Traction company from 1892 to 1902."

The period referred to by Mr. Ivins was the one in which the consolidation and reorganization of the surface lines took place.

The Philadelphia explanation was the chief topic of conversation in Wall street today. Some persons recall that back in January, 1900, when Dolan and Widener say they made their loans, it was common talk that Mr. Whitney had become overextended in Third avenue and other Metropolitan ventures, and had borrowed funds from every available source. On the other hand, attention was called to the fact that Mr. Whitney had apparently lent himself $100,000 at the same time that he got accommodations from Dolan and Widener, and, furthermore, that he paid himself interest at the same rate that the Philadelphians got. The check which Mr. Whitney got in the Wall and Courtland street ferries deal was identical in amount with the ones that went to Philadelphia.

The Metropolitan Securities company's check for $965,000 was sent to Mr. Brady in payment for his $250,000 paper road on May 22, 1902.

Penalty Limit Five Years.

Lawyers who are interested in the traction situation have been looking up the law in regard to the statute of limitations, and they said today it wasn't altogether certain in their opinion that the statute would prevent the deal from being brought before the grand jury. The limit for any felony other than murder is five years.

President Vreeland of the Metropolitan has not been at the company's office since last Saturday, when his resignation as manager for the receivers was announced. He has closed his country place at Brewsters and is not at his city home. At the receivers' offices it was said today that Mr. Vreeland's exact whereabouts wasn't known, but that he had only gone away for a rest. It was expected that he would be back in town next week.

President Brings Down a Fine Buck at First Shot.

SHOWS HE HAS GOOD AIM.

Appetite of Executive Is Bully, as Cook Powell Can Testify.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—A 250 pound buck hangs outside the president's tent tonight, the first trophy of his hunt in the Louisiana canebrakes. The party was in pursuit of a bear when a fine specimen of deer which had been started by the dogs crossed the president's path at a distance of seventy-five to 100 yards.

In an instant the president's rifle was at his shoulder, all the other members of the party deferring to him. Taking quick aim, he fired. The shot went true to its mark. The deer plunged forward and fell, after running a few yards, although the president fired a second time. With this killing the camp will have a supply of venison for some time.

The president was congratulated by his fellow hunters on his marksmanship. Although disappointed in not getting a bear, he was delighted at bringing down a deer.

One thing the president has acquired, even if he thus far has failed to get a bear, is an enormous appetite, as life in the canebrakes has greatly increased his capacity for food. One of his first acts on reaching the camp was to make friends with Jack Powell, the colored cook, and the compliments which he bestows upon Jack's culinary art make him the proudest negro in Louisiana.

The way Jack can put up a meal of chicken gumbo soup, fried trout, venison, and hoecakes to make the hungry hunter happy would drive Mrs. Rorer way out of the cuisine. Given the proper ingredients, in three minutes Jack can compound a corn pone compared to which Mrs. Donald McLean's prize cakes taste like so much cypress sawdust.

Austrian Ship Giulia's Passengers and Crew Have an Awe Inspiring Voyage.

FLAMES RAGE HALF DAY.

Scores of Those on Board Fight in Boats, While Others Pray; Wellman Craft Lost.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Austrian steamship Giulia came into port today with 763 passengers, nearly all in the steerage, a cargo of grapes and figs, a crew of eighty men, and an experience which Capt. Cherubin says he never wants over again. The Giulia was on fire eight days out from Gibraltar and from 5:30 o'clock in the morning until after 5 in the afternoon the crew were fighting the flames, the ship was fighting a gale and high head seas, and the passengers were fighting for the boats.

The Giulia left Triest on Sept. 14. Early on Oct. 3 First Officer Joanni Ribarich was on the bridge and the wind was blowing a gale from the southwest. Seas often broke on board, but the Giulia is so arranged that the water runs off and does little damage. Ribarich saw a thin cloud of smoke coming out of a ventilator forward and traced it to No. 2 forward hold. He sent word to Capt. Cherubin and called all hands.

Passengers in Wild Scramble.

The hatch covers of No. 2 hold are 'tween decks and around these covers about 360 passengers were sleeping. When the sailors got the hatch covers off thick smoke belched out and then tongues of flame. At that there was a wild scramble of passengers from their berths. Some had partly dressed; others were in their night clothes. Women caught up their children and made for the deck. Men fought hard for what they thought would be the safest places. The scare soon got aft and the 700 odd passengers rushed on deck. Some prayed. Others rushed to the boats and in a twinkling had ripped off the canvas covers and crowded into the craft. There were twelve boats and as soon as these were crowded those who could not get in fought for the life rafts.

The crew had little time to give to the passengers. The officers tried to assure them that there was no danger, but concluded that while the passengers were on deck fighting each other they were out of the way of the men fighting the flames and so left them there with just sufficient guard to keep them from attempting to launch the boats.

It took twelve hours to conquer the flames and then there was about six feet of water in the hold and the vessel was rolling badly in the high seas. Tackle was rigged on the foremast and barrel after barrel of cargo was hoisted and dumped overboard. In all 1,500 barrels were turned loose on the Atlantic.

Wellman Boat Lost; Sixteen Drowned.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 10. — The arctic steamer Frithjof, which accompanied the Walter Wellman expedition to Spitsbergen, was lost off Cape Langanes, Iceland, Oct. 5. The captain and fifteen of her crew were drowned. The engineer clung to a plunk, on which he drifted ashore. The Frithjof was homeward bound to Norway, having been damaged by ice, and consequently was unable to withstand a storm.

WOMAN PILFERER SHIELDS HER PAL

"I'll Sacrifice Life Before I Reveal His Identity," Says Mrs. Romadka.

IS RELEASED ON BONDS.

Accused Woman Virtually Is Repudiated by Husband's Family in Milwaukee.

"I know I am going to lose my husband through this, but I don't care. They have broken my heart by taking my little Evelyn away. I need that child to keep me good. But I'll sacrifice my very life before I reveal the identity of Ralph Smith."

This was the reply received by Lieut. Larkin last evening while making a final effort to learn the name of the mysterious third person said to have figured in the burglaries committed by Mrs. Evelyn Caine Romadka, wife of Charles J. Romadka, a wealthy Milwaukee trunk manufacturer.

Today the police will make renewed efforts to locate the white man who is supposed to have led Mrs. Romadka into crime. Francis Reno, special agent for the Fidelity and Casualty company, has information that the woman had been seen in the company of a prosperous looking individual, who might be Smith, and hopes to have him in custody in a day or so. The negro confederate, Albert Jones, is still locked up.

Repudiated by Romadka Family.

Henry J. Killilea, attorney for Clement Romadka, issued a statement at night in Milwaukee which practically repudiates Mrs. Romadka as far as the other members of the family are concerned.

"She was never," the statement says, "a friend or even an associate of the women members of the family."

As to Mr. Romadka, the statement is made: "Her husband stands in duty bound to his wife to see her through these charges until their truth or falsity is established."

The word "until" in the statement is considered significant.

Released on $9,400 Bonds.

Mrs. Romadka was arraigned before Judge Sadler on five criminal charges and was bound over in the sum of $9,400 for a hearing on Tuesday. Immediately after her bond was signed she was bundled into a cab by John F. Donovan, her counsel, and driven away.

The cab stopped at the Sherman house long enough for Donovan to inquire for mail, and then sped away to the Northwestern station, where a train was taken ostensibly for Milwaukee, but possibly for some intermediate point.

The bond was furnished by Albert J. Ward, a stone contractor residing at 274 Fullerton avenue. He is a brother-in-law of Clement Romadka, the prisoner's brother-in-law. Ward swore he was worth $100,000 over all indebtedness.

An hour or so after Mrs. Romadka's departure the police received information that places her in a worse light than she had been in. There is a suspicion that she worked with a "jimmy" at one place, and she may have had two negro accomplices.

Mrs. W. L. Meyer, who conducts a rooming house at 2969 Michigan avenue, tells this story concerning the accused woman:

"She came to room at my house on July 11 and remained until Aug. 1. She departed of her own accord, but if she hadn't done so I likely would have ordered her out. I didn't like her actions.

"She slept late and remained out late at night. One evening at 7:30 I heard a noise down in the basement, and, thinking it was a stray dog, I went down to investigate. I was horror struck to find a negro, whom I now believe to be Jones, standing in the dark."

Beck Will Not Make Charge.

The police are displeased over the refusal of Clarence E. Beck to swear to a charge of burglary against the woman, and are taking this to mean that influential persons already are at work in the woman's interests. Beck has made an information charging the woman with receiving stolen goods, but this is not expected to hold now, since she has confessed to robbing the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Beck were summoned to the Harrison street police station with other complainants, but jumped into their cab and departed before the papers could be drawn up. Lieut. Larkin says he heard Beck say to his wife: "Come, let us go. We won't make any information against her." Beck says he has sufficient notoriety out of the case, and doesn't want to get in any deeper. It is understood that Reno may compel him to swear to the new charges.

David Pfaelzer, 4514 Forrestville avenue, and Mrs. Winifred Tuthill, 6514 Yale avenue, charged the woman with larceny. Mrs. Louise B. Rothwell, 385 St. Louis avenue; Mrs. Isabel Thornton, 858 Lawndale avenue; and Mrs. Ernestine Hill, 1427 Windsor place, charged her with burglary.

The larceny cases are those where Mrs. Romadka hired out as a nurse or governess, and then pilfered. The burglary cases are those where she found the doors unlocked, or unlocked them with keys furnished by the negro Jones, and made her getaway without being seen.

"Jimmy" Used in Robbery.

While Mrs. Romadka was being arraigned the police were informed that the house of Mrs. Blanche I. Webster, 3432 Forest avenue, was broken into with a "jimmy" on Aug. 28. A diamond ring, a watch, fob, and a pair of pearl opera glasses were stolen. The opera glasses were recovered from Mrs. Romadka's trunk in the Vendome hotel. The watch was recovered from a Clark street pawnbroker. Jones left it there for $12. Mrs. Romadka told the police that Jones gave her the opera glasses.

Mrs. Webster identified Jones as a negro she had seen in the vicinity of her home a week before the house was robbed. Jones insists Mrs. Romadka committed that "jimmy" robbery.

The white wife of Jones is a prisoner at the Harrison street station. She had some of the stolen goods in her possession and is to be "booked" today as an accessory to burglary.

Stories of St. Louis Robberies.

Telegrams received from St. Louis last night expressed the belief that Mrs. Romadka had pilfered houses there to the extent of $16,000 while serving as a housemaid.

One of the messages stated that the thief had a defective left eye. Both of Mrs. Romadka's eyes are perfect.

She made no mention of St. Louis in her confession and the police and her relatives are positive that the only place she operated outside of Chicago was Milwaukee, where she stole a sealskin sack.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Chouteau Dyer left St. Louis for Chicago last night to ascertain if Mrs. Romadka is the housemaid who disappeared simultaneously with $6,000 worth of jewelry Oct. 1.

Old Home Friends Amazed.

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Romadka case has aroused great interest in this city, where Mrs. Romadka was reared. The belief here is that the young woman is insane. On no other theory can her friends explain her conduct, particularly her acts of thievery and her associating with negroes. As a girl it is certain that she never gave any indications of any such tendencies.

Mrs. Romadka is the daughter of T. J. Caine, for years in the grocery business in this city. She lived the usual life of the daughter of well to do parents and her associates were children of the same class.

After completing the high school course here, the girl entered the Normal school in the training department. After a year, that of 1902-'03, she went to a small place near Port Washington and taught for a time in a district school.

After she gave up teaching she was for a time in Milwaukee, following some employment which, it is said, did not become known to the family until she returned home, and it was then that preparations were made for her marriage. The ceremony took place about a month later, May 8, 1904, at St. Peter's rectory. She was only 18 years old at the time.

Seven or Eight Big Paris Merchants Control Church Looters.

CLEWS TO BIGGER CRIMES.

Revelations Following Confession of Thief Startles All France.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Oct. 11, 3 a. m.—The Matin today quotes the magistrate at Clermont-Ferrand, who conducted the examination of Antoine Thomas, in custody there on the charge of stealing artistic treasures from churches, as saying that the gang, of which Thomas is a comparatively unimportant agent, is controlled by seven or eight great Paris art dealers, some of whose names already have been ascertained.

When the evidence is complete all the guilty persons will be arraigned, and there will be remarkable revelations, the Matin adds. The gang has innumerable subordinates.

The case is one of the most important that has occupied French justice for years, and the prosecution will unmask one of the most powerful organizations in the history of modern crime. Nearly every department in France is concerned. Every hour brings fresh details, which suggest that the authorities are getting on the track of even greater crimes than those already exposed.

Great Physique of Aged Emperor Gives Hope for His Recovery.

GENERAL TEMPER GOOD SIGN.

Royal Patient's Temperament Better than Medicine He Detests.

VIENNA, Oct. 10.—There was marked improvement today in the condition of Francis Joseph, the aged emperor of Austria and king of Hungary, who is suffering from bronchial catarrh.

During the day his majesty's fever receded and this evening it was reported that his temperature was normal. The cough continues, but the doctors say that the bronchitis may be cured within a week unless complications set in. It would not be unreasonable, however, to expect complications in view of the advanced age of the emperor-king, and the well known fact that he is prone to disregard medical advice.

Prof. Neusser, the famous Viennese doctor, bases his hope of the emperor's recovery on the strong physique of the patient. His majesty's appetite is slight in consequence of his cough, but he never was a hearty eater and the food he takes day by day is considered sufficient to keep up his strength. The good temper of the royal patient is regarded as another hopeful sign.

His majesty contracted bronchial trouble during the army maneuvers of last year. He was consequently advised to abstain from the rigors of military exercises this year, but he refused this counsel indignantly. Disregarding the hardships of the weather, he would remain for many hours in the saddle during the last maneuvers, often returning, to the dismay of his retinue, drenched to the skin.

CASSIE CHADWICK DEAD IN PRISON.

Woman Bank Wrecker Who Gained Thousands by Fraud Closes Life.

NO RELATIVES PRESENT.

Effort to Keep Her Alive with Stimulants Fails in Its Purpose.

Columbus, O., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, the Cleveland, O., woman who was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for bank wrecking, died at the Ohio penitentiary at 10:15 o'clock tonight.

Mrs. Chadwick's last illness dated back three weeks, when she suddenly collapsed during an interview with her son, Emil Hoover. She was confined to a cot in the hospital of the women's ward from that time until her death. The physicians declared she was the victim of a total nervous collapse, described as neurasthenia.

When it became apparent today that Mrs. Chadwick had not long to live her son, Emil, and her two sisters—Mrs. S. M. York of Cleveland and Mrs. Weston of Windsor, Canada—were summoned, and the prison physicians adopted heroic methods to keep their patient alive until their arrival. But the effort was in vain, as none of them was at the bedside when she died.

Was "Queen of Swindlers."

Born of lowly parents in 1857, at Eastwood, Ont., Mrs. Chadwick, then Elisabeth Bigley, began her crimes at an early age. Her first arrest was for forgery at Woodstock, Ont., in 1879. She was acquitted this time on the ground of insanity.

In 1883 she married Dr. Wallace S. Springstein at Cleveland, and he applied for divorce twelve days after the wedding.

Two years later she was married to an elderly Cleveland man named C. L. Hoover, and the next record of her was in 1890, when she was convicted of forgery at Toledo under the name of Mme. Devere, a fortune teller. She served three years of a nine years' sentence and was paroled by the late President McKinley.

From that time until 1896, when she was married to Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, member of a prominent Cleveland family, she lived with her sister in New York.

Many Involved in Crash.

It was after her marriage to Dr. Chadwick that she began the high financing that made her notorious throughout the country and resulted in the indictment of herself, her husband, two bank presidents, one managing director, and three cashiers on the charge of conspiracy, and the failure of the Oberlin (O.) bank.

The story was first brought to light by a suit filed by eastern creditors for sums aggregating $267,800, which she borrowed on the statement that she owned $5,000,000 in bonds and securities, held in trust for her by Ira Reynolds, secretary and treasurer of the Wade Park bank, Cleveland.

Immediately following this came the closing of the Oberlin bank, from which Mrs. Chadwick had borrowed $240,000—four times its capital stock. C. T. Beckwith and A. B. Spear, president and cashier of the institution, had also lent her $102,000 of their personal funds. As security Mrs. Chadwick gave notes for $750,000, purporting to be signed by men worth many millions.

The Wade Park bank was prevented from a crash like that of the Oberlin institution only by the efforts and at huge expense of its officers.

Then the other victims of the woman financier began to appear, some of the other loans being:

From Herbert D. Newton of Brookline, Mass., $190,800, without any security other than Mrs. Chadwick's personal notes.

From the American Exchange National bank, Cleveland, O., $29,000.

From the Euclid Avenue Savings and Trust company, Cleveland, $38,000.

From the Savings Deposit bank, Elyria, O., $10,000.

From J. D. Chadwick, Franklin, Pa., her husband's brother, $9,000.

Fertile in Making Pretexts.

Mrs. Chadwick obtained these loans on various pretexts. Here are a few of them:

That a rich uncle in New York was going to leave her several millions, and that a certain suit, in which she was involved, must be settled without publicity or her uncle would cut her out of his will.

That her husband was ill at Carlsbad and had cabled to her for money, but that the unfortunate indorsement of a Clevelander's note had left her temporarily without funds.

That an uncle with an imbecile son had left a fortune in Andrew Carnegie's trust, the principal to be paid to her on the son's death.

That this rich uncle had left her $7,500,000, but that ready money was needed in order to gain possession of it.

That the father of her child had settled $500,000 on him.

Mrs. Chadwick was arrested while in New York and taken to Cleveland for trial. Her husband also was arrested on his arrival from England, and six others, mostly officers of the Oberlin bank, were accused of being in on the deal. At the woman's trial the details of the gigantic crimes were brought out into the limelight, and all of the claims which she made shown to be false.

The "securities" upon which she obtained the loans were found to be worth only the paper they were written on. They were a note made payable to Cassie L. Chadwick for $5,000,000, and signed with the name of Andrew Carnegie, and a trust agreement for stocks valued at $10,246,000, alleged to have been delivered to Andrew Carnegie by Frederick B. Mason, deceased, an uncle of Mrs. Chadwick.

These "securities," placed in the Wade Park bank, formed the basis for all of Mrs. Chadwick's operations. Mr. Carnegie, however, not only denied he knew anything of the "securities," but declared he knew nothing of Mrs. Chadwick.

LONDON ATTACK AGAINST GERMANY

The Times Suddenly Begins a Crusade by Criticising the Chancellor.

HAGUE POLICY TARGET.

Alleged Motive of Trying to Isolate Britain Arouses English Organ.

LONDON, Oct. 11, 3 a. m.—The London Times has unexpectedly embarked on a remarkable anti-German crusade. Yesterday it made an attack editorially on Prince von Bülow, the German imperial chancellor, who is coming with Emperor William on his majesty's visit to England. The attack has been strongly resented by the London liberal papers.

Today in another editorial article it attacks strongly Germany's attitude at The Hague peace conference on the authority of its correspondent at The Hague, who declares that the fiasco of obligatory arbitration has been brought about by Germany's opposition.

The Times accuses German statesmen of a desire to isolate Great Britain, and says:

"The debates at The Hague have one conspicuous advantage, from which, if we are wise, we may profit. They have laid bare the degrees of sincerity and insincerity with which the several powers worship peace, and they have revealed, not obscurely, the fashion in which some of them hope, on occasion, to wage war."

HORSE KNOCKS DOWN A MAN; DRIVER PURSUED BY CROWD.

Pursuers Jump Into Express Wagon and Finally Overhaul the Fugitive—Other Accidents in Day in Chicago.

After the horse he was driving had knocked down and severely injured Michael Walsh at Wells and Locust streets early last night Louis Barsottie, 131 Milton avenue, endeavored to escape, but was pursued nearly a mile by a crowd of men and boys. Several of the pursuers jumped into an express wagon and urged the owner to follow Barsottie's vehicle. By these means the teamster was finally forced to surrender and turned over to policemen who took part in the chase. With Barsottie in the wagon was James Davis, 18 years old, 181 Gault court. Davis was also arrested.

Barsottie said:

"The horse ran away and I could not stop it until it was exhausted by its long run."

Other accidents caused death and injuries in Chicago yesterday.

CHARGE OF FRAUD IN WATERWAY TILT

Oratorical Storm at Springfield Brings Attempt to Discredit Drainage Board.

RAINEY SEES CORRUPTION

Allen Refers to Hill as "Mental Microbe" and Sherman and Chafee Spar.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—At the end of three days of heavy oratory on the waterway bill, the legislature finds itself the repository of a number of unpleasant charges against the Chicago sanitary district, alleging dishonesty and fraud on the part of officials. They have been made without attempt to offer proof, but for the purpose of discrediting the board and of showing that it is not safe to give it the power to build the three mile extension of the channel through Joliet as a part of the lakes to the gulf scheme.

In attempting to discredit the drainage board Congressman Henry T. Rainey, who took the responsibility for the charges, did not confine himself to the sanitary district, but pronounced all Chicago officialdom as corrupt. The more serious statements which Mr. Rainey permitted himself to make today charged:

That the sanitary district has made a fraudulent and "iniquitous" lease of land to the McCormick Harvester company.

That the financial accounts of the district are not open to public scrutiny and that the only source of information regarding them is an alleged financial report which is made to the legislature.

That the sanitary district is in co-operation with a real estate development company in the booming of land at Summit.

Working on Primary Bill.

While these and similar statements have occupied the attention of the house, the organization leaders have been busy planning a program. They have opened up the house for the introduction of bills, and a half dozen were introduced today. They are having a direct primary law drawn for introduction Tuesday. It is the opinion of Speaker Shurtleff, and it is said of Senator Gardner and other leaders in the senate, that a direct primary bill will have to be introduced.

They are said to be figuring on a scheme which will allow the organization to hold a convention in advance of the primaries to decide upon a slate and a platform and announce these as the choice of the party organization. Provision for this preliminary convention or caucus, of course, will not be in the bill, but it is understood that it is the intention of the politicians to make the primary law work in that fashion if they have to take one.

The law which is being drawn will provide for a system of plurality nominations for all offices, including Supreme court judges and members of party committees. It is the intention to have it introduced by Representative John G. Oglesby, chairman of the primary law committee of the house.

Another Day for Waterway Bill.

It is the intention to give one more day to the debate of the waterway bill. Attorney General Williams of the sanitary district, Congressman Lorimer, and Lyman G. Cooley will speak on Tuesday. It then is proposed to take the waterway bills and have the work of redrafting and amending them done in the committee of the whole. It is the intention to get the waterway proposition out of the road first and then take up whatever other subjects may be decided on by the steering committees of the two houses.

In the lower house the bars were put down this morning and any old kind of legislation can be started. To the disgust of the average legislator the chances for long and continued trouble look extremely good. Some of the members have announced their intention of refusing to return to Springfield until legislation has reached the stage of second or third reading, but it is likely that the unpleasant situation in which a stay at home in a downstate district will find himself with all his neighbors inquiring why he is not at Springfield, will work to produce a quorum.

Rainey Seems Shy of Proof.

Some of the democrats who have been backing Rainey in his attacks on the sanitary district have announced their intention of trying to get evidence against the sanitary trustees, especially in the alleged Summit land deal. Rainey had nothing that looked like proof. When he was questioned sharply by Representatives Hill and Hull of Chicago, he fell back on generalities or on the statement that "well informed friends had told him." He had the support of the democrats and of some downstate republicans who endeavored to make it almost impossible for the two Chicago men to question him, and at times were successful. Mr. Hull finally lost patience and managed to yell out above the noise:

"A man who makes the statements that all Chicago is corrupt and that all Chicago's streets have been given away or stolen, is not worth believing on anything. Such a statement marks everything he has said as untrue."

Rainey's exhibition was remarkable in several ways. He began talking yesterday afternoon and he used up the major portion of one sitting. He was ready to talk in the senate in the evening, but the senators adjourned. He started in talking again in the house this morning and he kept it up until that body adjourned. Then he said his physician had advised him not to speak, and that his physical condition had made it impossible for him to do the subject justice.

Charges Fraud in Lease.

His attack on the lease to the McCormick company he made with the preface that he didn't know anything about it and wished merely to ask questions, and he ended by declaring that the contract had been obtained by fraud.

"Do you know," Mr. Hull asked, "that the contract was made before the present board went in office?"

"If so," said Mr. Rainey, "it is the duty of the present board to have it annulled or to disregard it."

"Would you advise the disregarding of contractual relations?" asked Mr. Hull.

"If they were there by fraud, yes," Mr. Rainey answered.

When he asserted that the finances of the board were not open to inspection, Mr. Hull asked him if he were willing to stand the responsibility for that statement. He replied that he was. He claimed to have evidence that the district was interested in the booming of real estate values at Summit, saying that the real estate experts of the board had written an article boosting the real estate of that locality, and that the advertisements of the board were written with this intention.

Mr. Hill endeavored to pin him down to some of the statements of his argument against the bill which the Chicago representative considered inconsistent. Representative Allen came to the congressman's rescue with so many interruptions that Hill could hardly get started. Mr. Allen finally addressed Mr. Hill as a "mental microbe," and announced that he didn't care to sit there while one man's belated intelligence caught up with the procession.

Representative Smejkal, chairman of the committee of the whole, had to use his gavel frequently and got Mr. Allen under control with great difficulty.

Sting in Solons' Exchanges.

It may be the fact that the championship ball games have been played in Chicago while this unpleasant session of the legislature has detained statesmen in Springfield, that has caused unusual acidity in the legislative language. For some reason or other there has been enough acidity in three days to last an entire session.

Mr. Sherman started it off by scolding the assembly. Mr. Chafee followed suit by saying that Mr. Sherman's stomach was out of order. Mr. Sherman replied by saying that it took an idea too long to pass a given spot in Mr. Chafee's brain. Mr. Allen endeavored solicitously to have 10,000 copies of the governor's message printed "for Mr. Deneen's campaign purposes." Mr. Shurtleff charges the governor with working secretly for an adjournment without action to provide him with an "issue." Mr. Rainey descends like a ton of words on everything bearing the name of Chicago.

Mr. Sherman listened to an hour of Mr. Rainey and announces privately that "they are talking the waterway dry."

Reminded of Satan and Judea.

Finally Mr. Allen reached the climax of his language by informing the republican steering committee of the house that the governor's message with its unexpectedly large number of recommendations reminded him of Satan on the high mountain offering the kingdoms of the earth as an inducement to follow him.

"And the son of a sea cook," said Mr. Allen, "didn't own an acre of land in Judea."

The language has been growing more complicated and involved every day, and the end is not yet. It apparently is the intention of the legislature to work. A bill for the appropriation of $50,000 for contingent expenses was introduced in the house this morning. A number of other bills were let in, including one by Representative Lantz instructing county treasurers to pay over the money to judges and clerks of election who served in the primaries of Aug. 4, 1906, and whose pay was stopped by the injunction suit which finally ended in overturning the primary law. If the judges and clerks have followed the usual custom the vouchers probably are in the hands of scalpers.

Bill to Amend Election Law.

Representative McKinlay of Chicago introduced a bill to amend the election law and allow two hours' leave of absence from work for all elections, instead of merely for general elections.

Representative Pattison, minority leader, asked to have his resolution calling on Gov. Deneen for an explanation of his wishes regarding primary legislation made a special order for Tuesday, and this action was taken. It will be brought up then. The governor is prepared to receive such a request kindly and to inform the legislature that his recommendations would be for the passage of a direct plurality primary law for the nomination of candidates, without the intervention of conventions. It is a bill of this character that is being drawn by Mr. Oglesby, assisted by lawyers in Attorney General Stead's office.

The measure will have the appearance of a republican organization bill, but in this case, if it goes in, it will mean nothing more than that the republicans do not want the democrats to get to the front with a direct primary bill if there is any chance on earth of one having to be passed before the legislature adjourns. Thus far the only direct primary bills which have been presented during the last two sessions of the legislature have been introduced by democrats.

Good for Foreign Return Postage.

International response coupons were placed on sale yesterday at the Chicago postoffice. The rule authorizing them went into effect on Oct. 1, but the arrival of Chicago's first bunch was delayed.

A person who desires to send a letter of inquiry to any country in the postal union may inclose one of these coupons and it will be exchangeable for a stamp for the reply. The coupons cost 6 cents.

It is impossible to buy foreign stamps at American postoffices, and the stamps of the United States are not good in foreign countries. The coupons, however, will be recognized in nearly every country on earth and will be for sale in all postoffices. A lively demand for the coupons is expected from business men.

The face of the coupon is in French and English. On the reverse the following inscription appears in English, Spanish, German, and Italian:

"This coupon can be exchanged for a postage stamp of the value of 5 centimes or the equivalent of that sum in countries which have adopted the arrangement."

NAME DELEGATES FOR CANNON

Eighth District, Michigan, Holds First Convention in Campaign.

FIGHT ON TAFT REVEALED.

Beet Sugar Interests Shown as Opposed to Secretary for Presidency.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The presidential candidacy of Speaker Joseph Cannon was indorsed after a struggle, and two delegates to the national republican convention were named by a convention of the Eighth congressional district, held here today. This, the first convention to select national delegates, was a lively affair. It revealed the bitter opposition of the Michigan beet sugar interests to the candidacy of Secretary Taft.

Congressman J. W. Fordney was the champion of Speaker Cannon and it needed all the eloquence he could crowd into three separate speeches to bring the convention round to his way of thinking. The conservative element at the convention vigorously opposed indorsing any particular candidate before the call for the national convention had been issued.

The first resolution put before the convention indorsed the administration of President Roosevelt and urged the nomination of a candidate who would carry out his policies.

Chairman Savage of the Saginaw delegation then sprung the Fordney resolution indorsing Cannon. The resolution said:

"In view of the reiterated refusals of President Roosevelt to permit the use of his name in connection with the next presidential nomination for that high office, we earnestly recommend to the delegates elected by this convention the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, who has so ably supported the policies of President Roosevelt."

After a long and vigorous argument a roll call finally was necessary to have this resolution carried.

The convention then elected Congressman Fordney and Postmaster E. C. Dewey as national delegates. Support was pledged to F. W. Gilchrist of Alpena for delegate at large.

Hear a Parable.

In one of these United States there lives a "very conservative" manufacturer. He makes a patented article of general need, which has a small, steady sale.

If this man would expend as much effort in advertising as he does in seeing that his employees waste no twine he would win a great advertising success, but he hangs on to his dimes so tight that they cannot go out and bring back dollars.

One of three things will happen to him.

He may see the error of his way and allow us to make his goods famous and himself rich.

He may keep on as he is going, live fairly comfortably, and die a Might-Have-Been.

Some one else with a similar article may get ahead of him with an advertising campaign and crush him against an unsympathetic brick wall.

But we have hopes for him yet.

FOSS IS BOOMED FOR SENATE SEAT.

Brand New Candidacy Is Revealed by Petitions for the Congressman.

VIEWED AS COMPROMISE.

Support Said to Have Been Given by Deneen, Lorimer, and Busse Factions.

While the political caldron is seething in Springfield it has leaked out that a brand new republican candidate for United States senator is being unobtrusively groomed in Chicago. The new entry is Congressman George Edmund Foss of the tenth district.

The evidence of the steps being taken to bring out Mr. Foss as a candidate for the office to which Senator Albert J. Hopkins aspires to succeed himself came to light through the circulation of petitions calling on the congressman to enter the race. The information became current last night, but Mr. Foss could not be reached with an inquiry as to the authority for the report.

Three Hundred Petitions Out.

There is no disputing the fact, however, that Foss petitions for United States senator are in circulation. They are in the hands of friends of the congressman. So far their circulation has been confined to Evanston and in Chicago to Lake View. One of the circulators said 300 petitions had been distributed and that signatures are being actively solicited. One of the petitions that was exhibited in proof of the report bore the names of ten signers.

There has been more or less rumor of late that Mr. Foss is as willing as Barkis ever was. His name has been frequently mentioned by his friends as a senatorial possibility, and the congressman, so far as is known, has taken no steps to quell the incipient enthusiasm before it is too late. It is taken for granted, therefore, that he is aware of the circulation of the petitions and approves of the efforts being made in his behalf.

Chicago Well Represented.

With the entry of Foss Chicago will be well represented in the senatorial race. Senator Hopkins lives in Aurora, but makes his living practicing law and politics principally in Chicago. William E. Mason, who also is a candidate for Mr. Hopkins' position, is a resident of Chicago.

The friends of Congressman Foss view him as the great compromise candidate on whom the rival factions can unite. How far the rival factions share this view remains to be seen. The Foss followers say they have received encouragement not only from Deneen lieutenants but from the Lorimer faction and from friends of Mayor Busse.

LORIMER TALKS ON WATERWAY.

Congressman Scheduled to Speak on the "Ship Channel" Before Hamilton Club on Oct. 15.

Congressman Lorimer will make an address before the Hamilton club on the evening of Oct. 15 on the subject of "The Deep Waterway." The congressman's friends in the club will give him a dinner preceding the speech.

Mr. Knight, president of the club, has arranged an interesting program for ladies' night, Oct. 17. The subject for discussion is "The New Gospel in Criminology." Addresses will be made by Judges Cleland and Sadler, and by J. J. McManaman, attorney for the Juvenile court.

BROWN'S CANDIDACY INDORSED.

Fayette Republican Committee Approves Vandalia Man for Secretary of State.

Vandalia, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Fayette county republican committee today indorsed the candidacy of J. J. Brown of Vandalia for the nomination of secretary of state. Representatives were present from the ten counties in this congressional district. Senator Hopkins and W. A. Northcott spoke.

TRIBUTE TO DENEEN'S RULE

Charities Conference Told He Has Recovered $321,000 for State.

NO SHORTAGES UNDER HIM.

Accounts of Charitable Institutions Now Stand Closest Scrutiny.

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Col. Frank D. Whipp, state institution auditor, addressing the charities conference convention today on "Business Administration of State Institutions," said:

"Through the efforts of Gov. Deneen in having the accounts of the various state institutions audited the state has recovered over $150,000 since I have had charge of the work of auditing. This sum does not include the claim against the ex-auditors and ex-treasurers, amounting to $321,000, or the claim against the Illinois Central railroad. It is noteworthy that during the governor's administration there has been no shortage in the accounts of any of the officials of the state charitable institutions."

Conference Gets a Shock.

At a meeting of thirty-five superintendents of county poor farms held at the conclusion of the afternoon session at the school for the deaf, S. D. Welser of the Hancock county farm injected a bomb into the hitherto quiet sessions of the conference by declaring he thought the county superintendents were not interested in pathological discussions or scientific treatises on the education of the blind and deaf. What they wanted to know, he said, was how better to care for the poor and how to improve the methods of poor farm management.

Secretary W. C. Graves replied that the purpose of the meeting was to organize so that the county superintendents could find their rightful place. It might be, he suggested, that the proper place for the poor farm superintendents was with the organization of county clerks and supervisors instead of with the state board of charities. The suggestion met with favor and a committee on organization was appointed.

One Almshouse Condemned.

S. T. Metcalf, superintendent of the Sangamon county almshouse, read a paper on "The Model Almshouse." Other speakers were Dr. C. W. Hart, superintendent of the St. Charles school for dependent boys, Mrs. Ophelia L. Amight of the Geneva school for girls, and Dr. W. H. C. Smith of Godfrey.

A committee of ten from the conference visited the Morgan county almshouse today and declared conditions were such that the building should be razed. Over 125 visiting delegates are in attendance at the conference. Secretary W. C. Graves says it is one of the best conferences that has been held.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Harvard students who turn up their trousers, turn back the brims of their hats, and smoke cigarets are idiotic, according to Mayor Wardwell of Cambridge.

In an address to 200 young men at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. the mayor advised his audience to be sincere, energetic young men with brains and said:

"Do not pattern yourself after the Harvard students. In following them you are accepting them solely on their clothes—their exterior. Any man who does not know enough to turn the brim of his hat down ought not to have brains enough to be at college. Be a real man and act like one."

OFFER OF HARTJE SPURNED BY WIFE

Four Propositions of Similar Nature Made Before, She Declares.

NOT AFRAID OF CHARGES.

Millionaire's Counsel Will Not Oppose Extradition of Tom Madine.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje has broken silence, and, in a statement, today answered many of the rumors concerning the latest phases in the divorce case brought by her husband, Augustus Hartje, the millionaire paper manufacturer. Mrs. Hartje is now at Ligonier, Pa., with her children, Scotty and Mary Louise. Regarding Hartje's statement that he would provide for her for life if she would admit that the charges against her were true, Mrs. Hartje said:

"Ah, yes, his generous offer! No, no, I can't accept such a generous offer. Does he expect me, innocent as I am, to admit that I am guilty? I would not do such a thing, if he were ready to give me every dollar of his fortune. If I had been disposed to bring this matter to an end I could have done so several months ago. Mr. Hartje's agents have made me four different offers of a settlement since I have been living in Ligonier, and they were anxious to get my signature to their proposition.

Act as Sleuths, Then Agents.

"These efforts to get me to settle have been negotiated through persons hired by Mr. Hartje's lawyers, and all of them were made after these same persons had been acting as detectives and watching my every movement in hopes of securing some evidence against me. Failing in that, they came to me with offers of settlement.

"The last offer was made to me only about two weeks ago, and consisted of a positive offer of $10,000 a year for the rest of my life. According to its terms Mr. Hartje was ready to pay all the expenses of the trial, pay for all my expenses since I separated from him, and educate the children in such schools as I should select. I was to have the privilege of being with them whenever I chose, and when they reached the age of decision they were to be allowed to choose between us.

"In return I was to allow Mr. Hartje to secure his divorce and drop the conspiracy cases and all minor suits. That seems to me like a much more tempting offer than the one he now refers to, but I refused it without hesitation."

Does Not Fear Testimony.

"What do you think of these new letters and the alleged testimony which your husband's counsel has obtained?"

"Please don't ask me about these things," she answered. "It is dreadful to be accused of such things, but I cannot say anything about them now, except that, while it is terrible to have those awful things said, I have no fear of anything Mr. Hartje can bring up from the past or any charges that he may bring against me. I have done nothing to be ashamed of and was a true wife to him."

Mrs. Hartje then told of Hartje's efforts to induce her not to leave him. She said that her husband had threatened to kill her if she left, and when she was finally ready to go he said:

"Well, it won't do you any good. You'll never get a divorce. I'll buy the judge, I'll buy the jury, and I'll get the children."

Attorney J. Scott Ferguson of the counsel of Mr. Hartje today said that no efforts would be taken to prevent Mrs. Hartje's side from extraditing Tom Madine from Ireland.

The arguments before the Superior court to have the case reopened will be heard next week, and a decision within twenty-four hours thereafter is expected.

"PEACE MARCH" AT EVANSTON, BUT FOOTBALL IS CHEERED.

No Barbarous Outbreaks During Celebration of Northwestern Students, Who, However, Remember Old Sport.

College night at Northwestern university last night, with its parade 1,000 strong and its yells and speeches at the conclusion of the march, proved a great contrast to such affairs in previous years, which have frequently ended in rioting.

Although the police were prepared for a hard night's work in stopping fights, their services were not required. The parade, in which the girl students were well represented, started from the campus at University place and Chicago avenue, near the Evanston Academy hall.

After parading about the streets, headed by a brass band, the marchers returned to Academy hall, where they listened to addresses by professors and students. Capt. F. Johnson of the sophomore football team announced himself in favor of the old rule of one team to represent the university. The students cheered his speech.

SEEK TO SAVE CEMETERY QUIET.

German Lutherans Again Aroused Over Amusement Resort Beside Burying Ground at Harlem.

The German Lutherans of Chicago are rallying again for the protection of the quiet and sanctity of their cemetery in Harlem. A year ago they had the same fight on their hands and won. They hope to do as well this time.

The cemetery is between Desplaines avenue and Harrison street, running up to the right of way of the Aurora and Elgin interurban line, and just across the tracks is some land which last year the Beach Amusement company sought to turn into an amusement park. The Lutherans objected, and their objections were so strong that the company found it impossible to raise the money to float its enterprise.

"We thought that ended it," said Ald. Beilfuss, who represents the cemetery association, "but the other day we found that the village authorities had granted a license for the Harlem Fair Grounds and Baseball company for the same land. The license allows the company to hold agricultural fairs, poultry shows, give baseball games, and establish mechanical amusement devices.

"We have no way of opposing them except by the force of public opinion, making it unprofitable for anybody to invest money in the enterprise."

"Wonderland Villa" will be opened to the public amid much pomp and illumination tomorrow night. It will occupy part of the block bounded by Superior, State, and Cass streets, and Chicago avenue. Already a number of tents in which the shows will be stationed are erected, lending a circusy aspect to the site. It promises to be all the name implies.

To help finance his part of the villa, the Rev. Frank M. O'Brien, with the assistance of some of the church women, gave an entertainment and dance last night in the clubhouse of Marquette council, Knights of Columbus, 390 Dearborn avenue.

"Wonderland Villa" will be given for the benefit of the Holy Name cathedral. It will compare with "Juneville on the Pike," the successful benefit given by St. Cecelia's church, Forty-sixth street and Grand boulevard, last June, and the "County Fair," given later by a north side church. It will last three weeks.

Entertainment Aids the Villa.

The entertainment last night was a success. The hall was crowded. Some uneasiness was caused by one of the singers, Miss Bessie O'Brien, member of the Holy Name cathedral choir, being an hour late. The cab sent after Miss O'Brien went to the wrong address.

Miss O'Brien sang two soprano solos. Miss Gertrude Bartholme sang a contralto solo. Readings were given by Miss Mae Reilly and Miss Mabel Hannah. Miss Frances Ratty and Miss Ethel Sullivan also appeared on the program. "Candy girls" with full line of talk and goods did a thriving business throughout the evening.

The closing number was a selection, "Ode to the Holy Father," by the Cathedral Boys' choir. After the entertainment the chairs were cleared away and a dance ensued.

The "Wonderland Villa" will be mainly the result of the efforts of Fathers O'Brien, McDonald, and Phelan of Holy Name cathedral. The ground space was divided between them. Each chose his corps of workers and devised plans of shows and booths which occupy his grounds. The features will be numerous. A corn palace will be the leading attraction in Father O'Brien's territory. Here rustic life and amusements will be reproduced. All kinds of farm products will be on sale. A special attraction will be a product of George Ade's Indiana farm, donated by Mr. Ade. Just what it will be remains a mystery. Some say a "razorback," others a bull pup.

Women in Charge of Booths.

Miss Katherine Brown will have a fancy booth. Mrs. M. G. McGee will superintend a pillow booth, and Miss Maude Wilson will have a doll booth with a prize doll up for raffle.

"Bachelor's Night in the Green Kettle" is to be a special feature on Wednesday night. In the "kettle," which will be a correct representation of a French tea room, well known north side young women, in French costumes, will take care of the wants of the "bachelors."

Tells Illinois Bankers He Will Be as Able as We to Guard Against Evil.

AIMS BLOW AT CROAKER.

Judge Mack Talks on Negotiable Paper; Chicago Gets Convention of 1908.

Moline, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—"Don't forget this," said "Uncle Joe" Cannon in an optimistic burst over the coming generation to the seventeenth annual convention of the Bankers' Association of Illinois today, "that those who will follow us will be quite as good as we are and quite as able as we to guard against evil."

Continuing, he said: "Bankers, keep your heads and continue to do business at the same old place. Correct evils where evils exist, but when some one throws his coat tails over his head and starts agonizing, let him agonize while you go on about your business conservatively. We are doing first rate, and we are enforcing the laws. Our chief executive seems pretty apt at keeping his oath to see that the laws are enforced."

Mack on Negotiable Instruments.

Judge Julian W. Mack of Chicago delivered an analytical discourse on the negotiable instruments law which passed the last legislature and became law July 1. He explained the advantages of the new law and emphasized the necessity of such a statute, which he said is in effect a codification of the best features of the common law regulations prevailing in various parts of the country.

Chicagoan Elected President.

The session came to a close with the election of the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—August Blum, Chicago.
Vice president—James McKinney, Aledo.
Secretary—F. P. Judson, Chicago.
Treasurer—W. G. Cathcart, Lyons.

The 1908 convention will be held in Chicago in December of that year.

RUN ON MINNEAPOLIS BANK; PRESIDENT SAYS IT'S SOLVENT

Farmers and Mechanics' Savings Institution Suffers $400,000 Withdrawals.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 10.—A run on the Farmers and Mechanics' bank of this city, which has been developing for several days, culminated today when about $200,000 was drawn out. During the week $400,000 has been withdrawn out of total deposits of about $18,000,000. As a result of the run a statement was issued by the clearing house committee stating that the bank is in excellent condition.

"The bank is solvent beyond a doubt," said John De Laittre, president of the institution. "It holds no mortgages or bonds that it would be willing to sell. No trustee of the bank and no member of the family of a trustee owes the bank a dollar. All depositors will be paid dollar for dollar, and the general feeling among them is one of confidence."

Alaskan Bank Closes Doors.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 10.—The H. D. Reynolds bank at Valdez, Alaska, yesterday closed its doors. Seattle bankers say the failure will not affect Seattle's financial institutions and that the money Reynolds owes Seattle merchants will be paid.

Boston and New England capital, furnished largely by school teachers, formed the basis of Reynolds' bank.

St. Paul Road and Northwestern "L" People Inspect Proposed Connecting Link Today.

The initial steps towards connecting the Evanston branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road with the Northwestern "L" will be taken today. A special train bearing officials of the roads will leave the Quincy street station on the "L" at 10 o'clock this morning and be transferred at Evanston and Lawrence avenues to a train on the St. Paul tracks which will take the party to Ainslie street, in Evanston, where the first trolley pole will be set in place.

Public Land Commission to Consider Encroachments on City Land During Twenty-five Years.

Chairman McCoid has called for 2 o'clock this afternoon a meeting of the public lands commission, recently appointed by Mayor Busse to investigate alleged encroachments of steam railways and other corporations on city property. Mr. McCoid said he had discovered unmistakable evidence that nearly every steam railway company in the city has in the last twenty-five years appropriated without authority or compensation many streets and alleys.

Four Matinees in Aid of Home.

Four matinées at the Garrick theater for the benefit of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children, 521 West Adams street, were announced yesterday for Nov. 11, 12, 14, and 15. The plays will be "The Miser," "Rosmersholm," "The Triumph of Youth," and "The Blot on the 'Scutcheon."

RICHARD BARNARD

MRS RICHARD BARNARD

Fifty years of married life in Chicago will be celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barnard, 162 Thirty-sixth street, next Monday evening. They were married in this city Oct. 14, 1857, and have resided in Chicago ever since. The ceremony was performed in the New England church, Indiana and Wabash (now State) streets, by the Rev. Samuel C. Bartlett. Mr. and Mrs. Barnard have three children, Dr. Hayden S. Barnard, Mrs. Joseph Haven, and Mrs. S. A. Badger. Mr. Barnard came to Chicago in 1852, and was actively engaged in business until 1895, when he retired.

'PAY AS YOU ENTER,' BUT NOT JUST NOW

Action of Langley Avenue Residents Prevents Operation of New Cars Nov. 1.

SAVE CARRIER PRIVILEGE.

Ordinance Amendment Considered Which Will Settle the "Free Rides" Question.

The promise of the Chicago City company to install 300 of its new type of car, the "pay as you enter" kind, Nov. 1, is not likely to be kept. The company pleads that the fault will not be with it, and blames the local property owners in Langley avenue who are opposing the loop around its Thirty-eighth street barns.

"We will have the cars here on time," said President Mitten yesterday, "and had hoped to get them in service by Nov. 1. They would have given the entire south side the additional service it needs. But what good is a car if you can't get it out of the barn? That is the thing we are up against now.

"The reason for the loop in Cottage Grove and Langley avenues and Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth streets was to give us the access to our barns which was necessary to get the cars in and out. The people in Langley avenue have delayed the matter, so the advent of the new cars will have to be delayed also. I am sorry, because I wanted those new cars put in service on time."

The employment of men on traction construction work on the south side reached high water mark yesterday. The pay rolls of the company showed 1,683 men at outside employment in Indiana, Wentworth, Cottage Grove, Vincennes, and South Chicago avenues and State and Forty-third streets.

May Amend Ordinances.

An amendment to the traction ordinances, intended to cover the much mooted matter of carrying letter carriers in uniform free, is to be introduced in the next council meeting. It resulted from a conference held in Mayor Busse's office yesterday noon. At it were Postmaster Campbell, Superintendent of City Delivery Stewart for the carriers, and General Manager John M. Roach of the Union Traction company. President T. E. Mitten of the Chicago City road sent word that, as long as the ordinances were not impaired legally, he would consent to anything.

As the ordinances stand now, the postoffice department pays the street car companies $10,500 a year for its carriers who use the cars in their business, with the provision that all carriers in uniform can ride free, whether on postoffice business or not. It is also agreed that when the number of carriers is increased the pay to the companies should be increased accordingly.

Appropriation Exhausted.

Lately seventy-six new carriers were appointed, which added a few dollars to the $10,500, but it happens this sum is the entire appropriation, and the postoffice cannot go any further. Under the strict reading of the ordinances the carriers would have to lose their right to ride free when on personal business.

It was agreed, however, the matter should be patched up somehow, and Ald. Foreman agreed to bring in an ordinance which would get around the trouble.

"Shoemanship"
or mere salesmanship?

It is a matter of shoe history that those department stores which have tried selling shoes of the grades we sell have not made a success of it.

The reason is that a shoe "department" is fundamentally lacking in the element of service that must go with the sale of fine shoes to make them really worth the prices asked.

Shoes at 12.00 that do not fit both the foot and the figure are not worth much more than ill-fitting shoes at any other price.

It is almost as easy to make misfits in good shoes as in cheap ones.

To sell really fine shoes, properly, requires more than salesmen—it requires shoe-men.

The intelligent, interested, personal service of the owners of the business is quite as much an element in our notable success as are the very fine grades of shoes we carry.

Breakfast Monotony

—the same old chops, or bacon and eggs, and biscuit, for breakfast—may be avoided. Try

Fruit (preferably cooked)
Four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with cream or milk,
Eggs, one or two, poached or soft boiled,
Cup of Postum Food Coffee with cream and sugar,
Toast, one or two slices, nice and crisp.

This will give you an ideal combination of the three principal food elements—proteids, carbohydrates and fats—in the most easily digestible form.

And it means a wide awake individual with energy and a clear head to make a stir in the world; it replaces that dull, sluggish feeling which so often follows the too-much-meat-and-biscuit breakfast.

The man who has work to do can't afford to be overloaded with the kind of food that requires undue effort on the part of his digestive organs for a time, and leaves him with a "gone feeling" just about the time of day when he needs his best mental and physical powers.

Grape-Nuts food affords real strength of mind and body with little effort (or waste force) in getting it converted in the system into energy and staying power—the power to act and endure.

BELMONT'S FEDERATION.

Members of the National Civic federation who, unlike Mr. August Belmont, were not behind the scenes must be profoundly disgusted by this week's revelations. They had believed that when their organization set out to make an elaborate study of municipal ownership the men who suggested it were actuated by a desire for truth. There may have been members who doubted the wisdom of the investigation, but they, not being on the inside, had no suspicion of the motives which actuated the men who originated the project.

Now it appears that the inquiry into municipal ownership—an inquiry which was to be free from prejudice or bias—was gotten up to serve the purposes of Mr. August Belmont, a traction magnate. The largest contributor to the fund raised to cover the cost of the investigation was a traction company with which Mr. Belmont had intimate relations.

Nobody has paid much attention to the reports of the "experts" as far as published. No attention will be paid to future reports, because the whole investigation has been tainted. The trail of Mr. Belmont is over it all.

Manifestly the National Civic federation, once an ambitious and useful organization, is no longer of service to the public. It may regain some of its old usefulness if it can throw off Mr. Belmont and convince the public that he has lost all power to guide its policy. At present it is his federation, and whatever move it may make or measure it may recommend will be taken as some new scheme of Mr. Belmont.

If the federation cannot get rid of him after this last exposure, members who do not wish to be regarded as approving his peculiar methods should lose no time in getting out and repudiating him and his works.

GOOD ROADS.

The movement for better country roads in Illinois received an impetus at the banquet of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. A call will be issued for a state convention to be held at Springfield early in 1908 for the consideration of this important subject. An appeal will be made to commercial, industrial, and agricultural associations throughout the state to send delegates. If this appeal meets a cordial response there will be a gathering of representative citizens who ought to be able to formulate some definite plans for systematic road building in all parts of the state.

The need of better roads is easily shown from many points of view. The comparison of the total cost of hauling farm products with the value of such products indicates the great economic loss which attends poor roads. The same thing is true of the output of the factories. The cost of getting materials to the railroad station or the market is entirely disproportionate to the net returns to farmer or manufacturer.

The isolation of the farmer has been one of the things which have made the agricultural life unpopular. This is in large measure due to the lack of good roads. Commercially, industrially, socially, the farmer and the manufacturer would be benefited if the highways were in as good condition as they easily might be.

The present situation is in large degree unnecessary. The good roads movement does not mean a certain increase in taxes. It aims rather toward intelligent use of the money already provided by the taxes. These funds have not been used wisely. There has been a great amount of economic waste, some students of the situation declaring that fifty cents of every dollar yields no returns to the taxpayer. If a large number of earnest people interested in the matter were to meet in convention and have the possibilities fully explained something definite and practical ought to be the result.

In connection with this movement more attention should be given to the provisions of the state law under which the inmates of penitentiaries may be used in the manufacture of tile and culvert pipe for road drainage and in the preparation of material for road building and ballasting. These materials are furnished free by the state highway commission, and there is provision for their transportation to the places where they are needed without cost to the taxpayers. If the state laws relating to this subject were utilized the problem of suitable material for the roadbed—a serious one in many parts of Illinois—would be much simplified.

It is not money that is needed so much as intelligent use of funds already provided. The lack of material is not prohibitive. What is wanted to make the good roads movement effective is a general feeling that the prosperity of the state is restrained by the lack of good highways and that under wise supervision, without any great addition to the taxes of the individual, a marked improvement may be made. Such a result is quite likely to follow the meeting of a state convention for discussing this greatest of internal needs.

PRIMARY LEGISLATION.

The primary law of 1898, which has been revived by the decision of the Supreme court setting aside the law of 1906, contains provisions which the court, in passing upon later acts, has held to be unconstitutional. If anybody were to attack the law of 1898 it would probably share the fate of its predecessors. Then there would be a reversion to the old style free and easy primaries, acceptable to many of the bosses, but hateful to the people.

This is another reason why the general assembly should take up in earnest the ungrateful task of framing a new primary law. The Supreme court gives the legislature much discretion in some directions. It can do away entirely with delegates and conventions, providing for the direct nomination of all candidates at the primaries. It can retain the delegates and give voters an opportunity to express their preference for candidates. It can limit the activity of the voters to the selection of delegates.

The Supreme court has said plainly that whatever may be the system adopted the county committees cannot be permitted to take part in its administration. They cannot even be allowed to lay out—and gerrymander—delegate districts. No power of any kind can be delegated by the legislature to such private organizations as county committees. The ancient, but not always honorable, trade of committeeman has been dealt a blow. Places on committees may not be so desirable henceforth.

There are some people who will be content with nothing short of the directest kind of direct primaries. The majority will be content if they get absolutely fair primaries of some kind—primaries as honestly conducted as are regular elections. If the members of the general assembly are not controlled by politicians who do not want fair primaries, a measure that would be acceptable to most of the voters who attend primaries can be agreed on in a week or ten days.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

Chief Shippy has ordered Assistant Chief Schuettler to put a stop to gambling in the business district. He will obey orders with zeal and intelligence. He began on Wednesday by pulling out a number of telephones which were used for gambling purposes, and he will not stop until he has rooted them all out and driven off the men behind them. Only stealthy and petty forms of gambling will survive.

The business district is in capable hands. If other parts of the city are equally fortunate, if all of Chief Shippy's subordinates are as loyal as Schuettler, gamblers will find their occupation practically at an end in Chicago.

The enforcement of ordinances relating to disorderly saloons, gambling, etc., is a simple matter when the police, from the superintendent down to patrolman, endeavor to enforce them. Chief Shippy says that the laws shall be obeyed. His recent order indicates that if any of his subordinates do not coöperate heartily with him he will get after them.

In a little more time he can find the weak spots in the force, and ordinances which have usually been a dead letter in nearly all parts of the city can be enforced everywhere.

CEMETERIES AND BEER GARDENS.

A few months ago an effectual protest was made against the establishment of an amusement park in the peaceful neighborhood of two cemeteries lying near the Desplaines river. The effort to bring riot of mirth from the careless living to disturb the silence of the dead has been repeated. No wonder the people of Forest Park and the families who go to lay flowers on the graves of their kin in Concordia or Waldheim are indignant.

There is enough idle land to cover with merry-go-rounds and scenic railways without intruding upon the neighborhood of God's acre. Beer gardens and dancing pavilions are numerous enough. It would afford the mourner by the tomb ground for moralizing on the brevity and unsubstantiality of pleasure to listen to the strains of the waltz and the shouts of the frolic makers while his eye rested upon the inscriptions showing where the young as well as the old lay buried. But the visitor to the graveyard does not go there to moralize, but to shut out the world and be alone with memories. Revelry is an intrusion, a sacrilege.

The local authorities should prevent the contemplated outrage. If they fail, they should be interred politically, and the utmost powers of the courts should be used to defend the widows, the orphans, and the grieving parents who wish their dead to lie in silent places.

TYPHOID AND OYSTERS.

Two million bushels of oysters are taken every year from the waters of New York bay and the adjacent channels into which the sewage of New York is discharged. The New York bay pollution commission examined thousands of oysters from these beds a few years ago and could not find one free from typhoid fever germs. The test has just been repeated with oysters from Gravesend bay and from the shores of Staten island—that is to say, from both sides of the Narrows—and a higher percentage of disease was found.

The comforting theory was long held that the sewage of New York was swept out to sea, but it is found that the outgoing and incoming tides meeting in the Narrows drive the sewage back, so that nearly 80 per cent of the solid matter in the sewage is left floating in the bay or deposited on the muddy bottom. Almost no food fishes can be found in New York bay, and the oysters which fatten there are not fit for human food. The commission which has been examining the matter ascribes to these poisonous oysters which are placed on the New York market under various names the threefold increase of typhoid fever from August to September, when the R months begin.

In Chicago the health department has laid the annual fall increase of typhoid fever to germs brought back from summer resorts by people who on their vacation have drunk infected water. It may be that in Chicago, as well as New York, the oyster has a larger share of responsibility than has been credited to it. Fortunately, a large portion of the oyster supply of this city comes from Chesapeake bay and other waters remote from the sewage of large cities, but it is inevitable that some of the infected oysters should be shipped here.

Both New York and New Jersey are awakening to the necessity of ceasing to pollute the water of rivers and bays. The cities of Elizabeth and Paterson have been ordered to stop the practice. New York will soon be obliged to follow suit. New York bay and adjacent waters are nothing but a foul open sewer. The oyster question is a serious one, but strict regulations can control the sale of oysters, while the matter of the pollution of the air will before many years become a vital one.

In the meantime Chicago, while waiting for the purification of New York bay by action of the states and cities nearest, can and should in self-defense adopt a system of inspection of oysters like that in use to insure pure milk. Oysters should not be allowed to be sold in the city without any official knowledge of their source and healthfulness. Until some inspection the wise man will either avoid oysters or eat them cooked, or drench them in lemon juice as a sanitary precaution.

Gayman—"Well, doesn't that explain it, you chump?"

Not So Vital.

Domestic—"The idea o' your thinkin' I was listenin' to what you an' Mr. Ferguson said when you an' him was wranglin'! I didn't hear the first word o' your talk!"

Mistress—"I wouldn't have minded that so much, Verena. But didn't you hear the last words of it?"

Hope.

We care not in our sullen woe
How swiftly speed the hours;
Next year will come, and then we know
The pennant will be ours.
—Cleveland Leader.

The beauty of this little pome,
The charm of this here ditty,
Is that, no matter where your home,
It's good for any city.
—New York Evening Mail.

'Tis more appropriate, per-Chance,
For lucky towns whose clubs
Are not compelled by circumstance
To buck against the Cubs.

Has Its Compensations.

"You're about 11 years old, aren't you, Frank?" said his employer.

"No, sir," answered the office boy. "I'm nearly 15."

"You don't look it, by four or five years. Isn't it a bit mortifying to be taken always for a little boy?"

"Naw! It's a good t'ing. I gits t'ree cents rides on de street cars."

Another Reactionary.

"It is permissible, I believe," said the lecturer, by way of making his idea still plainer, "to take an illustration from the great book of nature—"

"I protest," interrupted a sour faced man in the audience. "President Roosevelt owns the copyright on that book!"

Blissful Ignorance.

Upgardson—"You often dine in a Chinese restaurant, do you? What do you generally eat?"

Atom—"Heaven knows—I don't."

C. W. T.

Critical Towards Breakfast.

As a nation we have the reputation of staking all upon breakfast. On the continent, indeed, there is still a lingering suspicion that we sit down to rounds of beef and enormous beakers of potent, home brewed beer. But, as a fact, we are becoming increasingly critical toward even the ordinary breakfast of reality. There come mornings when we wonder why the meal exists.—London Globe.

Truth at Second Hand.

Heard in the Calcutta Police Court.—Bengali, pleader to chief presidency magistrate, in informing his honor that one of his witnesses was absent: "The man has fallen unwell, your honor; and he has sent a man here to say that he is dying and cannot come."—Allahabad Pioneer.

Deduction.

Farmer Meddergrass (reading paper)—"Thet Vaudeville must be a great show town."

Mrs. Meddergrass—"Why so, pa?"

"W'y, I see here where another one of our greatest actors has made arrangements t' stay right thar for a hull season."—Puck.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

CHIEF magistrates of republics and even governors of American states have in some particulars a greater amount of power vested in their hands than foreign emperors and kings. This is especially the case in connection with the nominally royal prerogative of clemency. The presidents of the French republic and of the United States, as well as the governors of most of the states of this union, are entirely free from any restriction in the exercise of their right of pardon. No matter how guilty a criminal and how powerful the reasons which have led the various tribunals to sentence him, after due trial and conviction by jury, to long terms of penal servitude or to death, the president or the governor is free to restore him to immediate liberty and to remit the punishment. There is nothing, in fact, to prevent the grant of a pardon from being dictated by mere caprice.

In most of the monarchical countries of Europe, however, the sovereign is unable to grant a pardon, or even to commute a death sentence, without the sanction of his ministers, who are responsible to parliament for his exercise of clemency. King Louis Philippe illustrated this condition of affairs on one occasion when Victor Hugo came to entreat him to commute the penalty of a criminal who had been sentenced to death. "I will gladly grant the clemency which you ask for as far as I am concerned," he exclaimed to the poet, "but I must now set to work to obtain it from my ministers."

Even in the second and third decades of the last century, when constitutionalism was far less powerful than today and when parliaments had much less voice in the administration of the government, monarchs complained of being prevented by their ministers from the exercise of clemency, and it is known that King Louis XVIII. would have commuted the capital sentences of several of Napoleon's generals after the battle of Waterloo had it not been for the bitter opposition of his ministers.

King Alfonso on Good Friday each year, during the divine service, commutes the sentence of several prisoners condemned to death, but it is always with the sanction of his ministers, whose signatures are required to the document in addition to that of the monarch in order to render it valid.

But President Fallieres, when he commuted the death sentence of the ignoble Soleilland, who had killed a little girl under the most atrocious circumstances, acted of his own free will and was not obliged to consult any of his ministers. He commuted the sentence not because the murderer merited any clemency but solely and entirely because he, the president, before being elected to his present office and while still a senator, had professed himself in favor of the abolition of the death penalty during the course of an academic discussion about the matter. He took the ground that he would be charged with inconsistency if he did not, as president, live up to the opinion which he had expressed in a more or less private capacity, and sooner than expose himself to an accusation of this kind he took upon himself to commute and rob of its severity a sentence pronounced upon Soleilland by the tribunals after careful trial, convicted by a jury, and confirmation of the decree by the highest courts of the land. Such a thing would be possible here in America, but not in most of the monarchical countries of Europe, not even in Germany, Austria, or Great Britain.

In England the sovereign has theoretically three kinds of pardons at his disposal, none of which, however, can be exercised without the coöperation and sanction of one of his secretaries of state, usually the secretary of state for the home department. There is the pardon of right, the pardon of grace, and the pardon by act of parliament. The pardon of right is restricted exclusively to those who are held to have committed justifiable homicide. The pardon of grace is used for those who have been convicted rightfully or wrongfully. Both these pardons are over the sign manual of the sovereign, to whom these documents are now submitted for approval, though they never went further than the secretary of state for the home department during the reign of Queen Victoria.

The pardon by act of parliament is the most complete and full pardon that can be granted to a wrongfully convicted prisoner. It originates with the sovereign and is then read in both houses. But there is no first, second, or third reading, as in the case of ordinary measures brought before the national legislature. Once, and once only, is it read in each house, the members being uncovered the while. Then it receives the royal assent forthwith and becomes a pardon by act of parliament.

The last pardon by act of legislature that I can recall is that granted to Admiral the Earl of Dundonald, who, while still Lord Cochrane, was wrongfully convicted of conspiracy in connection with stock exchange frauds. This was the Lord Cochrane who played so prominent a rôle as naval commander in the liberation of Chile and Peru from Spanish rule, assisted them to procure their independence, and who afterwards commanded the navy of Greece in her struggle for freedom from Turkey. He was the grandfather of the present earl of Dundonald, who formerly commanded the militia forces of Canada.

Lady Louisa Egerton, whose death has just taken place in England, was the only sister of the duke of Devonshire; but, although fond of her brother, she saw but little of him after his marriage, sharing the dislike of her father, the late duke, for the present duchess. Like her husband, the late Admiral the Hon. Francis Egerton, second son of the earl of Ellesmere, she followed her old friend William E. Gladstone into the home rule camp when he adopted the Irish nationalist cause as his own, this in spite of the murder in Phœnix park of her other brother, Lord Frederick Cavendish. But, imbued with a strong sense of family pride and unwilling that there should be any public manifestation of political differences in the bosom of the historic house of Cavendish, she not only refrained from airing her opinions on the subject of home rule but even went so far as to induce her husband, the admiral, to resign his seat in parliament rather than to range himself in the house of commons among the political foes of her brother, who, it may be remembered, broke away from Mr. Gladstone on this Irish question and remains today a declared adversary of Irish nationalism.

Unlike the present duchess of Devonshire, Lady Louisa cared absolutely nothing for society in the worldly sense of the word. She was a religious, high bred, extremely charitable woman, quiet, simple, and unaffected, and with strong domestic interests. Until her father's death she and her husband made their home entirely with him, and it was under his roof that were born her five children, one of whom, a captain of the royal navy, succumbed to wounds received at Ladysmith during the South African war.

Living with her father, she naturally became imbued with his prejudices and with his distaste for the romance that has played so important a rôle in the life of the present duke, and that has culminated in his singularly happy marriage. The sentiments of the late duke found a painful expression in his testamentary dispositions and in the efforts which he made in his will to prevent the then widowed duchess of Manchester from securing, in the event of her becoming duchess of Devonshire, the most treasured jewels that had belonged to his own wife. These jewels are now in the possession of the wife of his grandson, Victor Cavendish, who is next heir to the dukedom of Devonshire and nephew of the present duke.

New Version.

[From Harper's Magazine.]

A teacher in a North Carolina school recently asked the pupils of the seventh grade to sketch the events surrounding Julius Cæsar's death. A boy in the class wrote as follows:

"Cæsar was killed by the ides of March. Somebody told him he had better watch out for the ides, but he said he wasn't afraid of them. One morning when he was going along the street a man said to him, the ides are here. And Cæsar said, but they ain't all here. Then he went in the senate house, and the ides were over in one corner. Directly one of them ran up and stuck his dagger in Cæsar's back, and then all the other ides stuck their daggers in him, and he fell over and died."

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

Mr. Randall Parrish, who began writing only in middle age, has developed into one of the most industrious writers of this section. He has two books offering for the present book season, one of which is "BETH NORVELL," a story of the contemporary and untamed west. The heroine is a young person of birth and breeding, who, having contracted an unhappy marriage, disappears from all who know her, and joins a fly by night theatrical troup in the far west. She is not at first conscious of any interest in the work, but the inherent honesty and her native estheticism combine to arouse in her an ambition to do her work well. The poignancy of her loneliness and regret aid her in the understanding which she is acquiring of human nature, and the consequence is that she becomes an actress of power, though she is surrounded by tawdry dramatic influences.

An accident brings to the acquaintance of Beth Norvell, a young mining engineer, the son of a Denver banker. Winston is temporarily disengaged when he meets the actress, and the spirit of adventure prompts him to join the company as utility man. The two fall in love in spite of all that should hold them apart, and the story is the recital of their adventures. The book is of the sort which we once termed the dime novel, and like the dime novel is warranted to reward virtue and to confound villainy. There is a large admixture of villainy to the virtue—about two to one—but in the end all is well; the wicked are laid low and the good are raised up.

In dialect, Mr. Parrish contrives good recital and conversation, but his idea of a polite and elegant conversation remains quite grotesque. A. C. McClurg & Co. publish the book.

E. P. Dutton & Co. will publish this week "A Consideration of the State of Ireland in the Nineteenth Century," by G. Locker Lampson; "The Travels of the King, Charles II., in Germany and Flanders, 1654-1660," by Eva Scott, author of "The King in Exile." "The Commercial Relations of England and Portugal," by V. M. Shillington; "The Condition of the Border at the Union," by John Graham; and "Reminiscences of Scottish Life and Character" (both series in one volume), by Dean Ramsey, in the New Universal library.

Messrs. L. C. Page & Co. announce the publication of a new volume in their Art Galleries series, entitled "The Art of the Prado," by C. S. Ricketts. The Prado, which contains practically intact the work of the leading Spanish artists, has been called a collection of masterpieces. Its leading artists are Velasquez, Titian, and Rubens, but with few exceptions the foremost painters of all the schools are represented by their best work.

A little story that is notable for its reality although it has to do with people who lived in a Vermont village in prerevolutionary days, is Sarah N. Cleghorn's "A TURNPIKE LADY" (Holt). One can find no fault with the workmanship here, for although the romance of Naomi is unpretentious and the plot far from intricate, it has required skill of no mean sort to catch and maintain the spirit of those times so accurately.

From a psychological standpoint, Naomi's life of ideals and dreams and her affair with the schoolmaster do not interest one half so much as the sudden recovery of Naomi's sister Eliza from a strange wasting illness.

Eliza had been petted and coddled from childhood, for she was called the delicate child, and her lack of appetite and color had been so emphasized that she inclined to take pleasure in her ailments.

While the other children ran and played Eliza sat in the house with some bit of fancy work and drooped and faded.

Her father was taken from home in the cause of the war, and Eliza fared ill. When a letter from him came one day and was read aloud Eliza sank back in her chair and clapped her hand to her side. The old medicine—toads steeped in cider, with dried plantains and spices—gave her no strength. Spring advanced and then came an itinerant minister who spoke of witchcraft. Eliza then seized upon the notion that she was bewitched, and accused a girl cousin of holding over her a spell.

There was nothing to do but carry her to the garret where she might feel the freshest air. Her hysterical outbursts unnerved the family, and at their wits' end they were kneeling in prayer when the father returned.

Eliza had always been his favorite child. Now he sat and watched the frail girl tossing on the bed and planned to cure her of this dread disease.

In the feedbox in the garret four gold pieces were treasured sacredly for the king's cause. It must have been a strong conviction that urged him to take two of them—for this is what he did, riding into town and straight to Amri Falconer's shop.

When Eliza awoke at 5 o'clock the next morning she was dazzled by the sight of a dozen breadths of shimmering green silk heaped all over her bed in the sunshine.

"'Who has buyed me this?' she wondered. 'Marm has buyed it with the seed money! O, no—I guess I'm dreaming.' She rubbed her pale cheek with it. She could not keep her fingers off it. The roosters crowed below; the sun shone on the cabbages; she heard the churn in the woodhouse. Budsey, in his long apron, carried the bucket up from the well. For the first time in many a week Eliza wished she was up and dressed.

"Eliza was lying in the sun, with the silk drawn up to her chin, when Marm came laboring upstairs with a dish of suppawn for her breakfast. Eliza wanted no breakfast but the feast of color which she was drinking in with her gentle, sunken, craving eyes. Marm said how well the charm had worked, and beckoned Mr. Polke, who crept to the doorway in his stocking feet. He heard Eliza say:

"'I know, Marm Patridge, you buyed me this dress aout of the seed money.'"

"'Do you want I should tell ye who buyed it for ye?'"

"'Yes, yes—tell me quick.'"

When she hears that her father is home she gets out of bed and demands to see him. On Sunday she is up and dressed. On Monday she begins to hint subtly to Marm that there shall be a quilting at their house, and a quilting there is, and Eliza appears in her new green silk. That her recovery and her downfall are to be traced to the same origin is the pathetic side of this humorous study of the eternal feminine nature.

After a silence of some years Mr. Irving Bacheller comes before the public with a small book, "EBEN HOLDEN'S LAST DAY A-FISHING" (Harper's). It is an inconspicuous book, but the story of the old man's last fishing trip is told with much simple humor and tenderness. The book is illustrated and the pages decorated.

Among the Century company's juvenile publications this fall will be a series of six volumes of "Geographical Stories," retold from St. Nicholas, books of adventure, travel, and description, chiefly in the great geographical divisions of the United States. There will be "Sea Stories," "Western Frontier Stories," "Stories of the Great Lake," "Stories of the South," "Island Stories," and "Stories of Strange Sights."

Mrs. Etta Anthony Baker has based her first book, "The Youngsters of Centerville" (which Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. issue this month), upon events occurring on a dozen school and national holidays.

CHURCHES TO ASK THE MAYOR TO SHUT SALOONS ON SUNDAY.

In Advance of Receiving Letter City's Executive Says He Will Do Nothing of the Kind.

Mayor Busse will receive a letter this morning from the Rev. W. A. Bartlett asking him to close saloons on Sundays. It is understood to be the start of another attempt to persuade the city administration to enforce the state law.

The mayor said last evening he had not received the letter, and so could not answer it directly, but in a general way he was willing to have it known that he had no intention of doing anything of the sort. He already had declared his position to a delegation who visited him shortly after his election, and nothing had happened since to make him change his mind.

The letter embodies the following memorial, which was adopted at the October session of the Chicago Congregational association:

We, the ministers and delegates of the Chicago Congregational association, in the name of the membership of our churches, and in so far as we may assume to speak, in the name of the Christian citizenship of our city, respectfully ask you, the mayor of our great city, to enforce the state law regarding the closing of the saloons on Sunday; in the doing of which we pledge you our heartiest coöperation in every way possible.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS

Charles E. Kohl, owner and manager of four leading vaudeville theaters in Chicago, in an interview yesterday stated that Chicago had produced finer vaudeville acts in the past than any other city in the country.

"I am a Chicagoan through and through," said Mr. Kohl, "and I learned many years ago in this city that vaudeville as a form of entertainment could please without offending the most fastidious taste and I have always insisted that the performances given in the Majestic, Chicago opera house, Haymarket, or Olympic theater shall include no word or action that might not be used in my own or any other man's parlor in the presence of his wife and children. On this plane these theaters are conducted and every one in their employ is thoroughly grounded in the system.

"Chicago theatergoers know a good show when they see it and I would rather take their judgment than that of any other audience I know, as they are admittedly the most critical in the country. If we give our patrons a 'starless' all-star cast or a 'warmed over' show we could not win success, because the people who attend vaudeville shows in Chicago are intelligent and cannot be fooled.

"During my career as manager of the leading vaudeville theaters of this city there never was a time when the expenditure of large sums of money stood in the way of providing the best possible entertainment for our patrons. Actions speak louder than promises. Here are a few of the highest class actors and actresses who have played at our vaudeville houses in the last five years:

"Vesta Tilley, Marguerite Sylva, Della Fox, Rose Coghlan, May De Sousa, Stella Mayhew, Pauline Hall, Grace Van Studdiford, Marie Wainwright, Fanny Rice, Bessie Clayton, Mabel Hite, Rose Stahl, Mrs. Stuart Robson, Dorothy Russell, Edna Wallace Hopper, Lily Langtry, Amelia Bingham, Cecilia Loftus, Mabel Barrison, Virginia Earl, Olive May, Kate Condon, Emma Carus, Truly Shattuck, Ida Fuller, May Yohe, Toby Claude, Elfie Fay, Minnie Seligman, Elita Proctor Otis, Flo Irwin, Amelia Summerville, Eva Tanguay, May Irwin, Zellie de Lussan, Robert Hilliard, Henry Lee, William Norris, Clifton Crawford, George Evans, Peter Dailey, Cinquevalli, Houdini, Lee Harrison, Lew Dockstader, Gus Williams, Walter Jones, Marshall P. Wilder, James T. Powers, Charles Evans, Eddie Foy, Arthur Dunn, William Courtleigh, James J. Morton, Claude Gillingwater, Hubert Wilkie, Julius Steger, Edward Arden, Charles Warner, Arnold Daly, George Fuller Golden, James J. Corbett, George Primrose, Sidney Drew, Edward J. Connolly, William Bramwell, Henry E. Dixey, the Four Cohans, McIntyre and Heath, the Four Mortons, Cressy and Dayne, Collins and Hart, Fred Karno's pantomime troupe.

"That list of stars does not look as if Chicago has been the dumping ground for poor vaudeville acts. Chicago insists on having the real goods in the amusement line all the time. Not for one week but every week in the season. This is proved every month by shows which come here with long New York runs to their credit and play to empty seats."

WIT OF THE WORLD.

HUMOR FROM FRANCE.

An Englishman passing down the Rue Saint Honoré broke a pane of glass which the owner valued at 50 sous. Not having enough change for the 100 sou piece which the Englishman gave him, he started out of the shop to get it, when the latter stopped him.

"Don't bother to do that," said he, "I will complete the sum."

And he smashed the other window.—Pele Mele.

She—"Here is your engagement ring, Henri. I cannot marry you; I love another."

He—"What is his name?"

She—"In heaven's name, you won't kill him, will you?"

He—"O, no, but I thought I might do a deal with him with this ring."—Sourire.

A cabman found one day a magnificent hare that had been left in his cab and immediately hurried with it to the police station.

"All right," said the superintendent. "Come back in a year and a day, and if the hare has not been claimed by then, it is yours."—Nos Loisirs.

A young doctor, who had recently bought the practice in a certain small town, received a visit from a man one afternoon.

"I have called to see whether you would be willing to renew the contract that I had with your predecessor. I gave him a fixed commission on all clients whom he sent to me."

"Ah, you are the chemist, I suppose?" said the doctor.

"No, sir, the undertaker."—Bon Vivant.

"What! You are going to get a divorce after living with your husband for thirty-five years?"

"Yes. I've gained experience and come to the conclusion that an old man of 68 cannot be my life companion."—Zuk.

Teacher—"If to three pints of wine, two are added, what will be the result?"

Pupil (readily)—"Drunkenness."—Bon Vivant.

Actress (on the stage)—"Tell me, O tell me, where is my mother?"

Voice from the Gallery—"Selling potatoes in the market."—Pele Mele.

A Jewess went to a doctor and complained of a pain under the left eyelid.

"You've got a drop of blood in the white of the eye," said the doctor, after looking carefully at it.

"It's impossible," replied the Jewess.

"How dare you say that?" retorted the doctor.

"Well, you see," said the Jewess, "my left eye is a glass one."—Rire.

François was going to market in his cart.

"Yes."

"Could you take in a blouse for me?"

"Certainly, if you will let me know where to leave it."

"O, that's all right," said his friend, jumping into the cart, "I'm inside it now."—Nos Loisirs.

A cabby was brought to the police station for having hit one of his fares over the head during a dispute about his payment.

"Couldn't you explain to the gentleman without hitting him?" inquired the magistrate.

"Yes, sir, of course I know I was wrong, but you see I had jumped off the box, and I couldn't do that for nothing."—Nos Loisirs.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

IF THE state department has its way a successor to Charlemagne Tower as ambassador to Germany will be selected from the diplomatic service. Secretary Root is endeavoring to form a permanent diplomatic corps something like that possessed by every other great power. The American service has been maintained on the spoils basis—that is to say, political influence and contributions to campaign funds usually have gotten the most important billets, irrespective of the qualifications of the candidates.

Would Select Tower's Successor from Diplomatic Service.

Tower, for example, has been always a liberal contributor to the republican campaign fund. He has made, however, an acceptable representative at Berlin. He has been on most friendly terms with Emperor William and has enjoyed the distinction of having the latter an occasional guest at dinner. If it be asked what he has accomplished the answer is difficult. He has assisted Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German ambassador here, in promoting the good relations of the two countries. He is cold blooded and is not popular with the American colony in Berlin. Nevertheless, he is considered one of the best representatives that have ever been accredited to the German court. His retirement is purely voluntary.

There is only one man in the entire diplomatic service who is equipped to succeed Mr. Tower. That is David Jayne Hill, minister to the Netherlands. Mr. Hill is a charming gentleman who has made a special study of European relations, speaks German fluently, and has had experience as assistant secretary of state, minister to Switzerland, minister to Holland, and one of the American plenipotentiaries to The Hague peace conference. While Mr. Hill is not as rich as Mr. Tower, he has ample means and can entertain as extensively as his predecessor has done. It has been the ambition of both Mr. and Mrs. Hill to be accredited to Germany.

If Mr. Hill be promoted he will be the fourth diplomat to be raised during this administration to the rank of ambassador. Henry White was transferred from secretary of embassy in London to ambassador to Italy and later sent to Paris. Lloyd Griscom, who was minister to Japan, was appointed ambassador to Brazil and then ordered to Rome. John W. Riddle, minister to Roumania, was made ambassador at St. Petersburg. Thomas J. O'Brien only recently was named ambassador at Tokio, going from Copenhagen, Denmark, where he ranked as minister. The result of these transfers, the state department claims, has been to demonstrate that men who have had diplomatic experience are far superior in the transaction of international business to those appointed direct from civil life.

Upon only two things in the past few years have there been continued differences of opinion between the president and members of his cabinet. The first was phonetic spelling and the second the campaign against nature faking. One of the members of the cabinet who may come in for presidential discipline told today the following story:

Horse Indicates by Its Acts Power of Reasoning.

"Where I was last summer there were two horses put out to pasture. They had been mates from the time they were foaled. Whenever one was taken out of the stable the other followed and always was hitched to him. Their names were Harry and Arthur. One day Harry was noticed close to the house and heard to whinny. No attention was paid to him. As soon as twilight came the horse disappeared and was away all night. He turned up in the morning, kept his eyes on the door, and when anybody came out he started to whinny again.

"At the end of the second day the attention of a visitor, who had been a cowboy, was attracted to the animal. 'He wants something,' he said. He walked up to Harry. This time the horse whinnied with pleasure, turned around, ran a few steps, then twisted his head to see if the man were following. The cowboy went to the stable, saddled his horse, and started after Harry. The latter increased his pace until he was going at a wild trot. He turned round every hundred yards to see if the man was coming. After riding a dozen miles or so Harry descended into a valley and at the bottom was a pit, into which Arthur had fallen and where he was lying. Arthur was not dead, but weak from lack of water and food. There was a deep track around the pit, which Harry had made by his watches at night. Evidently he had tried to assist his mate to get out, but had failed and concluded the only way to relieve him was to get the assistance of man. As Arthur was lifted out of the pit Harry stood by whinnying with satisfaction.

"This story raises the old question whether a horse reasons or has instinct. I am confident it reasons."

The German officials have a high regard for James H. Geary, chief of the customs division of the treasury department. Mr. Geary was a member of the American commission, which, in conjunction with the German commission, arranged a settlement of the irritating tariff differences between the United States and Germany. At a dinner given by one of the German commissioners Mr. Geary sat on the right of his hostess, who knows only a few words of English and French. Mr. Geary speaks French fluently, but has only a slight acquaintance with German. In spite of linguistic obstacles Mr. Geary and the German lady were able to conduct a most interesting conversation. Their ability to communicate ideas astonished the lady's husband.

Odd Case of Thought Seeming to Create Language.

"Did I not see and hear it," he remarked. "I would not have thought it possible for two people not speaking a common language to converse so fluently. My wife does not know English and but a few words of French. Mr. Geary does not know German. They are talking a polyglot language, but they understand each other perfectly."

"Talleyrand has said," responded one of the guests, "that language was made to conceal thought. In the case of your wife and Mr. Geary, it is evident that thought is creating language."

There is one man in congress who gained the warm admiration of Matthew Quay, the one time boss of the Keystone state, by his refusal to support him for the presidential nomination. He is Representative George F. Huff, a prominent banker and coal operator of Norristown, Pa. During the campaign of 1896 a boom was started for Quay, and the friends of the senator demanded from all Pennsylvania congressmen that they sign a paper indorsing his candidacy.

Refusal to Support Senator Quay Made Quay His Friend.

"I can't do it," said Huff, squaring his chin.

"Do you know," he was asked, "that your refusal will cost you reëlection?"

Huff promptly flung back his answer:

"I cannot be defeated for reëlection," he declared, "for the simple reason that from this moment I am not a candidate to succeed myself."

The facts of the congressman's attitude got noised about, and later on he was returned to Washington. Quay entertained no ill feeling against him, but, on the other hand, approved his renomination for congress and assisted him in his campaign.

Sudden Drop.

Dinks—"Say, old man, you're a wreck! What's the trouble?"

Winks—"Fall opening."

Dinks—"What? Shopping with a mob of women?"

Winks—"No; coal hole."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Thymol in Toothache.

In toothache arising from a hollow tooth thymol has been advised. The cavity is filled with a tuft of cotton wool on which a few grains of thymol have been sprinkled. If any irritation of the mucous membrane is caused it can be checked by rinsing the mouth with warm water.—London Hospital.

DEBUTANTES FEW THIS YEAR

Society Mourns Scarcity; Drawback to Winter Festivities.

WILL MISS YALE GLEE CLUB.

College Concert at Christmas Probably Will Not Be Scheduled.

It has been many years since a season has been so lacking in débutantes as the present and society folk are getting alarmed, for the introduction of the young women fresh from college or finishing travels usually forms the backbone of the winter's entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Blair, who have been spending their winters in Washington the last few years, are to return to Chicago for the coming season and it is probable that their younger daughter, Miss Lucy Blair, may be presented. Miss Blair has been going about in the eastern circle for the last year and her presentation to Chicago society may be informal only, but the intention of the family to return will be welcome news to north side circles. Mr. Blair is now in the city at the Chicago club, but Mrs. Blair and daughters will not return from their summer home at Beverly Farms until next week. Miss Blair is a granddaughter of Mrs. William Blair, 148 Rush street.

Another young woman for whose presentation society is hoping this year is Miss Helen Judah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble B. Judah, 2701 Prairie avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Judah have returned from their summer home, Brandon Farm, Vincennes, Ind., and, although rumor says that Miss Judah is a promised débutante, her coming out has not been decided definitely as yet.

One of the first débutantes of the season willl be Miss Helen B. Marsh, who will be presented by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen Marsh, at a reception to be given at their residence, 5639 Washington avenue, next Friday evening. The reception will be followed by dancing for the young people. Those assisting will include Mrs. James M. Walker, Mrs. George Marsh, Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, Mrs. Francis W. Parker, Mrs. James Rowland Angell, Mrs. Frank Allport Mrs. Edward G. Ewart, Mrs. Benjamin Terry, Mrs. George Benedict, Mrs. J. Gordon Laing, Mrs. Wilson Robertson, Mrs. Homer Dixon, and several young women. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Bimm and Miss Kathryn Bimm of Dayton and Miss Edith Meachem of Cincinnati will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh for the reception.

If report says truly, also, the younger set is to miss the Yale Glee club concert this year. The concert has been one of the big events of the holiday season for many years, bringing with it a round of dances and dinners, but this year the managers have about decided to pass by Chicago and go to Denver instead. although the decision has not reached the point where it is past reconsidering.

Miss Helen Marie Roche was married to Mr. Arthur Collson Tobin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Tobin of Oak Park, at 8 o'clock last evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. John A. Roche, 4605 Drexel boulevard. The Rev. James Vila Blake read the service.

Miss Roche gave a touch of originality to her bridal party by having a mother and daughter as the honored members among her attendants. Her sister, Mrs. George C. Howland, served as matron of honor and Miss Cora Virginia Howland, 11 years old, as maid of honor. The bridemaids were Miss Helen Shedd, Miss Pearl Harris, Miss Florence Beman, and Miss Helen Parish, the bridegroom's cousin from South Bend, Ind. Mr. Tobin's best man was Mr. James Sheldon Riley and the ushers were Mr. James R. Henry, Mr. Bradley McCausland, and Mr. Eugene N. Hunting of Youngstown, O.

The bride's gown was of ivory messaline satin, with a rose point lace bertha. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms; and she carried bride roses. Mrs. Howland wore rose pink messaline satin and point lace, and the young maid of honor wore a frock of white swiss embroidery over pink silk. The bridemaids were in gowns of pink crêpe de chine with lace berthas, and carried pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Tobin will be at home at the Roche residence after Nov. 15.

Mrs. Augustus Byram, Mrs. C. C. Burnes, and Miss Marjorie Burnes returned to their home at 111 Lake Shore drive yesterday after a summer in Europe. The marriage of Miss Burnes and Sidney C. Love is to take place the latter part of the month, the day as yet not having been decided. Miss Burnes is not accepting the usual round of entertainments which are bestowed on the brides of today.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Dickerson, 4901 Lake avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Mr. Robert Rea Ware of Chicago.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Towner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Towner, 2444 Kenmore avenue, to Mr. Philipp Jaeger Jr. is to take place at 8 o'clock on the evening of Nov. 12 at Epworth Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Ellen Davis, Miss Helen Hyman, Miss Hester Magee, and Miss Elizabeth Zorge will be the bridemaids and Mrs. W. M. Gelderman will be the matron of honor. Mr. Jaeger will have Mr. Edward Henricks for his best man and the ushers will be Mr. Charles Jaeger, Mr. George Henricks, and Mr. Fred Bischoff.

Miss Marie Louise Stewart and Mr. W. Nevin Pomeroy will be married at 8 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 26 at the residence of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Bishop, 828 Kenilworth avenue, Rogers Park. Miss Bertha Steuhler of St. Louis, who is to be the maid of honor, is Miss Stewart's guest.

Invitations will be issued tomorrow for the marriage of Miss Rachel Currey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Seymour Currey of 1308 Judson avenue, Evanston, to Mr. Paul Day of Boston. The wedding is to take place Oct. 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Elliott, 855 Oakwood boulevard, will celebrate their golden wedding Monday evening. A reception will be given from 9 to 11 at the home and will be preceded by a family dinner to be given by Mrs. A. J. Elliott, 4107 Vincennes avenue. Among the relatives who will come for the event will be Mrs. Elliott's sisters, Mrs. E. C. Preston of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Mrs. A. K. Bodman of Joplin, Mo., and her brother, Mr. Frank Twogood of Plankinton, N. D., all of whom were present at the wedding of fifty years ago. Another out-of-town guest will be Mr. William Smith McCormick of Duluth, Minn., whose engagement to Miss Louise Elliott, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, was announced recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson will give a dance at their home in Lake Forest tomorrow.

The Misses Dupee, 486 Dearborn avenue, will give a young people's tea this afternoon for their guest, Miss Garrett of St. Louis.

Mrs. Sophia Jacques announces the marriage of her daughter, Adelaide Louise, to Dr. William Cummings Fischer, which took place Wednesday, Oct. 9, at Bronxville, N. Y. Dr. Fischer was formerly of the United States army, with headquarters at Fort Sheridan from 1901 to 1904, but now resides in New York City.

The marriage of Miss Blanche Delphine Litt, daughter of Mr. David Curtin Litt, 5134 Michigan avenue, and Julius J. Steiner of New York will be solemnized next Tuesday at 6 o'clock in the evening in the banquet room of the Great Northern hotel. Dr. Joseph Stolz will perform the ceremony. Miss Litt will have her sister, Sylvia, as maid of honor, and Mr. Albert Steiner will act as best man for his brother. Many relatives from Milwaukee, Philadelphia, and New York will attend the wedding.

The Colonial club of Chicago, 4445 Grand boulevard, will open its clubhouse for the winter season with a formal dancing party this evening.

The Illinois Alumnæ association of National Park seminary, Washington, D. C., will hold the eighth of a series of à la carte luncheons tomorrow at 12:30 in Marshall Field's southeast tea room.

Gifts in Leather—Men

The novelties selected abroad and at home for this department are of unusual merit. The workmanship is of the best and the ornamentation artistic. As gift suggestions we mention —bill rolls, calendars, card cases, cigar cases, desk pads, traveling bags, mileage book cases, suit cases, jewel cases, motor books, pocketbooks, toilet cases, etc.

The Sewing Room

Altering Girls' Skirts.

The momentous question of altering and lengthening girls' skirts is a never ending problem. Of course, if there is a hem it should be let down as a first means. A few years ago it was not nearly so difficult to lengthen a skirt, as one could use ruffles, flounces, and yokes. Yokes were probably the most popular method. However, in this day when neither yokes or flounces are worn and when ruffles seldom are, it amounts to quite a perplexing question. A dress of plain colored material may be lengthened by letting in bias bands of plaid. If the dress is plaid bands of plain colored material may be used. A color should be chosen which matches one of the colors of the plaid. The width of the band should be determined by the number of inches you desire to add to the length of the skirt. Decide where you wish to place the bands and then cut the skirt here. Stitch one side of the band to one side of the cut part and stitch the other side to the opposite part. This will lengthen the skirt the width of the band. When two or three bands are used the skirt will then be the desired length. S. A. H.

Aid to Making Patches.

To mend a tear in a garment go to any tailor and buy some patcheen from him. Then cut a piece of patcheen an inch larger than the rent or tear and also cut a piece of cloth like the garment, the same size as the patcheen. Baste carefully on the wrong side with the piece of goods next to the garment. After it is neatly basted press on the wrong side with a hot iron. The patch will be a neat one and will also be invisible. B. H.

Slips for Fancy Waists.

Slips to keep fancy and dressy waists free from dust when hanging in the closet may be made of cambric or some other cheap material. They are made of two oblong pieces of material sewed together in exactly the same manner as a pillowslip is made. It does not need to be as large as a pillowslip, but it must be plenty large enough, so that it does not crease the waist. On one side of the opening at the top sew two buttons, each one six or eight inches from the ends. On the opposite side, in corresponding places, work buttonholes. Place waist over a hanger and draw the slip up over it. Then button at the top and you will have a fine protector for your waist. Slips for skirts may be made in the same manner, making them lots longer of course.

To Clean Dust Marks on Pictures.

If when one is ready to clean pictures it is found that the dust has sifted through the backing, which has not been firm, and an ugly mark is made on the white rim, it can be removed easily by rubbing the dirty place with a stale piece of white bread, leaving it quite as fresh looking as when new. MISS NORA ANSLEY.

* *

Bread Cleans Rugs.

Use half rye and half wheat bread; rub over rug the same as scrubbing, and when through sweep thoroughly. The rug will be like new. MRS. E. A.

* *

Ivory Handle Knives.

Knives which have ivory handles which have become darkened should have the handles rubbed with half a lemon which has been dipped in salt. After treating them thus wash in warm water. R. L.

Soap as a Lubricator.

Drawers that refuse to move in or out should be rubbed with a little yellow soap from the kitchen to make them work smoothly. This same remedy may be applied to windows which have to be coaxed before they will move either up or down.

With the Girl Workers

Let the Married Woman Work.

A letter in this column states that the attitude of some business houses in this city is to refuse to employ married women, and the writer of that liberal minded communication declared her hearty approval of such exemption.

I, too, personally know, being a married woman and a stenographer, that some firms will not employ married women clerks. But far from commending their attitude, I always have felt that it reflected most unfavorably on the intellectual caliber and judgment of the management of such firms.

It is more than likely that the mothers of most of these men worked! Not as stenographers or office women, to be sure, but they did some work of one kind or another to add to the family purse or else they and their children went without. In my growing up, in a thriving eastern suburb, nearly all of our neighbors, a large percentage of whom, including my parents, were the Anglo-Saxon type, with more or less lofty ideas of high living as exemplified in the old country—did some sort of work. Some of them basted vests, and others tailor made clothing, overalls, etc.; some crocheted shawls and hoods, others went out day nursing; all was done in a quiet, underhanded, genteel way, they apparently considering it a disgrace to have people know that they, the women of the family, did any kind of work for money. My mother worked, too.

It was these hand to mouth conditions among the matrons, young and old, that made me resolve to learn a trade, to learn to do something at which I could find steady employment at living wages, when I should grow up to be a woman. And it was a wise resolution. I today am earning more than my husband, being employed as secretary to the president of a large corporation, but I earn all that I am getting, and I always have done so. I am so situated in life that I am obliged to work and earn money, and it is likely that I shall be so situated for many years to come. I never in my life worked for 'pin' money, and I don't believe that many women are working from any such motive. It is my opinion, based on fifteen years' close observation of conditions and people in the business world, that the married woman is far more likely to make the better clerk. I say if a competent woman stenographer wants employment, give it to her, married or single, she needs it. X. Y. Z.

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Three cloth belts of material to match the gown; one is made with small tucks at the back, and in this way a slight fullness is given; the other is a plain tailor-stitched belt with cloth covered buttons at the back. The last is a simple belt with slits cut into it, through which a narrower piece of goods is drawn.

Tested Recipes

Butter Improves Fruit Pies.

Add a piece of butter the size of a hickory nut and a pinch of salt to any kind of fruit pie, and there will be no complaint of pies tasting flat. MRS. E. L. BILLINGS.

Spinach with Sardines.

Heat one cup of grated bread crumbs in one-fourth cup of butter. Add a peck of spinach leaves, cooked and chopped, and the flesh of a dozen sardines. Add salt and pepper. Then form into an oblong; garnish with slices of eggs and place sardines over the top.

Cooked spinach makes a good mound against which broiled chops may be served. The smaller the quantity of water used in cooking the better; salt should be added to preserve the color. The French call this vegetable the broom of the stomach. MRS. C. VINTON HENRY.

Popovers.

To two eggs add two cups of milk, two cups of flour, and one teaspoon of salt. Whip eggs until light, add flour and milk, and fill gem pans half full. Bake in brisk oven. MRS. F. E. B.

Kidney with Tomato Sauce.

Cut in small pieces a fresh kidney and fry in hot lard. When almost done add to it a sliced onion, half a cup of tomatoes, and a slice of ham. Let all fry together and when done add a spoonful of flour, a piece of red pepper, and a spoonful of chopped garlic and parsley. Thin with a little water; season with salt, and boil a few minutes. MRS. WATERS.

* *

Freshen Cold Biscuits.

Dip cold biscuits in cold water and place them on a tin in a hot oven long enough to become heated thoroughly and they will be as good as when freshly baked. C. P.

Rhubarb Orange Marmalade.

A delicious marmalade may be made of pieplant and oranges. To six pounds of pieplant take ten navel oranges and eight pounds of sugar. Cook pieplant soft. Grate the yellow from four oranges. Shred the rest of the rind and cook till tender. Add with the grated rind to the pieplant and sugar, and cook carefully until right consistency. Put in glasses and cover with melted paraffin. MRS. E. W. STEINNER.

For those Chilly Mornings.

Many people suffer more from cold in the fall and spring than in the depths of winter. Before fires are running as a matter of course every day, one is liable to much discomfort in spells of cold weather. A welcome convenience in the bed room and bath room is an electric heater. All the heat necessary is quickly obtained and at a cost that is hardly noticeable. The modern home is incomplete unless it is wired for electric light, which is inexpensive. Call Main 1280. ## BELMONT'S FEDERATION.

Members of the National Civic federation who, unlike Mr. August Belmont, were not behind the scenes must be profoundly disgusted by this week's revelations. They had believed that when their organization set out to make an elaborate study of municipal ownership the men who suggested it were actuated by a desire for truth. There may have been members who doubted the wisdom of the investigation, but they, not being on the inside, had no suspicion of the motives which actuated the men who originated the project.

Now it appears that the inquiry into municipal ownership—an inquiry which was to be free from prejudice or bias—was gotten up to serve the purposes of Mr. August Belmont, a traction magnate. The largest contributor to the fund raised to cover the cost of the investigation was a traction company with which Mr. Belmont had intimate relations.

Nobody has paid much attention to the reports of the "experts" as far as published. No attention will be paid to future reports, because the whole investigation has been tainted. The trail of Mr. Belmont is over it all.

Manifestly the National Civic federation, once an ambitious and useful organization, is no longer of service to the public. It may regain some of its old usefulness if it can throw off Mr. Belmont and convince the public that he has lost all power to guide its policy. At present it is his federation, and whatever move it may make or measure it may recommend will be taken as some new scheme of Mr. Belmont.

If the federation cannot get rid of him after this last exposure, members who do not wish to be regarded as approving his peculiar methods should lose no time in getting out and repudiating him and his works.

GOOD ROADS.

The movement for better country roads in Illinois received an impetus at the banquet of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. A call will be issued for a state convention to be held at Springfield early in 1908 for the consideration of this important subject. An appeal will be made to commercial, industrial, and agricultural associations throughout the state to send delegates. If this appeal meets a cordial response there will be a gathering of representative citizens who ought to be able to formulate some definite plans for systematic road building in all parts of the state.

The need of better roads is easily shown from many points of view. The comparison of the total cost of hauling farm products with the value of such products indicates the great economic loss which attends poor roads. The same thing is true of the output of the factories. The cost of getting materials to the railroad station or the market is entirely disproportionate to the net returns to farmer or manufacturer.

The isolation of the farmer has been one of the things which have made the agricultural life unpopular. This is in large measure due to the lack of good roads. Commercially, industrially, socially, the farmer and the manufacturer would be benefited if the highways were in as good condition as they easily might be.

The present situation is in large degree unnecessary. The good roads movement does not mean a certain increase in taxes. It aims rather toward intelligent use of the money already provided by the taxes. These funds have not been used wisely. There has been a great amount of economic waste, some students of the situation declaring that fifty cents of every dollar yields no returns to the taxpayer. If a large number of earnest people interested in the matter were to meet in convention and have the possibilities fully explained something definite and practical ought to be the result.

In connection with this movement more attention should be given to the provisions of the state law under which the inmates of penitentiaries may be used in the manufacture of tile and culvert pipe for road drainage and in the preparation of material for road building and ballasting. These materials are furnished free by the state highway commission, and there is provision for their transportation to the places where they are needed without cost to the taxpayers. If the state laws relating to this subject were utilized the problem of suitable material for the roadbed—a serious one in many parts of Illinois—would be much simplified.

It is not money that is needed so much as intelligent use of funds already provided. The lack of material is not prohibitive. What is wanted to make the good roads movement effective is a general feeling that the prosperity of the state is restrained by the lack of good highways and that under wise supervision, without any great addition to the taxes of the individual, a marked improvement may be made. Such a result is quite likely to follow the meeting of a state convention for discussing this greatest of internal needs.

PRIMARY LEGISLATION.

The primary law of 1898, which has been revived by the decision of the Supreme court setting aside the law of 1906, contains provisions which the court, in passing upon later acts, has held to be unconstitutional. If anybody were to attack the law of 1898 it would probably share the fate of its predecessors. Then there would be a reversion to the old style free and easy primaries, acceptable to many of the bosses, but hateful to the people.

This is another reason why the general assembly should take up in earnest the ungrateful task of framing a new primary law. The Supreme court gives the legislature much discretion in some directions. It can do away entirely with delegates and conventions, providing for the direct nomination of all candidates at the primaries. It can retain the delegates and give voters an opportunity to express their preference for candidates. It can limit the activity of the voters to the selection of delegates.

The Supreme court has said plainly that whatever may be the system adopted the county committees cannot be permitted to take part in its administration. They cannot even be allowed to lay out—and gerrymander—delegate districts. No power of any kind can be delegated by the legislature to such private organizations as county committees. The ancient, but not always honorable, trade of committeeman has been dealt a blow. Places on committees may not be so desirable henceforth.

There are some people who will be content with nothing short of the directest kind of direct primaries. The majority will be content if they get absolutely fair primaries of some kind—primaries as honestly conducted as are regular elections. If the members of the general assembly are not controlled by politicians who do not want fair primaries, a measure that would be acceptable to most of the voters who attend primaries can be agreed on in a week or ten days.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

Chief Shippy has ordered Assistant Chief Schuettler to put a stop to gambling in the business district. He will obey orders with zeal and intelligence. He began on Wednesday by pulling out a number of telephones which were used for gambling purposes, and he will not stop until he has rooted them all out and driven off the men behind them. Only stealthy and petty forms of gambling will survive.

The business district is in capable hands. If other parts of the city are equally fortunate, if all of Chief Shippy's subordinates are as loyal as Schuettler, gamblers will find their occupation practically at an end in Chicago.

The enforcement of ordinances relating to disorderly saloons, gambling, etc., is a simple matter when the police, from the superintendent down to patrolman, endeavor to enforce them. Chief Shippy says that the laws shall be obeyed. His recent order indicates that if any of his subordinates do not coöperate heartily with him he will get after them.

In a little more time he can find the weak spots in the force, and ordinances which have usually been a dead letter in nearly all parts of the city can be enforced everywhere.

CEMETERIES AND BEER GARDENS.

A few months ago an effectual protest was made against the establishment of an amusement park in the peaceful neighborhood of two cemeteries lying near the Desplaines river. The effort to bring riot of mirth from the careless living to disturb the silence of the dead has been repeated. No wonder the people of Forest Park and the families who go to lay flowers on the graves of their kin in Concordia or Waldheim are indignant.

There is enough idle land to cover with merry-go-rounds and scenic railways without intruding upon the neighborhood of God's acre. Beer gardens and dancing pavilions are numerous enough. It would afford the mourner by the tomb ground for moralizing on the brevity and unsubstantiality of pleasure to listen to the strains of the waltz and the shouts of the frolic makers while his eye rested upon the inscriptions showing where the young as well as the old lay buried. But the visitor to the graveyard does not go there to moralize, but to shut out the world and be alone with memories. Revelry is an intrusion, a sacrilege.

The local authorities should prevent the contemplated outrage. If they fail, they should be interred politically, and the utmost powers of the courts should be used to defend the widows, the orphans, and the grieving parents who wish their dead to lie in silent places.

TYPHOID AND OYSTERS.

Two million bushels of oysters are taken every year from the waters of New York bay and the adjacent channels into which the sewage of New York is discharged. The New York bay pollution commission examined thousands of oysters from these beds a few years ago and could not find one free from typhoid fever germs. The test has just been repeated with oysters from Gravesend bay and from the shores of Staten island—that is to say, from both sides of the Narrows—and a higher percentage of disease was found.

The comforting theory was long held that the sewage of New York was swept out to sea, but it is found that the outgoing and incoming tides meeting in the Narrows drive the sewage back, so that nearly 80 per cent of the solid matter in the sewage is left floating in the bay or deposited on the muddy bottom. Almost no food fishes can be found in New York bay, and the oysters which fatten there are not fit for human food. The commission which has been examining the matter ascribes to these poisonous oysters which are placed on the New York market under various names the threefold increase of typhoid fever from August to September, when the R months begin.

In Chicago the health department has laid the annual fall increase of typhoid fever to germs brought back from summer resorts by people who on their vacation have drunk infected water. It may be that in Chicago, as well as New York, the oyster has a larger share of responsibility than has been credited to it. Fortunately, a large portion of the oyster supply of this city comes from Chesapeake bay and other waters remote from the sewage of large cities, but it is inevitable that some of the infected oysters should be shipped here.

Both New York and New Jersey are awakening to the necessity of ceasing to pollute the water of rivers and bays. The cities of Elizabeth and Paterson have been ordered to stop the practice. New York will soon be obliged to follow suit. New York bay and adjacent waters are nothing but a foul open sewer. The oyster question is a serious one, but strict regulations can control the sale of oysters, while the matter of the pollution of the air will before many years become a vital one.

In the meantime Chicago, while waiting for the purification of New York bay by action of the states and cities nearest, can and should in self-defense adopt a system of inspection of oysters like that in use to insure pure milk. Oysters should not be allowed to be sold in the city without any official knowledge of their source and healthfulness. Until some inspection the wise man will either avoid oysters or eat them cooked, or drench them in lemon juice as a sanitary precaution.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Reaction.

Auldsport—"Why so gloomy, old chap? Last night you were having the finest time I ever saw a man have."

Gayman—"Well, doesn't that explain it, you chump?"

Not So Vital.

Domestic—"The idea o' your thinkin' I was listenin' to what you an' Mr. Ferguson said when you an' him was wranglin'! I didn't hear the first word o' your talk!"

Mistress—"I wouldn't have minded that so much, Verena. But didn't you hear the last words of it?"

Hope.

'Tis more appropriate, per-Chance,
For lucky towns whose clubs
Are not compelled by circumstance
To buck against the Cubs.

Has Its Compensations.

"You're about 11 years old, aren't you, Frank?" said his employer.

"No, sir," answered the office boy. "I'm nearly 15."

"You don't look it, by four or five years. Isn't it a bit mortifying to be taken always for a little boy?"

"Naw! It's a good t'ing. I gits t'ree cents rides on de street cars."

Another Reactionary.

"It is permissible, I believe," said the lecturer, by way of making his idea still plainer, "to take an illustration from the great book of nature——"

"I protest," interrupted a sour faced man in the audience. "President Roosevelt owns the copyright on that book!"

Blissful Ignorance.

Critical Towards Breakfast.

As a nation we have the reputation of staking all upon breakfast. On the continent, indeed, there is still a lingering suspicion that we sit down to rounds of beef and enormous beakers of potent, home brewed beer. But, as a fact, we are becoming increasingly critical toward even the ordinary breakfast of reality. There come mornings when we wonder why the meal exists.—London Globe.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

CHIEF magistrates of republics and even governors of American states have in some particulars a greater amount of power vested in their hands than foreign emperors and kings. This is especially the case in connection with the nominally royal prerogative of clemency. The presidents of the French republic and of the United States, as well as the governors of most of the states of this union, are entirely free from any restriction in the exercise of their right of pardon. No matter how guilty a criminal and how powerful the reasons which have led the various tribunals to sentence him, after due trial and conviction by jury, to long terms of penal servitude or to death, the president or the governor is free to restore him to immediate liberty and to remit the punishment. There is nothing, in fact, to prevent the grant of a pardon from being dictated by mere caprice.

In most of the monarchical countries of Europe, however, the sovereign is unable to grant a pardon, or even to commute a death sentence, without the sanction of his ministers, who are responsible to parliament for his exercise of clemency. King Louis Philippe illustrated this condition of affairs on one occasion when Victor Hugo came to entreat him to commute the penalty of a criminal who had been sentenced to death. "I will gladly grant the clemency which you ask for as far as I am concerned," he exclaimed to the poet, "but I must now set to work to obtain it from my ministers."

Even in the second and third decades of the last century, when constitutionalism was far less powerful than today and when parliaments had much less voice in the administration of the government, monarchs complained of being prevented by their ministers from the exercise of clemency, and it is known that King Louis XVIII. would have commuted the capital sentences of several of Napoleon's generals after the battle of Waterloo had it not been for the bitter opposition of his ministers.

King Alfonso on Good Friday each year during the divine service, commutes the sentence of several prisoners condemned to death, but it is always with the sanction of his ministers, whose signatures are required to the document in addition to that of the monarch in order to render it valid.

But President Fallieres, when he commuted the death sentence of the ignoble Soleilland, who had killed a little girl under the most atrocious circumstances, acted of his own free will and was not obliged to consult any of his ministers. He commuted the sentence not because the murderer merited any clemency but solely and entirely because he, the president, before being elected to his present office and while still a senator, had professed himself in favor of the abolition of the death penalty during the course of an academic discussion about the matter. He took the ground that he would be charged with inconsistency if he did not, as president, live up to the opinion which he had expressed in a more or less private capacity, and sooner than expose himself to an accusation of this kind he took upon himself to commute and rob of its severity a sentence pronounced upon Soleilland by the tribunals after careful trial, convicted by a jury, and confirmation of the decree by the highest courts of the land. Such a thing would be possible here in America, but not in most of the monarchical countries of Europe, not even in Germany, Austria, or Great Britain.

In England the sovereign has theoretically three kinds of pardons at his disposal, none of which, however, can be exercised without the coöperation and sanction of one of his secretaries of state, usually the secretary of state for the home department. There is the pardon of right, the pardon of grace, and the pardon by act of parliament. The pardon of right is restricted exclusively to those who are held to have committed justifiable homicide. The pardon of grace is used for those who have been convicted rightfully or wrongfully. Both these pardons are over the sign manual of the sovereign, to whom these documents are now submitted for approval, though they never went further than the secretary of state for the home department during the reign of Queen Victoria.

The pardon by act of parliament is the most complete and full pardon that can be granted to a wrongfully convicted prisoner. It originates with the sovereign and is then read in both houses. But there is no first, second, or third reading, as in the case of ordinary measures brought before the national legislature. Once, and once only, is it read in each house, the members being uncovered the while. Then it receives the royal assent forthwith and becomes a pardon by act of parliament.

The last pardon by act of legislature that I can recall is that granted to Admiral the Earl of Dundonald, who, while still Lord Cochrane, was wrongfully convicted of conspiracy in connection with stock exchange frauds. This was the Lord Cochrane who played so prominent a rôle as naval commander in the liberation of Chile and Peru from Spanish rule, assisted them to procure their independence, and who afterwards commanded the navy of Greece in her struggle for freedom from Turkey. He was the grandfather of the present earl of Dundonald, who formerly commanded the militia forces of Canada.

Lady Louisa Egerton, whose death has just taken place in England, was the only sister of the duke of Devonshire; but, although fond of her brother, she saw but little of him after his marriage, sharing the dislike of her father, the late duke, for the present duchess. Like her husband, the late Admiral the Hon. Francis Egerton, second son of the earl of Ellesmere, she followed her old friend William E. Gladstone into the home rule camp when he adopted the Irish nationalist cause as his own, this in spite of the murder in Phœnix park of her other brother, Lord Frederick Cavendish. But, imbued with a strong sense of family pride and unwilling that there should be any public manifestation of political differences in the bosom of the historic house of Cavendish, she not only refrained from airing her opinions on the subject of home rule but even went so far as to induce her husband, the admiral, to resign his seat in parliament rather than to range himself in the house of commons among the political foes of her brother, who, it may be remembered, broke away from Mr. Gladstone on this Irish question and remains today a declared adversary of Irish nationalism.

Unlike the present duchess of Devonshire, Lady Louisa cared absolutely nothing for society in the worldly sense of the word. She was a religious, high bred, extremely charitable woman, quiet, simple, and unaffected, and with strong domestic interests. Until her father's death she and her husband made their home entirely with him, and it was under his roof that were born her five children, one of whom, a captain of the royal navy, succumbed to wounds received at Ladysmith during the South African war.

Living with her father, she naturally became imbued with his prejudices and with his distaste for the romance that has played so important a rôle in the life of the present duke, and that has culminated in his singularly happy marriage. The sentiments of the late duke found a painful expression in his testamentary dispositions and in the efforts which he made in his will to prevent the then widowed duchess of Manchester from securing, in the event of her becoming duchess of Devonshire, the most treasured jewels that had belonged to his own wife. These jewels are now in the possession of the wife of his grandson, Victor Cavendish, who is next heir to the dukedom of Devonshire and nephew of the present duke.

New Version.

[From Harper's Magazine.]

A teacher in a North Carolina school recently asked the pupils of the seventh grade to sketch the events surrounding Julius Cæsar's death. A boy in the class wrote as follows:

"Cæsar was killed by the ides of March. Somebody told him he had better watch out for the ides, but he said he wasn't afraid of them. One morning when he was going along the street a man said to him, the ides are here. And Cæsar said, but they ain't all here. Then he went in the senate house, and the ides were over in one corner. Directly one of them ran up and stuck his dagger in Cæsar's back, and then all the other ides stuck their daggers in him, and he fell over and died."

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

Mr. Randall Parrish, who began writing only in middle age, has developed into one of the most industrious writers of this section. He has two books offering for the present book season, one of which is "BETH NORVELL," a story of the contemporary and untamed west. The heroine is a young person of birth and breeding, who, having contracted an unhappy marriage, disappears from all who know her, and joins a fly by night theatrical troup in the far west. She is not at first conscious of any interest in the work, but the inherent honesty and her native estheticism combine to arouse in her an ambition to do her work well. The poignancy of her loneliness and regret aid her in the understanding which she is acquiring of human nature, and the consequence is that she becomes an actress of power, though she is surrounded by tawdry dramatic influences.

An accident brings to the acquaintance of Beth Norvell a young mining engineer, the son of a Denver banker. Winston is temporarily disengaged when he meets the actress, and the spirit of adventure prompts him to join the company as utility man. The two fall in love in spite of all that should hold them apart, and the story is the recital of their adventures. The book is of the sort which we once termed the dime novel, and like the dime novel is warranted to reward virtue and to confound villainy. There is a large admixture of villainy to the virtue—about two to one—but in the end all is well; the wicked are laid low and the good are raised up.

In dialect, Mr. Parrish contrives good recital and conversation, but his idea of a polite and elegant conversation remains quite grotesque. A. C. McClurg & Co. publish the book.

E. P. Dutton & Co. will publish this week "A Consideration of the State of Ireland in the Nineteenth Century," by G. Locker Lampson; "The Travels of the King, Charles II., in Germany and Flanders, 1654-1660," by Eva Scott, author of "The King in Exile." "The Commercial Relations of England and Portugal," by V. M. Shillington; "The Condition of the Border at the Union," by John Graham; and "Reminiscences of Scottish Life and Character" (both series in one volume), by Dean Ramsey, in the New Universal library.

Messrs. L. C. Page & Co. announce the publication of a new volume in their Art Galleries series, entitled "The Art of the Prado," by C. S. Ricketts. The Prado, which contains practically intact the work of the leading Spanish artists, has been called a collection of masterpieces. Its leading artists are Velasquez, Titian, and Rubens, but with few exceptions the foremost painters of all the schools are represented by their best work.

A little story that is notable for its reality although it has to do with people who lived in a Vermont village in prerevolutionary days, is Sarah N. Cleghorn's "A TURNPIKE LADY" (Holt). One can find no fault with the workmanship here, for although the romance of Naomi is unpretentious and the plot far from intricate, it has required skill of no mean sort to catch and maintain the spirit of those times so accurately.

From a psychological standpoint, Naomi's life of ideals and dreams and her affair with the schoolmaster do not interest one half so much as the sudden recovery of Naomi's sister Eliza from a strange wasting illness.

Eliza had been petted and coddled from childhood, for she was called the delicate child, and her lack of appetite and color had been so emphasized that she inclined to take pleasure in her ailments.

While the other children ran and played Eliza sat in the house with some bit of fancy work and drooped and faded.

Her father was taken from home in the cause of the war, and Eliza fared ill. When a letter from him came one day and was read aloud Eliza sank back in her chair and clapped her hand to her side. The old medicine—toads steeped in cider, with dried plantains and spices—gave her no strength. Spring advanced and then came an itinerant minister who spoke of witchcraft. Eliza then seized upon the notion that she was bewitched, and accused a girl cousin of holding over her a spell.

There was nothing to do but carry her to the garret where she might feel the freshest air. Her hysterical outbursts unnerved the family, and at their wits' end they were kneeling in prayer when the father returned.

Eliza had always been his favorite child. Now he sat and watched the frail girl tossing on the bed and planned to cure her of this dread disease.

In the feedbox in the garret four gold pieces were treasured sacredly for the king's cause. It must have been a strong conviction that urged him to take two of them—for this is what he did, riding into town and straight to Amri Falconer's shop.

When Eliza awoke at 5 o'clock the next morning she was dazzled by the sight of a dozen breadths of shimmering green silk heaped all over her bed in the sunshine.

"'Who has buyed me this?' she wondered. 'Marm has buyed it with the seed money! O, no—I guess I'm dreaming.' She rubbed her pale cheek with it. She could not keep her fingers off it. The roosters crowed below; the sun shone on the cabbages; she heard the churn in the woodhouse. Budsey, in his long apron, carried the bucket up from the well. For the first time in many a week Eliza wished she was up and dressed.

"Eliza was lying in the sun, with the silk drawn up to her chin, when Marm came laboring upstairs with a dish of suppawn for her breakfast. Eliza wanted no breakfast but the feast of color which she was drinking in with her gentle, sunken, craving eyes. Marm said how well the charm had worked, and beckoned Mr. Polke, who crept to the doorway in his stocking feet. He heard Eliza say:

"'I know, Marm Patridge, you buyed me this dress aout of the seed money.'"

"'Do you want I should tell ye who buyed it for ye?'"

"'Yes, yes—tell me quick.'"

When she hears that her father is home she gets out of bed and demands to see him. On Sunday she is up and dressed. On Monday she begins to hint subtly to Marm that there shall be a quilting at their house, and a quilting there is, and Eliza appears in her new green silk. That her recovery and her downfall are to be traced to the same origin is the pathetic side of this humorous study of the eternal feminine nature.

After a silence of some years Mr. Irving Bacheller comes before the public with a small book, "EBEN HOLDEN'S LAST DAY A-FISHING" (Harper's). It is an inconspicuous book, but the story of the old man's last fishing trip is told with much simple humor and tenderness. The book is illustrated and the pages decorated.

Among the Century company's juvenile publications this fall will be a series of six volumes of "Geographical Stories," retold from St. Nicholas, books of adventure, travel, and description, chiefly in the great geographical divisions of the United States. There will be "Sea Stories," "Western Frontier Stories," "Stories of the Great Lake," "Stories of the South," "Island Stories," and "Stories of Strange Sights."

Mrs. Etta Anthony Baker has based her first book, "The Youngsters of Centerville" (which Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. issue this month), upon events occurring on a dozen school and national holidays.

CHURCHES TO ASK THE MAYOR TO SHUT SALOONS ON SUNDAY.

In Advance of Receiving Letter City's Executive Says He Will Do Nothing of the Kind.

Mayor Busse will receive a letter this morning from the Rev. W. A. Bartlett asking him to close saloons on Sundays. It is understood to be the start of another attempt to persuade the city administration to enforce the state law.

The mayor said last evening he had not received the letter, and so could not answer it directly, but in a general way he was willing to have it known that he had no intention of doing anything of the sort. He already had declared his position to a delegation who visited him shortly after his election, and nothing had happened since to make him change his mind.

The letter embodies the following memorial, which was adopted at the October session of the Chicago Congregational association:

We, the ministers and delegates of the Chicago Congregational association, in the name of the membership of our churches, and in so far as we may assume to speak, in the name of the Christian citizenship of our city, respectfully ask you, the mayor of our great city, to enforce the state law regarding the closing of the saloons on Sunday; in the doing of which we pledge you our heartiest coöperation in every way possible.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS

Charles E. Kohl, owner and manager of four leading vaudeville theaters in Chicago, in an interview yesterday stated that Chicago had produced finer vaudeville acts in the past than any other city in the country.

"I am a Chicagoan through and through," said Mr. Kohl, "and I learned many years ago in this city that vaudeville as a form of entertainment could please without offending the most fastidious taste and I have always insisted that the performances given in the Majestic, Chicago opera house, Haymarket, or Olympic theater shall include no word or action that might not be used in my own or any other man's parlor in the presence of his wife and children. On this plane these theaters are conducted and every one in their employ is thoroughly grounded in the system.

"Chicago theatergoers know a good show when they see it and I would rather take their judgment than that of any other audience I know, as they are admittedly the most critical in the country. If we give our patrons a 'starless' all-star cast or a 'warmed over' show we could not win success, because the people who attend vaudeville shows in Chicago are intelligent and cannot be fooled.

"During my career as manager of the leading vaudeville theaters of this city there never was a time when the expenditure of large sums of money stood in the way of providing the best possible entertainment for our patrons. Actions speak louder than promises. Here are a few of the highest class actors and actresses who have played at our vaudeville houses in the last five years:

"Vesta Tilley, Marguerite Sylva, Della Fox, Rose Coghlan, May De Sousa, Stella Mayhew, Pauline Hall, Grace Van Studdiford, Marie Wainwright, Fanny Rice, Bessie Clayton, Mabel Hite, Rose Stahl, Mrs. Stuart Robson, Dorothy Russell, Edna Wallace Hopper, Lilly Langtry, Amelia Bingham, Cecilia Loftus, Mabel Barrison, Virginia Earl, Olive May, Kate Condon, Emma Carus, Truly Shattuck, Ida Fuller, May Yohe, Toby Claude, Elfie Fay, Minnie Seligman, Elita Proctor Otis, Flo Irwin, Amelia Summerville, Eva Tanguay, May Irwin, Zellie de Lussan, Robert Hilliard, Henry Lee, William Norris, Clifton Crawford, George Evans, Peter Dailey, Cinquevalli, Houdini, Lee Harrison, Lew Dockstader, Gus Williams, Walter Jones, Marshall P. Wilder, James T. Powers, Charles Evans, Eddie Foy, Arthur Dunn, William Courtleigh, James J. Morton, Claude Gillingwater, Hubert Wilkie, Julius Steger, Edward Arden, Charles Warner, Arnold Daly, George Fuller Golden, James J. Corbett, George Primrose, Sidney Drew, Edward J. Connolly, William Bramwell, Henry E. Dixey, the Four Cohans, McIntyre and Heath, the Four Mortons, Cressy and Dayne, Collins and Hart, Fred Karno's pantomime troupe.

"That list of stars does not look as if Chicago has been the dumping ground for poor vaudeville acts. Chicago insists on having the real goods in the amusement line all the time. Not for one week but every week in the season. This is proved every month by shows which come here with long New York runs to their credit and play to empty seats."

WIT OF THE WORLD.

HUMOR FROM FRANCE.

An Englishman passing down the Rue Saint Honoré broke a pane of glass which the owner valued at 50 sous. Not having enough change for the 100 sou piece which the Englishman gave him, he started out of the shop to get it, when the latter stopped him.

"Don't bother to do that," said he, "I will complete the sum."

And he smashed the other window.—Pele Mele.

She—"Here is your engagement ring, Henri. I cannot marry you; I love another."

He—"What is his name?"

She—"In heaven's name, you won't kill him, will you?"

He—"O, no, but I thought I might do a deal with him with this ring."—Sourire.

A cabman found one day a magnificent hare that had been left in his cab and immediately hurried with it to the police station.

"All right," said the superintendent. "Come back in a year and a day, and if the hare has not been claimed by then, it is yours."—Nos Loisirs.

A young doctor, who had recently bought the practice in a certain small town, received a visit from a man one afternoon.

"I have called to see whether you would be willing to renew the contract that I had with your predecessor. I gave him a fixed commission on all clients whom he sent to me."

"Ah, you are the chemist, I suppose?" said the doctor.

"No, sir, the undertaker."—Bon Vivant.

"What! You are going to get a divorce after living with your husband for thirty-five years?"

"Yes. I've gained experience and come to the conclusion that an old man of 68 cannot be my life companion."—Zuk.

Teacher—"If to three pints of wine, two are added, what will be the result?"

Pupil (readily)—"Drunkenness."—Bon Vivant.

Actress (on the stage)—"Tell me, O tell me, where is my mother?"

Voice from the Gallery—"Selling potatoes in the market."—Pele Mele.

A Jewess went to a doctor and complained of a pain under the left eyelid.

"You've got a drop of blood in the white of the eye," said the doctor, after looking carefully at it.

"It's impossible," replied the Jewess.

"How dare you say that?" retorted the doctor.

"Well, you see," said the Jewess, "my left eye is a glass one."—Rire.

François was going to market in his cart.

"Yes."

"Could you take in a blouse for me?"

"Certainly, if you will let me know where to leave it."

"O, that's all right," said his friend, jumping into the cart, "I'm inside it now."—Nos Loisirs.

A cabby was brought to the police station for having hit one of his fares over the head during a dispute about his payment.

"Couldn't you explain to the gentleman without hitting him?" inquired the magistrate.

"Yes, sir, of course I know I was wrong, but you see I had jumped off the box, and I couldn't do that for nothing."—Nos Loisirs.

Would Select Tower's Successor from Diplomatic Service.

IF THE state department has its way a successor to Charlemagne Tower as ambassador to Germany will be selected from the diplomatic service. Secretary Root is endeavoring to form a permanent diplomatic corps something like that possessed by every other great power. The American service has been maintained on the spoils basis—that is to say, political influence and contributions to campaign funds usually have gotten the most important billets, irrespective of the qualifications of the candidates.

Tower, for example, has been always a liberal contributor to the republican campaign fund. He has made, however, an acceptable representative at Berlin. He has been on most friendly terms with Emperor William and has enjoyed the distinction of having the latter an occasional guest at dinner. If it be asked what he has accomplished the answer is difficult. He has assisted Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German ambassador here, in promoting the good relations of the two countries. He is cold blooded and is not popular with the American colony in Berlin. Nevertheless, he is considered one of the best representatives that have ever been accredited to the German court. His retirement is purely voluntary.

There is only one man in the entire diplomatic service who is equipped to succeed Mr. Tower. That is David Jayne Hill, minister to the Netherlands. Mr. Hill is a charming gentleman who has made a special study of European relations, speaks German fluently, and has had experience as assistant secretary of state, minister to Switzerland, minister to Holland, and one of the American plenipotentiaries to The Hague peace conference. While Mr. Hill is not as rich as Mr. Tower, he has ample means and can entertain as extensively as his predecessor has done. It has been the ambition of both Mr. and Mrs. Hill to be accredited to Germany.

If Mr. Hill be promoted he will be the fourth diplomat to be raised during this administration to the rank of ambassador. Henry White was transferred from secretary of embassy in London to ambassador to Italy and later sent to Paris. Lloyd Griscom, who was minister to Japan, was appointed ambassador to Brazil and then ordered to Rome. John W. Riddle, minister to Roumania, was made ambassador at St. Petersburg. Thomas J. O'Brien only recently was named ambassador at Tokio, going from Copenhagen, Denmark, where he ranked as minister. The result of these transfers, the state department claims, has been to demonstrate that men who have had diplomatic experience are far superior in the transaction of international business to those appointed direct from civil life.

Horse Indicates by Its Acts Power of Reasoning.

Upon only two things in the past few years have there been continued differences of opinion between the president and members of his cabinet. The first was phonetic spelling and the second the campaign against nature faking. One of the members of the cabinet who may come in for presidential discipline told today the following story:

"Where I was last summer there were two horses put out to pasture. They had been mates from the time they were foaled. Whenever one was taken out of the stable the other followed and always was hitched to him. Their names were Harry and Arthur. One day Harry was noticed close to the house and heard to whinny. No attention was paid to him. As soon as twilight came the horse disappeared and was away all night. He turned up in the morning, kept his eyes on the door, and when anybody came out he started to whinny again.

"At the end of the second day the attention of a visitor, who had been a cowboy, was attracted to the animal. 'He wants something,' he said. He walked up to Harry. This time the horse whinnied with pleasure, turned around, ran a few steps, then twisted his head to see if the man were following. The cowboy went to the stable, saddled his horse, and started after Harry. The latter increased his pace until he was going at a wild trot. He turned round every hundred yards to see if the man was coming. After riding a dozen miles or so Harry descended into a valley and at the bottom was a pit, into which Arthur had fallen and where he was lying. Arthur was not dead, but weak from lack of water and food. There was a deep track around the pit, which Harry had made by his watches at night. Evidently he had tried to assist his mate to get out, but had failed and concluded the only way to relieve him was to get the assistance of man. Arthur was lifted out of the pit Harry stood by whinnying with satisfaction.

"This story raises the old question whether a horse reasons or has instinct. I am confident it reasons."

Odd Case of Thought Seeming to Create Language.

The German officials have a high regard for James H. Geary, chief of the customs division of the treasury department. Mr. Geary was a member of the American commission, which, in conjunction with the German commission, arranged a settlement of the irritating tariff differences between the United States and Germany. At a dinner given by one of the German commissioners Mr. Geary sat on the right of his hostess, who knows only a few words of English and French. Mr. Geary speaks French fluently, but has only a slight acquaintance with German. In spite of linguistic obstacles Mr. Geary and the German lady were able to conduct a most interesting conversation. Their ability to communicate ideas astonished the lady's husband.

"Did I not see and hear it," he remarked, "I would not have thought it possible for two people not speaking a common language to converse so fluently. My wife does not know English and but a few words of French. Mr. Geary does not know German. They are talking a polyglot language, but they understand each other perfectly."

"Talleyrand has said," responded one of the guests, "that language was made to conceal thought. In the case of your wife and Mr. Geary, it is evident that thought is creating language."

Refusal to Support Senator Quay Made Quay His Friend.

There is one man in congress who gained the warm admiration of Matthew Quay, the one time boss of the Keystone state, by his refusal to support him for the presidential nomination. He is Representative George F. Huff, a prominent banker and coal operator of Norristown, Pa. During the campaign of 1896 a boom was started for Quay, and the friends of the senator demanded from all Pennsylvania congressmen that they sign a paper indorsing his candidacy.

"I can't do it," said Huff, squaring his chin.

"Do you know," he was asked, "that your refusal will cost you reëlection?"

Huff promptly flung back his answer:

"I cannot be defeated for reëlection," he declared, "for the simple reason that from this moment I am not a candidate to succeed myself."

The facts of the congressman's attitude got noised about, and later on he was returned to Washington. Quay entertained no ill feeling against him, but, on the other hand, approved his renomination for congress and assisted him in his campaign.

Sudden Drop.

Dinks—"Say, old man, you're a wreck! What's the trouble?"

Winks—"Fall opening."

Dinks—"What? Shopping with a mob of women?"

Winks—"No; coal hole."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Thymol in Toothache.

In toothache arising from a hollow tooth thymol has been advised. The cavity is filled with a tuft of cotton wool on which a few grains of thymol have been sprinkled. If any irritation of the mucous membrane is caused it can be checked by rinsing the mouth with warm water.—London Hospital.

DEBUTANTES FEW THIS YEAR

WILL MISS YALE GLEE CLUB.

College Concert at Christmas Probably Will Not Be Scheduled.

It has been many years since a season has been so lacking in débutantes as the present and society folk are getting alarmed, for the introduction of the young women fresh from college or finishing travels usually forms the backbone of the winter's entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Blair, who have been spending their winters in Washington the last few years, are to return to Chicago for the coming season and it is probable that their younger daughter, Miss Lucy Blair, may be presented. Miss Blair has been going about in the eastern circle for the last year and her presentation to Chicago society may be informal only, but the intention of the family to return will be welcome news to north side circles. Mr. Blair is now in the city at the Chicago club, but Mrs. Blair and daughters will not return from their summer home at Beverly Farms until next week. Miss Blair is a granddaughter of Mrs. William Blair, 148 Rush street.

Another young woman for whose presentation society is hoping this year is Miss Helen Judah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble B. Judah, 2701 Prairie avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Judah have returned from their summer home, Brandon Farm, Vincennes, Ind., and, although rumor says that Miss Judah is a promised débutante, her coming out has not been decided definitely as yet.

One of the first débutantes of the season willl be Miss Helen B. Marsh, who will be presented by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen Marsh, at a reception to be given at their residence, 5639 Washington avenue, next Friday evening. The reception will be followed by dancing for the young people. Those assisting will include Mrs. James M. Walker, Mrs. George Marsh, Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, Mrs. Francis W. Parker, Mrs. James Rowland Angell, Mrs. Frank Allport Mrs. Edward G. Ewart, Mrs. Benjamin Terry, Mrs. George Benedict, Mrs. J. Gordon Laing, Mrs. Wilson Robertson, Mrs. Homer Dixon, and several young women. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Bimm and Miss Kathryn Bimm of Dayton and Miss Edith Meachem of Cincinnati will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh for the reception.

If report says truly, also, the younger set is to miss the Yale Glee club concert this year. The concert has been one of the big events of the holiday season for many years, bringing with it a round of dances and dinners, but this year the managers have about decided to pass by Chicago and go to Denver instead. although the decision has not reached the point where it is past reconsidering.

Miss Helen Marie Roche was married to Mr. Arthur Collson Tobin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Tobin of Oak Park, at 8 o'clock last evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. John A. Roche, 4605 Drexel boulevard. The Rev. James Vila Blake read the service.

Miss Roche gave a touch of originality to her bridal party by having a mother and daughter as the honored members among her attendants. Her sister, Mrs. George C. Howland, served as matron of honor and Miss Cora Virginia Howland, 11 years old, as maid of honor. The bridemaids were Miss Helen Shedd, Miss Pearl Harris, Miss Florence Beman, and Miss Helen Parish, the bridegroom's cousin from South Bend, Ind. Mr. Tobin's best man was Mr. James Sheldon Riley and the ushers were Mr. James R. Henry, Mr. Bradley McCausland, and Mr. Eugene N. Hunting of Youngstown, O.

The bride's gown was of ivory messaline satin, with a rose point lace bertha. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried bride roses. Mrs. Howland wore rose pink messaline satin and point lace, and the young maid of honor wore a frock of white swiss embroidery over pink silk. The bridesmaids were in gowns of pink crêpe de chine with lace berthas, and carried pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Tobin will be at home at the Roche residence after Nov. 15.

Mrs. Augustus Byram, Mrs. C. C. Burnes, and Miss Marjorie Burnes returned to their home at 111 Lake Shore drive yesterday after a summer in Europe. The marriage of Miss Burnes and Sidney C. Love is to take place the latter part of the month, the day as yet not having been decided. Miss Burnes is not accepting the usual round of entertainments which are bestowed on the brides of today.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Dickerson, 4901 Lake avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Mr. Robert Rea Ware of Chicago.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Towner, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Towner, 2444 Kenmore avenue, to Mr. Philipp Jaeger Jr. is to take place at 8 o'clock on the evening of Nov. 12 at Epworth Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Ellen Davis, Miss Helen Hyman, Miss Hester Magee, and Miss Elizabeth Zorge will be the bridemaids and Mrs. W. M. Gelderman will be the matron of honor. Mr. Jaeger will have Mr. Edward Henricks for his best man and the ushers will be Mr. Charles Jaeger, Mr. George Henricks, and Mr. Fred Bischoff.

Miss Marie Louise Stewart and Mr. W. Nevin Pomeroy will be married at 8 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 26 at the residence of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Bishop, 828 Kenilworth avenue, Rogers Park. Miss Bertha Steuhler of St. Louis, who is to be the maid of honor, is Miss Stewart's guest.

Invitations will be issued tomorrow for the marriage of Miss Rachel Currey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Seymour Currey of 1308 Judson avenue, Evanston, to Mr. Paul Day of Boston. The wedding is to take place Oct. 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Elliott, 355 Oakwood boulevard, will celebrate their golden wedding Monday evening. A reception will be given from 9 to 11 at the home and will be preceded by a family dinner to be given by Mrs. A. J. Elliott, 4107 Vincennes avenue. Among the relatives who will come for the event will be Mrs. Elliott's sisters, Mrs. E. C. Preston of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Mrs. A. K. Bodman of Joplin, Mo., and her brother, Mr. Frank Twogood of Plankinton, N. D., all of whom were present at the wedding of fifty years ago. Another out-of-town guest will be Mr. William Smith McCormick of Duluth, Minn., whose engagement to Miss Louise Elliott, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, was announced recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson will give a dance at their home in Lake Forest tomorrow.

The Misses Dupee, 486 Dearborn avenue, will give a young people's tea this afternoon for their guest, Miss Garrett of St. Louis.

Mrs. Sophia Jacques announces the marriage of her daughter, Adelaide Louise, to Dr. William Cummings Fischer, which took place Wednesday, Oct. 9, at Bronxville, N. Y. Dr. Fischer was formerly of the United States army, with headquarters at Fort Sheridan from 1901 to 1904, but now resides in New York City.

The marriage of Miss Blanche Delphine Litt, daughter of Mr. David Curtin Litt, 5134 Michigan avenue, and Julius J. Steiner of New York will be solemnized next Tuesday at 6 o'clock in the evening in the banquet room of the Great Northern hotel. Dr. Joseph Stolz will perform the ceremony. Miss Litt will have her sister, Sylvia, as maid of honor, and Mr. Albert Steiner will act as best man for his brother. Many relatives from Milwaukee, Philadelphia, and New York will attend the wedding.

The Colonial club of Chicago, 4445 Grand boulevard, will open its clubhouse for the winter season with a formal dancing party this evening.

The Illinois Alumnæ association of National Park seminary, Washington, D. C., will hold the eighth of a series of à la carte luncheons tomorrow at 12:30 in Marshall Field's southeast tea room.

Altering Girls' Skirts.

The momentous question of altering and lengthening girls' skirts is a never ending problem. Of course, if there is a hem it should be let down as a first means. A few years ago it was not nearly so difficult to lengthen a skirt, as one could use ruffles, flounces, and yokes. Yokes were probably the most popular method. However, in this day when neither yokes or flounces are worn and when ruffles seldom are, it amounts to quite a perplexing question. A dress of plain colored material may be lengthened by letting in bias bands of plaid. If the dress is plaid bands of plain colored material may be used. A color should be chosen which matches one of the colors of the plaid. The width of the band should be determined by the number of inches you desire to add to the length of the skirt. Decide where you wish to place the bands and then cut the skirt here. Stitch one side of the band to one side of the cut part and stitch the other side to the opposite part. This will lengthen the skirt the width of the band. When two or three bands are used the skirt will then be the desired length. S. A. H.

Aid to Making Patches.

To mend a tear in a garment go to any tailor and buy some patcheen from him. Then cut a piece of patcheen an inch larger than the rent or tear and also cut a piece of cloth like the garment, the same size as the patcheen. Baste carefully on the wrong side with the piece of goods next to the garment. After it is neatly basted press on the wrong side with a hot iron. The patch will be a neat one and will also be invisible. B. H.

Slips for Fancy Waists.

Slips to keep fancy and dressy waists free from dust when hanging in the closet may be made of cambric or some other cheap material. They are made of two oblong pieces of material sewed together in exactly the same manner as a pillowslip is made. It does not need to be as large as a pillowslip, but it must be plenty large enough, so that it does not crease the waist. On one side of the opening at the top sew two buttons, each one six or eight inches from the ends. On the opposite side, in corresponding places, work buttonholes. Place waist over a hanger and draw the slip up over it. Then button at the top and you will have a fine protector for your waist. Slips for skirts may be made in the same manner, making them lots longer of course.

To Clean Dust Marks on Pictures.

If when one is ready to clean pictures it is found that the dust has sifted through the backing, which has not been firm, and an ugly mark is made on the white rim, it can be removed easily by rubbing the dirty place with a stale piece of white bread, leaving it quite as fresh looking as when new. Miss Nora Ansley.

Bread Cleans Rugs.

Use half rye and half wheat bread; rub over rug the same as scrubbing, and when through sweep thoroughly. The rug will be like new. Mrs. E. A.

Ivory Handle Knives.

Knives which have ivory handles which have become darkened should have the handles rubbed with half a lemon which has been dipped in salt. After treating them thus wash in warm water. R. L.

Soap as a Lubricator.

Drawers that refuse to move in or out should be rubbed with a little yellow soap from the kitchen to make them work smoothly. This same remedy may be applied to windows which have to be coaxed before they will move either up or down.

With the Girl Workers

Let the Married Woman Work.

A letter in this column states that the attitude of some business houses in this city is to refuse to employ married women, and the writer of that liberal minded communication declared her hearty approval of such exemption.

I, too, personally know, being a married woman and a stenographer, that some firms will not employ married women clerks. But far from commending their attitude, I always have felt that it reflected most unfavorably on the intellectual caliber and judgment of the management of such firms.

It is more than likely that the mothers of most of these men worked! Not as stenographers or office women, to be sure, but they did some work of one kind or another to add to the family purse or else they and their children went without. In my growing up, in a thriving eastern suburb, nearly all of our neighbors, a large percentage of whom, including my parents, were the Anglo-Saxon type, with more or less lofty ideas of high living as exemplified in the old country—did some sort of work. Some of them basted vests, and others tailor made clothing, overalls, etc.; some crocheted shawls and hoods, others went out day nursing; all was done in a quiet, underhanded, genteel way, they apparently considering it a disgrace to have people know that they, the women of the family, did any kind of work for money. My mother worked, too.

It was these hand to mouth conditions among the matrons, young and old, that made me resolve to learn a trade, to learn to do something at which I could find steady employment at living wages, when I should grow up to be a woman. And it was a wise resolution. I today am earning more than my husband, being employed as secretary to the president of a large corporation, but I earn all that I am getting, and I always have done so. I am so situated in life that I am obliged to work and earn money, and it is likely that I shall be so situated for many years to come. I never in my life worked for 'pin' money, and I don't believe that many women are working from any such motive. It is my opinion, based on fifteen years' close observation of conditions and people in the business world, that the married woman is far more likely to make the better clerk. I say if a competent woman stenographer wants employment, give it to her, married or single, she needs it. X. Y. Z.

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Three cloth belts of material to match the gown; one is made with small tucks at the back, and in this way a slight fullness is given; the other is a plain tailor-stitched belt with cloth covered buttons at the back. The last is a simple belt with slits cut into it, through which a narrower piece of goods is drawn.

Tested Recipes

Butter Improves Fruit Pies.

Add a piece of butter the size of a hickory nut and a pinch of salt to any kind of fruit pie, and there will be no complaint of pies tasting flat. Mrs. E. L. Billings.

Heat one cup of grated bread crumbs in one-fourth cup of butter. Add a peck of spinach leaves, cooked and chopped, and the flesh of a dozen sardines. Add salt and pepper. Then form into an oblong; garnish with slices of eggs and place sardines over the top.

Cooked spinach makes a good mound against which broiled chops may be served. The smaller the quantity of water used in cooking the better; salt should be added to preserve the color. The French call this vegetable the broom of the stomach. Mrs. C. Vinton Henry.

Popovers.

To two eggs add two cups of milk, two cups of flour, and one teaspoon of salt. Whip eggs until light, add flour and milk, and fill gem pans half full. Bake in brisk oven. Mrs. F. E. B.

Kidney with Tomato Sauce.

Cut in small pieces a fresh kidney and fry in hot lard. When almost done add to it a sliced onion, half a cup of tomatoes, and a slice of ham. Let all fry together and when done add a spoonful of flour, a piece of red pepper, and a spoonful of chopped garlic and parsley. Thin with a little water; season with salt, and boil a few minutes. Mrs. Waters.

Freshen Cold Biscuits.

Dip cold biscuits in cold water and place them on a tin in a hot oven long enough to become heated thoroughly and they will be as good as when freshly baked. C. P.

Rhubarb Orange Marmalade.

A delicious marmalade may be made of pieplant and oranges. To six pounds of pieplant take ten navel oranges and eight pounds of sugar. Cook pieplant soft. Grate the yellow from four oranges. Shred the rest of the rind and cook till tender. Add with the grated rind to the pieplant and sugar, and cook carefully until right consistency. Put in glasses and cover with melted paraffin. Mrs. E. W. Steinner.

For those Chilly Mornings.

Many people suffer more from cold in the fall and spring than in the depths of winter. Before fires are running as a matter of course every day, one is liable to much discomfort in spells of cold weather. A welcome convenience in the bed room and bath room is an electric heater. All the heat necessary is quickly obtained and at a cost that is hardly noticeable. The modern home is incomplete unless it is wired for electric light, which is inexpensive. Call Main 1280. Commonwealth Edison Company, 139 Adams Street.

Breaks 2 Year Old Trot Record. Women Golfers Reach Semi-Finals.

NEW RECORD FOR YOUNG TROTTERS.

Trampfast Wins 2 Year Old Division of Kentucky Futurity.

COLT'S TIME IS 2:12¼.

Field Is the Speediest of the Age and Gait to Face a Race Starter.

BY HENRY TEN EYCK WHITE.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The race record for 2 year old trotters went glimmering today, when Trampfast, son of the old time colt trotter The Tramp, colored like the old horse and gaited like him, won the first heat of the 2 year old division of the Kentucky Futurity in 2:12¼, the best previous record being the 2:13¾ of Jupe, made many years ago. Then Trampfast came back another mile in 2:16¾, and the stake was his.

Nothing like the same number of extremely fast 2 year old trotters had ever been before the starter, no less than six of the ten which took the word having shown miles in 2:16 or better. Because she never had been beaten and had stepped an easy mile in 2:16¼, The Leading Lady, daughter of Bingen, was made favorite at $100 to $90 over the field. She finished last, making a break before the first turn was reached in each of the miles, and it was only by a liberal stretching of the rules on the part of the judges that she was not declared distanced in the opening round.

Dorothy Axworthy Looks Winner.

Dorothy Axworthy drew the pole and for three-quarters of the first heat she looked all over a winner, stepping in the lead to the quarter in :33, the half in 1:05¾, and the three-quarters in 1:38⅓. Most of the time Henry Setzer, a local colt on which there was heavy playing, also was prominent, but as the head pair turned into the homestretch there was a general closing up, and it soon was seen that Trampfast, driven by Tommy Murphy, was coming fast in the middle of the track.

One by one he overtook the colts in front of him until but Dorothy Axworthy was left. She hung on gamely, but when it came to a finish the superior size and stamina of the roan colt told, and, although he did not win by more than a neck, he was going much the fastest right at the end in 2:12¼.

The pace had been terrific all the way, and Murphy had saved his colt a lot by not being out in front with him until the end of the journey. The rest of the field was close behind the leaders, and each of the first six at the finish trotted a heat that ordinarily would have been a winning one, the sixth colt to finish being timed by his owner in just 2:15.

Trampfast Not Easy Winner.

It was expected after this heat that Trampfast would be an easy winner, but he was not. In the opening mile Thistle Doune made a swerve on the first turn and it was claimed this caused The Leading Lady to break and fall so far to the rear she was distanced by five lengths. After the judges let her in it was figured she would go straight the second mile and perhaps save the money on her, but again she jumped in the first sixteenth and after that trailed behind for most of the way.

But Thistle Doune, which collided with her and was set back to last place in the heat, was different in the second mile. He trailed most of the way, Trampfast and Henry Setzer making the pace, they passing the quarter in :35¼, the half in 1:09¼, and three-quarters in 1:43. This was a much slower clip than in the first mile, and as the homestretch was reached Thistle Doune found a clear path through. He was trotting faster than the others in the last sixteenth and had a shade on Trampfast fifty yards from the wire.

Murphy a Strong Finisher.

But Murphy, one of the strongest finishers that sit in a sulky, took hold of his string colt in the last few strides and fairly lifted him under the wire in 2:16¾, Helen Hale, which had trotted strong the last quarter, being third on the outside and not beaten more than a neck by the first horse.

The race was much the best ever put up by 2 year olds and a peculiar fact in connection with it was that Benyon, who trained Trampfast all summer, turned him over to Murphy ten days ago, electing to drive The Leading Lady, which he considered the best of the lot.

The winner is owned by Durbin Horn, a Pittsburg merchant, and was offered for sale yesterday at $4,000. His part of the stake today was $3,000, and in the betting he was not in demand.

Dick McMahon pulled off the unfinished 2:08 pace with Lady Maud C., but it took two more heats to do the trick, as in the opening one the chestnut mare made a sprawling break in the homestretch.

Highball Out of Big Stake.

Highball will not start in the Transylvania tomorrow, which is believed to leave the race at the mercy of Sonoma Girl. In the betting tonight she sold 2 to 1 over the field, the other starters being Margaret O., Wilkes Heart, Athasham, Cloty, Latus, Jack Leyburn, Baraja, and Sterling McKinney. For the 2:20 trot Icon was a $50 to $40 favorite over the field, and in the 3 year old pacing stake there was no betting against Shakspeare. Highball was scratched because he is in two races here where he will not have to meet Sonoma Girl.

After the races today a yearling pacing colt by Jay McGregor was dirven an exhibition quarter by Will Evans in :30½, officially timed, the fastest rate of speed ever shown by a pacer of that age.

HUNTER HANDICAP TO VEIL.

Another Stake Race Goes to the Credit of J. R. Keene.

LANE ALLEN DISPLAYS CLASS.

Wins Mile and a Quarter Handicap in Romp—Other Races.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—James R. Keene's Veil won the Hunter handicap for 3 year old fillies at a mile at Belmont park today. Miller kept her in check behind Kennyetto, coupled with Danoscara, who set the pace to the head of the stretch, and then, cutting her loose, the Keene filly set sail for home. Miller was forced to a drive at the end to win by a length from A. L. Aste's Gold Lady, favorite, who closed with a gallant rush after Nicol had waited too long with her. Danoscara was a half a length back.

Lane Allen was pounds the best in the handicap at a mile and a quarter, for when Dugan got busy the Inverness colt shot to the front and rolled home three lengths in front of Miss Crawford, even money favorite. Sea Wall showed the way for six furlongs after a slow beginning, but blew up.

David Dunlop's Touchwood got the steeplechase for maiden 3 years olds, at about two miles, after a chapter of accidents. Sandy Creeker finished first, but was disqualified for running out of the course. A false start made seven of the eleven starters run nearly a mile before the riders learned there was nothing doing.

Belmont Park Summaries.

First race, 2 year olds, selling, ¾ mile—The Squire, 104 pounds [Miller], 5 to 2, won; James B. Brady, 102 [Buxton], 9 to 5, second; Hollister, 104 [McDaniel], 60 to 1, third. Time, 1:11 2-5. Dennis Stafford, King Sol, Beardall, Senator Barrett, Thermidor, Thomas Calhoun, Citizen, and Alauda ran.

Sixth race, selling, ¾ mile—Grapple, 100 pounds [Kelly], 7 to 5, won; Wes, 90 [McCahey], 6 to 1, second; Escutcheon, 90 [Conly], 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:26 1-5. Pantoufle, Flowaway, Standover, Workmaid, Chippewa, Lotus, Orphan Pet, Cloisteress, Royal Ben, Dan Buhre, and Marilla ran. Robin Hood threw rider.

MILAM STILL WINNING RACES.

Good Fortune of the Owner at the Latonia Track Surprises Even Himself.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—J. C. Milam's present run of luck is getting to be the envy of all turfmen here, and its consistency astonished even him today, when his Convolo, at 10 to 1, won the mile and a sixteenth race for a purse of $800, the best on the card.

"I had a bet on him at that price because he has been acting so well, but at that I hardly expected him to win," Milam exclaimed.

The task set Lexoline was to give the winner a year and six pounds. He was backed to do it, but was attended to by Walsh on Lady Esther cutting him off around the clubhouse turn. He made up some ground, but after covering three-quarters of a mile he retired from keen contention in a manner foreign to his usual form. Lady Esther, not regarded as a middle distance mare, ran well enough to warrant the belief she will go on. Polly Prim and Light Wool ran below form.

Louis Cella's Miss Strome won the fifth, backed from 6s to 4s. "Doc" Streett's Toboggan dumped the talent again for the third time in ten days. He pulled up lame after looking like the winner halfway up the stretch. Summaries:

First race, ¾ mile—No Quarter, 109 pounds [Pickens], 4 to 1, won; Bensonhurst, 119 [Heapy], 15 to 1, second; Airship, 119 [Boland], 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:16 2-5. Royal Bond, Jack Kercheville, Young Stevens, Clifton Forge, Avendow, Ericson, Duchess Ollie, Plaud, Mathew Gault, Sister Polly, and Corkhill ran.

Second race, 11-16 mile—Pleasant View Belle, 106 pounds [Mountain], 5 to 1, won; Esther Brown, 100 [Trueman], 20 to 1, second; Catherine F., 105 [McAllister], 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:09. Hasty Agnes, Topiofty, Mamie Gallagher, Kornelia Kinks, Divorcée, Royal Queen, Agnes Wood, Snake Mary, Donaldo, Lavatrina, and Cedar ran.

Third race, 1 1-16 miles—Convolo, 100 pounds [Pickens], 10 to 1, won; Lady Esther, 100 [Walsh], 7 to 1, second; Edwin Gum, 110 [Heidel], 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:48. Light Wool, Lexoline, and Polly Prim ran.

Fourth race, ¾ mile—Miss Padden, 107 pounds [C. Koerner], 13 to 5, won; My Queen of the Roses, 107 [Hicks], 13 to 1, second; Mark Time, 107 [Mountain], 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:16. Coon, George Young, O. Co. E., Hilgert, Elaine, Belle of Penzance, Captain Fearson, Lamalou, and Roger S. ran.

Fifth race, selling, 1 mile—Miss Strome, 102 pounds [V. Powers], 18 to 5, won; Charlatan, 108 [Mountain], 8 to 1, second; Beau Brummel, 105 [Lee], 5 to 2, third. Time, 1:41 2-5. Warner Griswell, Gold Duke, Cull, and Hazel Patch ran.

Sixth race, ⅞ mile—Arrow Swift, 100 pounds [Brandt], 7 to 1, won; Vansel, 99 [Pierratt], 7 to 1, second; Peoria, 107 [Mountain], 7 to 1, third. Time, 1:29 3-5. Bramble Lad, Belford, Tyrol, Dr. Simrall, Rexall, Mirzer, Sabado, Canada, and Captain Childs ran.

Seventh race, selling, ¾ mile—McChord, 119 pounds [Koerner], 16 to 5, won; Merrick, 124 [Brown], 6 to 1, second; Black Fox, 119 [Boland], 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:15 3-5. Kildoe, Cygnet, Rower, Potter, Toboggan, Martius, and Dr. Lee Huffman ran.

AVAUNTEER HANDICAP WINNER.

Nicoll's Horse Beats Col. Jack and Glimmer in the Feature Race at Windsor Track.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 10.—The largest crowd of the fall meeting attended the races at Windsor today. The handicap was won by M. Nicoll's Avaunteer. Col. Jack and Glimmer followed him home, while Cocksure repeated his victory of yesterday in the closing event. Summaries:

First race, 11-16 mile—Mamaroneck won; Cantless, second; Andalusia, third. Time, 1:14 3-5.

Second race, steeplechase, handicap, short course—Merry George, won; Butwell, second; Lulu Young, third. Time, 3:40.

Sixth race, 1 1-16 miles—Cocksure, won; Chalda, second; Wise Hand, third. Time, 1:55.

DRAWS LINE AT BOOKMAKERS.

Kentucky Racing Commission Decides Fred Cook's Transfer of Horse Is to Evade Its Ruling.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 10.—The state racing commission, in session today, upheld the ruling of Judge Hopper at Latonia in refusing to allow Whiskbroom to be raced, taking the position that Bookmaker Fred Cook had not leased the horse in good faith, but that it had only been transferred for the purpose of allowing Cook to get around the rule applying to bookmakers. The ruling bars bookmakers actively engaged in the betting ring from racing horses in Kentucky.

ACTION FOR THE SKAT PLAYERS.

"Free Ride" Tickets to National Congress at New York May Be Offered to Local Contestants.

"Free ride" to New York for all Chicago entrants in the next national skat congress, to be held in the spring, may add zest to the game and increase the entry lists as a result of action taken at a meeting of the National Skat league at the Sherman house last night. Because of the amount of funds in the treasury and in view of the fact that the directors of the league propose to "boom" the game, a resolution was passed providing for the chartering of a special train for all Chicago entrants to the next congress. The regular local monthly contests will begin on Nov. 1, there being six in all. They will be held at the Sherman house.

At the Billiard Halls.

At Clarke's—Hyatt [150] defeated McMillen [100], 150 to 34. Tonight, McAuley and Sager.

At the Sennet—Schaefer [300] defeated Al Taylor [248], 300 to 148. Schaefer's high run was 55.

George Sutton is practicing for his coming 18-2 balkline championship match with Jake Schaefer. His best run since preparing for the match was $25, but he has reeled off numerous three figure runs. His challenge to Schaefer for the 18-1 title, which Jake won from him last spring, has not as yet been accepted. According to the rules governing the emblem the challenged party has ten days to accept and this expires on Saturday and if Jake does not cover Sutton's forfeit he will default the emblem.

EASTERN QUARTET IN SEMI-FINALS.

Four Massachusetts Players Are Left in Women's Golf Tourney.

MISS AINSLIE IS BEATEN.

Representative of Westward Ho Loses 21 Hole Match to Miss Phipps.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Four Massachusetts golfers cornered the semi-final honors in the women's national golf tournament at Midlothian yesterday and today will battle in the penultimate round for possession of the four medals, the Robert Cox trophy, and the much coveted championship.

Miss Harriet Curtis of Essex County, the title holder, defeated Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of the Merion Cricket club of Philadelphia, a semi-finalist last year, 3 and 1. Miss Anita Phipps of Springfield, another semi-finalist last year, put out the last hope of the west, Miss Sallie Ainslie of Westward Ho, in a nerve trying contest that ended at the twenty-first hole.

Yet another semi-finalist of last year was retired when Miss M. W. Phelps of Brae Burn beat Miss Molly Adams of Wollaston, 1 up. Miss Margaret Curtis, who was one of the surviving quartets in 1900, 1901, and 1905, counted her fourth medal success by defeating Miss E. S. Porter of the Country club of Brookline, 3 and 1.

Matches for Today.

History will repeat itself this morning when Miss Harriet Curtis plays Miss Phipps, as they came together last year in the semi-final at Brae Burn, the champion winning 3 and 1. Miss Phipps qualified with 104 and has since defeated Miss F. Harvey, 3 and 1; Miss Huselton, 4 and 2, and Miss Ainslie, 1 up in twenty-one holes. Miss Curtis qualified at 96 and then beat Miss Lillian French, 2 up; Miss Margaret Martin, 4 and and 2, and Mrs. R. H. Barlow, 3 and 1.

Miss Margaret Curtis, who celebrated her twenty-fourth birthday on Wednesday, is billed to meet Miss M. W. Phelps of Brae Burn. The Essex player won the low medal score with 95 and followed with one sided wins over Miss C. L. Dering, Miss Ruth Steele, and yesterday's victory over Miss Porter. Miss Phelps, a player of the sturdy type, had 105 in the medal play round and has had the hardest row to hoe, defeating Miss F. N. Ayres, 2 up; Miss Pauline Mackay, 3 and 2, and Miss Molly Adams, undoubtedly one of the first four players in the country, 1 up. The Misses Curtis are the favorites, but two hard matches are assured.

Sad Blow for West.

It was a sad blow to the hopes of the western contingent when Miss Sallie Ainslie drove out of bounds at the twenty-first hole and lost, 6-4. She was dormie one at the eighteenth tee, and although she drove into a sand pit she recovered finely and was about twelve feet past the hole, with an apparently sure four in sight. Miss Phipps had sliced to the rough and was short of the green, but put her third three feet from the hole. Miss Ainslie putted a trifle too hard and then failed to hole the short return putt. Miss Phipps got a four and won. They halved the next hole, and at the short twentieth Miss Ainslie again missed a short putt for a three.

There was some criticism made by both western and eastern players because Miss Frances Griscom caddied for Miss Phipps. The Philadelphia player has competed in every national tournament since 1896 with the exception of the 1902 event, and is unequaled as a guide, philosopher, and friend. Her advice doubtless was of great assistance to Miss Phipps.

No Prohibitory Rule.

While there is no rule in the United States Golf association against professional or adult caddies, there seems to have been some understanding at Brae Burn last year that the contestants should rely upon their own resources, hence the criticism of yesterday.

Apart from the play, the predominating feature of the 1907 tournament will be the wind. Yesterday was the third day out of four in which the contestants have had to struggle with furious westerly breezes. Had conditions been different the chart of the tournament might have presented a different aspect.

Ainslie and Phipps.

Miss Ainslie, as usual, played a fine long game, but Miss Phipps smites with plenty of force, and was not far behind. A short putt cost the Chicagoan the first hole, but she drove the second green and squared, 3—4. They seesawed for the first nine holes. Miss Ainslie won the sixth and seventh, but a bogey five at the eighth and another five, one under bogey, at the ninth, put Miss Phipps on even terms at the ninth.

Miss Ainslie took the tenth and twelfth holes, but dropped the next. Turning with the wind on the long fourteenth, Miss Ainslie won, 5—6, two under bogey, and was 2 up. Miss Phipps responded gamely, and, after winning the fifteenth, ran down a long putt for a five on the sixteenth. Both players ran through the pit at this hole. Miss Phipps' tee shot found the water at the short seventeenth, and she lost, 7 to 4. Then came the missed putt on the home green and the extra holes. Cards:

Miss Phipps—Out..5 4 5 6 6 7 6 5 5—49
Miss Ainslie—Out..6 3 6 5 6 5 5 7 6—49
Miss Phipps—In...8 5 4 7 6 7 5 7 4—53—102
Miss Ainslie—In...5 5 3 8 5 8 6 4 5—49—98
Extra holes—Phipps, 5, 4, 4; Ainslie, 5, 4, 6.

Miss H. Curtis vs. Mrs. Barlow.

Miss Harriet Curtis took the lead from Mrs. Barlow on the first green after topping her brassey. The Philadelphia champion, who played gamely throughout, halved the next four holes, but at the next dubbed her third and then overapproached. A great 5 on the 528 yard, seventh hole, two under, bogey, where she ran down a forty foot putt, gave Mrs. Barlow the hole and she squared at the next. They divided four of the first five hole on the in journey, and then the champion took three straight and the match. Cards:

Miss H. S. Curtis—Out.6 4 6 5 5 5 7 5 5—48
Mrs. Barlow—Out.....7 4 6 5 5 7 5 4 5—48
Miss H. Curtis—In....7 6 3 8 7 6 5 3 *—
Brs. Barlow—In.......6 8 5 8 6 7 6 4 *—

Porter and M. Curtis.

There was nothing startling in the Porter-Curtis contest. Miss Curtis' long drives found the rough frequently, Miss Porter playing a straight but shorter game. Miss Curtis made the first five holes in bogey and was 2 up. Her opponent won the next two, but lost the ninth by failing to get out of the rough. Miss Porter was 1 up at the thirteenth, but after halving the fifteenth dropped three straight. Cards:

Miss M. Curtis—Out..6 4 5 5 5 8 7 7 6—53
Miss Porter—Out.....7 4 7 5 *6 6 5 6 7—53
Miss M. Curtis—In....6 5 5 8 6 6 4 4 *—
Miss Porter—In.......6 6 4 7 6 8 5 5 *—

Adams-Phelps Match.

There was little to choose in the play of Miss Adams and Miss Phelps. Under the windy conditions high class play was not looked for, but as Miss Adams had made a 93 the previous day in a strong breeze, it was thought she might come home with a low total. Miss Phelps topped her second tee shot into the bunker, and going to the third Miss Adams dubbed a short mashie pitch.

Miss Adams topped her drive for the sixth hole, but recovered through the green, Miss Phelps having to hole a seven foot putt for a half. A grandly played four, two under bogey, enabled Miss Adams to turn 1 down. Coming home both were erratic. Miss Phelps was three up at the eleventh hole and then lost three straight. Both drove finely for the home green, but Miss Adams hooked her approach pitch badly and had a long approach putt, down hill. Miss Phelps ran ten feet by and was dead on her third. Miss Adams failing on a four foot putt for a four. Cards:

Miss Phelps—Out..5 4 5 5 6 6 7 5 6—49
Miss Adams—Out..6 3 6 5 6 6 7 6 4—49
Miss Phelps—In..7 5 4 8 8 7 5 4 4—52—101
Miss Adams—In..8 6 3 7 7 8 4 4 5—52—101

Minor Events.

Miss S. Ainslie of Westward Ho won the driving contest in the afternoon after twice tieing with Mrs. C. L. Dering of Midlothian. Miss Harriet S. Curtis won the approaching and putting contest, Miss Grace Semple of St. Louis taking second place. Miss Florence Harvey of Hamilton won the obstacle putting event.

SOX PLAY ROGERS PARK TODAY.

Barnstormers Also Schedule Games for Saturday and Sunday Against the Logan Squares.

"Jiggs" Donohue's barnstorming White Sox will play the Rogers Parks at the latter's grounds this afternoon, while on Saturday and Sunday they will tackle Callahan's Logan Squares at Logan Square park. In the game this afternoon Nick Altrock will twirl for the Sox, while Fred Williams will pitch for Rogers Park. Jimmy Callahan is determined to trim the Sox in the two games at Logan Square park, and has secured Al. Demaree, the young twirler of the Lawdales to work in the Saturday game, while Walter Most will pitch on Sunday. These two youngsters have been the sensation of the local season, and either is liable to slip one over on Donohue's men. Frank Owen will twirl tomorrow's game for the ex-champions and Nick Altrock the Sunday contest.

Schwartz Wins Skating Race.

Edward Schwartz of the Riverview rink won the third semi-final in the one mile championship races being held at the Riverview rink this month. John Lacey of the Casino rink was second, the time being 2:54 4-5. This is the best time yet made at the rink by an amateur skater. Keene Palmer of the Casino rink fell in the semi-final when skating second, and was put out of the running. The first heat was won by Edward Schwartz, Richard Anderson, Riverview, second, and Keene Palmer third. Time, 2:55 1-5. In the second heat Bert Springer won out from John Lacey in 3:09 4-5; two men qualified in this heat.

Two Athletes for Lake Forest.

In addition to Bedell, the star football player of the Lake Forest academy, Lake Forest college's athletic squad has been strengthened by the enrollment of Feeney, the Ida Grove, Ia., pole vaulter who performed so sensationally at the interscholastic meet at Marshall field last spring.

Greiner Stars at Illinois.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The varsity scrimmaged with the freshmen today. Greiner, the former North Division player, started at quarter for the first year eleven, making a place kick and a drop kick on the regulars. The varsity retaliated with three touchdowns.

Game at Lake Forest Tomorrow.

Lake Forest college will play Marquette college of Milwaukee tomorrow at Lake Forest. Marquette has strengthened its team, having annexed a medical college since last year. It will bring thirty players.

HIGH SCHOOL GAMES CANCELED.

Sudden canceling of games that already had been scheduled is causing trouble again among the high school football managers, as it did last year. Englewood on Monday notified University High it could not keep its engagement for tomorrow, and yesterday Wendell Phillips informed Oak Park it could not play the latter, as advertised, tomorrow. These cancellations, it is asserted, while they may appear necessary to the schools calling off the games, work a great hardship on the other teams who have planned for the games, and efforts will be made to unite the school teams in a rule preventing such action. At Oak Park a good many tickets had been sold to the game. After a great deal of trouble Manager Overstreet last night succeeded in substituting a game with Central Y. M. C. A. Training school for tomorrow.

GRIDIRON SQUAD READY FOR FRAY.

Indiana Men Confident of Result When They Line Up Against Maroons.

BACK FIELD IS GOOD ONE.

Reported to Be Strongest That Ever Practiced on Jordan Field.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Indiana once scored in a game against Chicago, when the pride of the Midway captured the western championship, and thereafter no other eleven made a touchdown or counted a marker of any kind during that season. The man who turned the trick will captain Sheldon's team this fall. Tighe, the cleverest half back that has represented the state institution in many a season, is expected by all Hoosierdom to repeat this performance.

Tighe, Bonsib, and Cartwright compose the back field, and are reported the greatest that ever practiced on Jordan field. This aggregation, supplemented by a good pair of ends and a heavy line, should prove a dangerous combination.

Hopes of a great showing against Stagg's men were never brighter at Indiana. The line, which has been a source of worry, is getting in shape rapidly, and by the time the whistle sounds for the engagement with the "vegetarians," Sheldon is confident that the forwards will be able to stand their share of the battle.

Coach Cayou of Wabash is forcing the "Little Giants" to their limit in the hope of beating Purdue on Saturday. At present the "Boilermakers" are in the midst of a slump and Turner is switching the regulars to the scrubs, in the hope of getting more vim and aggressiveness into their work.

First for Minnesota.

Minnesota takes its first workout of the season against Ames on Saturday. This will be the first opportunity of the year to get a line on the strength of the Gophers. Williams' has been working his squad since Sept. 20 and nothing definite can be learned about last year's champions.

Princeton and West Point were the last of the football teams in the east to enter the competitive stage of football this season, and Princeton made a bigger total of points in its first game than any of the elevens in that class. The hard work the Princeton candidates have been subjected to had its effect on their playing against Stevens last Saturday. They had an opponent which did not serve to test the abilities of the team, individually or collectively, to any great extent, but the hustle and drive called for in practice was seen in last Saturday's game.

When it comes to having a game to furnish experience to the men Yale, in meeting Syracuse, has fared better than any others. That Yale was forced to do her best to beat Syracuse is by no means likely, but she had to play a good, hard game to win.

Yale has opened what should be a wonderful season. Capt. Bigelow is fortunate in possessing Tad Jones as quarter back, and in Full Back Coy he has a good athlete developed by the freshman coaches last fall. Yale has opened the season with an intimate knowledge of the forward pass and accurate use of it. The team seems to be far in advance of Harvard, whose eleven, although veteran, hardly has a promising future for the big games.

Princeton possesses good ends. Dillon is strong at quarter. But in McCormick, captain and full back, the coach has a man to rely upon as a line plunger. One may look for Princeton to give Yale another fierce battle.

Pennsylvania Has a Task.

Pennsylvania has a task in sight. Swarthmore defeated Penn last fall, and to equalize this defeat will take a struggle. Pennsylvania is reported to be holding something up its sleeve until next Saturday, when the teams will meet at Franklin field, Philadelphia.

The Carlisle Indians, an interesting team, already is giving promise of a record breaking eleven. Its score of 91 points against Susquehanna on Wednesday in 40 minutes of play, although the latter may be weak, indicates strength on the part of the redmen.

Cornell is rounding up nicely, and her back field and veteran line, so thoroughly tested last fall, may yet place the Ithaca lads among the leaders in the football lists.

Hoosiers Full of Confidence.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Indiana football team will leave here tomorrow at 11 o'clock for Chicago. Excepting Scott Haddock, one of the crack ends, who sustained a serious injury in practice last night, the squad is in shape. In a scrimmage against the freshmen Haddock had his left shoulder blade hurt. The injury probably will not keep him from at least starting in the game.

Football in the South.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Football results today at Sewanee—University of South, 38; Mississippi A. and M., 0.

AUTO CARD WELL BALANCED

Additional Entries to Tomorrow's Events Are Received.

GRATIFYING TO PROMOTERS.

Predict Best Motor Contests Seen Here Will Be the Result.

Additional entries received since the last postponement of the fall meeting of the Chicago Automobile club have rounded out what the racing board considers a brilliant card and it is predicted by Chairman Gregory that tomorrow's events at Harlem will furnish the best motoring track competitions seen in Chicago.

The entry list closed yesterday and showed each one of the six automobile events well filled, and twenty-one additional motor cycle entries, making sixty-six in all for the three races for the two wheelers. In the automobile races there are fifty-one nominations, representing twenty-nine different entrants. One of the late comers is a Stearns six cylinder, entered by G. F. Sulsberger, and it is possible that this will result in the appearance of another star driver, F. W. Leland or C. E. Schobe. Another star secured yesterday was R. W. Harroun, who has put in his "Sneezer."

Among the out of town entrants is Charles Boyden of Grand Haven, Mich., who will drive a car he built himself, a thirty horsepower machine which made a hit on the row last week because of its good looks. The entries follow:

| No. | Car. | H. P. | Driver. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Three mile free for all, cars listing at $1,500 and under: | | | |
| 10 | Stanley | 15 | Phil Johnson. |

GAMES IN BOWLING LEAGUES.

Lipmans Average 954 2-3 Against La Matildas in Monroe Tourney, Taking the Odd Contest.

Monroe league bowlers furnished the best scores of the local circuit last night, the Lipmans rolling an average of 954 2-3 against La Matildas and winning the odd game. The latter were game, however, and took the last setto.

In the other series the Brunswicks won two games from the Centurys. Other good performances of the night were an average of 207 flat by Charley Schwartz in the Southwest league, Frank Brill's first appearance as a double centurion this season with 205 2-3 in the Business Men's league. Scores:

GANS' POSITION SAME AS JEFF'S.

Only Crackajack or Foreigner Winning American Title Can Tempt Him.

DAY OF BIG PURSE OVER.

Few of Battles of Recent Years Prove Profitable to the Promoters.

BY GEORGE SILER.

When Joe Gans passed through town from Los Angeles en route east he said he had passed up the fighting game for good, but that he might be tempted to take a whirl out of Batling Nelson, if the inducements were satisfactory; also that he might be coaxed to fight any man who defeats Jimmy Burns, provided the purse offerings would warrant.

His statements were taken with a grain of salt, but since his arrival at Baltimore he has said repeatedly that ring followers would never again see him in action. Joe has licked them all, and with no fighter in sight capable of giving him an argument, and none who could command a purse worth going after, excepting, perhaps, Nelson, the colored boxer is exactly in the same position as was Jim Jeffries after he had trimmed all of the big fellows and was induced to meet that "no account," Jack Munroe.

Jim's fight with Munroe was a losing venture, as it cost him more to prepare for the battle than he received for winning. That, more than anything else, disgusted the big fellow with the game, and had everything to do with his retirement. When he declared himself down and out he said if a good man happened along, or if a foreigner won the championship of America, he would shy his castor in the ring again. The good man has not as yet happened along, nor has a foreigner grabbed off the championship, so Jeff still is on the retired list and undoubtedly will remain there.

It probably will be the same with Gans after he is out of the game as long as Jeff has been. He has enough to keep him comfortably, has a good business in Baltimore, and presumably wishes to take things easy for the remainder of his days.

Anyhow, the days of large purses seem to have passed. The Gans-Jimmy Britt fight was a losing venture for the promoters; little if any money was made on the Britt-Nelson fight and Tom McCarey cleared less than $1,000 on the Gans-Burns battle. The best paying contests in the last few years were the Nelson-Britt fight at Colma and the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield.

Al Kaufman, the young California heavyweight, and Dave Barry will clash in a six round bout at Philadelphia tonight. Should Al win with a knockout he will be boomed as the champion and will challenge Tommy Burns.

At Milwaukee tonight Charley Neary and Maurice Sayers will battle ten rounds. Both boys were defeated by Packey McFarland within the last few months and the winner probably will seek a return match with Packey.

Walgast Beats Landers.

Waukegan, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Kid Walgast of Milwaukee stopped "Irish" Landers of Waukegan in the fifth round of their eight round contest before the Cubs' Athletic club tonight. Kid Herts of Kenosha lost to W. Moorehead of Milwaukee in six rounds. Packey McFarland was referee.

GET A STRONG HOLD ON TITLE.

Boston Americans Beat the Nationals in Two Games for the Championship of the Hub.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—By winning both of two games played here today for the championship of the city, the Boston Americans have made it necessary for the Boston Nationals to win five straight games in order to deprive their rivals of the honor. The results today were 2 to 1 and 5 to 4. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Americans ........1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 *—2 4 [illegible]
Nationals ..........0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—1 7 [illegible]

Washington Gets New Pitcher.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Clarence Biersdorfer, left handed pitcher of the Dallas club, has been drafted by the Washington club.

"Cheerful" Clothing

THE trend of the time for bright, happy and attractive effects in fabrics, restrained by strict conformity to the canons of good taste has given the "R & W" productions a distinctive character which is best expressed by the words "Cheerful" Clothing.

Exclusive new fall fabrics with the "R & W" artistic tailoring, places "Cheerful" Clothing in the highest class of clothes creation.

As the "R & W" Fancy Vests have been pre-eminent for 22 years, so the "R & W" line of suits and overcoats logically commands the appreciation of good dressers everywhere.

DOLLAR GRUBBERS SCORED BY HUGHES

Money Ambition Which Knows No Law Must Be Curbed, New York Governor Says.

'EVERY MAN FOR PEOPLE.'

Self-Centered Scramble for Greater Wealth and Power Out of Date, He Declares.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 10.—Speeches by Gov. Hughes and President Schurman of Cornell university were the features today of the celebration of Empire State day at the Jamestown exposition.

Gov. Hughes' speech dealt largely with the duties of citizenship and the responsibilities of wealth.

"We must overcome the temptation to indifference as to the condition and standards of our less favored brothers in the community," he said. "The fool who said that his barns were full, and that he might take his ease, has his counterpart in those who, through material success, would erect little citadels of independent strength where they may intrench themselves in calm indifference to the needs of their less fortunate brethren. In this country no one is independent of his fellows, and the security of every man must ultimately depend on the opportunities and well being of others.

Must Curb Lawless Ambition.

"We must have a quickening of the sense of obligation and a keener recognition of the fact that union is more than a name, that it is not a union of theoretical entities, but a union of human beings—a union of lives; that for better or worse we are bound together by indissoluble bonds, and that indifference to the condition of our fellow man is indifference to the safety of the state.

"It is also of the essence of democracy that no man should construe his opportunity to mean license to exploit his fellow men and unjustly profit himself at the expense of their equal chance. The ambition which knows no law but that of selfish achievement must be bound by the inexorable demands of public service and the limits necessarily imposed for the equal protection of all citizens.

But what is most needed, in a particular sense, in the interest of good administration of government and of the welfare of the community is a stricter insistence upon fiduciary responsibility. It is an extraordinary perversion to suppose that the owner of 51 per cent of the capital stock of a corporation is free to wreak his pleasure in its management. Nothing is more reprehensible than the abuse of power on the part of those who act in a representative capacity. The cry, 'Every man for himself,' is out of date. The demand of the future will be, 'Every man for the people.' No one can be permitted to put private interest above the public advantage."

Schurman Pays Hughes Tribute.

The speech of President Schurman was principally a personal tribute to Gov. Hughes, whom he described as one of the finest exponents of New York's ability, culture, enterprise, and capacity for disinterested public service.

A public reception by Gov. Hughes and a buffet luncheon concluded the exercises. The official exposition dinner at the Swiss village followed and then came a military exhibition on the Lee parade grounds. A reception was given at the New York building from 9 to 11 o'clock tonight.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS CLOSE 38TH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Arthur I. Vorys, Manager of Secretary Taft's Presidential Campaign, Takes Prominent Part in Doings.

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the Fire Underwriters' Association of the Northwest closed its two days' sessions at the Auditorium yesterday. One of the distinguished visitors at the meeting was Arthur I. Vorys of Columbus, O., state superintendent of insurance, who is managing the presidential campaign of Secretary of War W. H. Taft. Mr. Vorys read the annual address before the meeting. Officers were elected as follows:

President—Carroll L. De Witt, Chicago.
Vice president—W. O. Chamberlain, Minneapolis.
Secretary—N. E. Briggs, Chicago.
Treasurer—W. R. Townley, Chicago.
Directors—C. A. Kelley, Terre Haute, Ind.; N. C. Rowland, Columbus, O.; A. F. Powrie, Bay City, Mich.; E. M. Hitchcock, Minneapolis; R. M. Bennett, Neal Bassett, J. G. S. Best, and R. W. Waldron, Chicago.

Addresses were made by C. T. Deatrick of Columbus, O., who advocated educating the public on insurance subjects through the agents; James W. Going of Topeka, Kas., who told of the troubles of the insurance men on account of anti-trust and other drastic laws; and Young E. Allison of Louisville, who reviewed the progress of rating along scientific lines.

FREE LECTURES NEXT WEEK.

W. M. R. French, director of the Art institute, will lecture under the auspices of the University Lecture association Monday evening at Lincoln Park Congregational church. His subject will be "The Wit and Wisdom of the Crayon: An Analogy Between Art and Literature." Other lectures announced for the week are as follows:

Tuesday evening, Prof. Richard G. Moulton, at Lincoln center, on "The Book of Isaiah: A Prophetic Miscellany."

Thursday evening, Prof. W. D. MacClintock, at Lewis institute, on "English Popular Poetry for Children: Mother Goose."

WARD DELAYS MUSEUM WORK.

Files Motion to Dismiss Cross Bill in Hope of Taking Controversy from Courts.

A second attempt to delay indefinitely the erection of the new Field museum by removing from the courts the controversy over the lake front site was made yesterday by A. Montgomery Ward.

His attorneys made a motion before Judge Dupuy to dismiss the cross bill filed by the museum officials in reply to Mr. Ward's original suit. Arguments will be heard on Wednesday.

The judge denied Mr. Ward's motion to dismiss the original bill.

SILVER JUBILEE OF PARISH.

People of St. Alphonsus Begin Celebration Sunday and Open Fair on Monday.

The German Catholic St. Alphonsus parish, Lincoln avenue and Wellington street, is preparing for a silver jubilee celebration. There will be a parade of the societies of St. Alphonsus and other parishes Sunday afternoon, and a sacred concert at the church in the evening, to be followed by a fireworks display. On Monday, Oct. 14, a fair will be opened in the schoolhouse and will last nine days.

COLONISTS' RATES TO CEASE

HOMESEEKERS MAY GET JOLT

Only SecondClass Tickets Likely to Be Sold at Cut Price.

The Transcontinental Passenger association yesterday decided to stop issuing colonists' rates to California and other points on the Pacific coast.

This action puts an end to the $33 second class one way rate during September and October, which many people have taken advantage of in going to California for the winter. It was established primarily to build up the Pacific coast. Having done this, it is contended that there is no longer any occasion for carrying passengers at approximately 1 cent a mile.

It is probable that at the special meeting of the Western Passenger association to be held today homeseekers' rates will be made good for second class passage only. Some pressure has been brought to bear to abrogate these also. It was contended that, by allowing a rate of one fare plus $2 for the round trip, the railroads were giving the state commissions an argument for 2 cent fares.

Not Worried by Vanderbilt.

The report that Cornelius Vanderbilt has been soliciting for proxies of Illinois Central stockholders apparently does not worry the present management of that road. President J. T. Harahan, who returned Wednesday night from New York, declared he knew nothing of it. When asked if Mr. Vanderbilt had been authorized to secure proxies in behalf of the management he referred to the resolution adopted by the board of directors in which Mr. Harahan and Alexander G. Hackstaff, secretary, are the officials so designated. It is generally understood that if Mr. Vanderbilt is soliciting proxies it is in the interest of the Harriman faction, with which he is allied.

The Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific roads are planning to establish magazines for their employés some time this winter. These are to be modeled much after the plan of those now issued by the Erie, the Santa Fé, and the Rock Island. The Southern Pacific some years ago established a circulating newspaper library for the benefit of track repair men and other employés in the desert regions of the southwest. This library now has 200 distributing centers, through which 4,000 newspapers, periodicals, and books are supplied every week.

Cattle Shipped by Indians.

The general officers of the St. Paul have been notified that in the week which the extension from Mobridge to Lemon, S. D., has been in operation 300 carloads of cattle have been shipped over it and 100 are waiting for shipment. Two Indians, allottees on the Standing Rock reservation, have shipped 350 head, which are excepted to bring them $15,000. Only a few months ago these Indians were drawing rations from the government.

QUARREL IN RAIL MEETING.

Stockholder in Grand Trunk of Canada Accuses Directors of "Playing with False Cards."

LONDON, Oct. 10.—A scene occurred today at the half yearly meeting of the Grand Trunk railway of Canada, when a shareholder accused the directors of "playing with false cards."

He withdrew the remark after a discussion with the president, Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, but moved a vote of want of confidence in the directors, which was overwhelmingly defeated.

President Wilson stated that if the traffic returns continued favorable there was no reason why the dividend rate on the preferred shares should not be increased.

RATE ACTION IS SUSTAINED.

Judge Pritchard Overrules Exceptions to Ruling of Master Montgomery in Asheville Case.

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 10.—Judge Pritchard in the federal court today sustained the ruling of Master Montgomery in refusing to allow the state's attorneys in the railway rate case hearing to investigate the books of the Southern railway prior to June 30, 1905. The court says the exceptions to the ruling of the standing master are without merit and are therefore overruled.

MAGILLS TO FACE DEATH DEMANDS.

Prosecution Decides to Drop All Talk of "Suicide Pact" in Trial.

JURY IS NOW COMPLETED.

Case Against the Former Clinton Banker and His Girl Bride Will Open Today.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The prosecution in the Magill case tonight decided to drop all talk of a "suicide pact" and other weaker charges and demand the death penalty for the former banker and his girl bride, Faye Graham Magill.

The state's attorneys will enter Judge Cochran's court tomorrow determined to prove that Mrs. "Pet" Magill was murdered by chloroform administered by her husband, Fred H. Magill, on the morning of June 31; that Faye Graham Magill was directly concerned in the plot to kill her husband's first wife, and that the five letters found on Mrs. "Pet" Magill's body, supposedly written by her and telling of her plan to commit suicide, were forged by Magill and Faye Graham or other confederates.

Assistant State's Attorney E. B. Mitchell of De Witt county will spare no one. He will charge murder, cold and deliberate and cruel, against the Magills. He will take up the life of Magill step by step and show how his whole character and career tended to this point in his life.

Will Dig Up Magill's Past.

He will show the former banker's selfish, spendthrift habits and his passion for women. He will show his growing disregard and negligence of his patient wife. He will show the love of Magill for Faye Graham, his "soul affinity." Mr. Mitchell will argue that every act of Fred Magill's since the death of his wife has been in conformance with the dictates of the letters, and that the letters were the fruit of the conspiracy between him and Faye Graham, and never were written by Mrs. Pet Magill.

This decision of the state's lawyers has injected a new interest in the case. People are shaking their heads tonight and wondering if the Magills will be convicted after all. Crowds filled the courtroom all day.

The Magill lawyers, however, laugh at all these fears. Former Judge G. K. Ingham, who will make the opening statement for the defense, will claim Mrs. Magill killed herself.

Judge Cochran decided tonight to go on with the case, and no delay is expected. He has recovered from his illness.

Jury Is Completed.

The jury was completed this afternoon after 160 men had been examined. All the afternoon was consumed in securing the last juror. The four men selected today were:

EDWARDS, J. H., section hand, Bluemound.
JOHNSON, J. H., molder, Decatur.
OSBORNE, W. C., carpenter, Decatur.
TUTTLE, S., laborer, Decatur.

The jury is considered an unusually good one for a murder trial.

The lawyers for the defense have insisted on men of liberal minds who would not consider it criminal to drink beer or perform certain other indiscretions. They appreciate the fact that if all that the state has hinted at is brought out in the trial persons of a strict turn of mind might receive a shock which would prejudice them against the defendants.

State's Attorney A. F. Miller, who examined the talesmen today, insisted on men who would not object to signing the death warrant on circumstantial evidence alone. The talesmen were asked whether they would consider it an evidence of guilt if neither of the defendants took the stand in their own defense. It is probable Magill will testify, but the lawyers will save Faye Magill from the ordeal if they find their case secure without her story.

The stand taken by Marguerite Magill, the daughter of the accused man, was learned positively today. The girl will go to the aid of her father and stepmother. She will tell the complete story of the relations of all the principals in the case.

"I know that mother killed herself. I will prove that both my father and stepmother are innocent," she said tonight.

The first witnesses for the state will be heard tomorrow morning, and it will be Saturday night before the state's case is in.

MITCHELL TO QUIT AS HEAD OF UNITED MINE WORKERS.

Formally Announces He Will Not Stand for Re-election—He May Submit to Another Operation.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 10.—John Mitchell, who has been president of the United Mine Workers since 1898, announces in the current issue of the United Mine Workers' Journal that he will not be a candidate for reelection as president. He says in his announcement that he does not regard himself as well enough to attend properly to the office.

Mr. Mitchell says he makes the announcement now "in order that all local unions and members thereof may be in a position to express their choice for president." All nominations must be in not later than Nov. 5. President Mitchell will finish his term, which expires April 1, 1908.

Mr. Mitchell underwent a surgical operation about six months ago, and it is said he has not fully recovered. He went to Chicago night before last, and expected to go from Chicago to La Salle, Ill., today to consult with a surgeon in regard to the advisability of another operation.

COURT GIVES WALSH FAIR SHOW

Judge Anderson Grants Continuance Until Nov. 12 So Banker Can Get New Counsel.

Judge A. B. Anderson in the United States District court yesterday denied the application of Attorneys John S. Miller and William J. Hynes for a postponement of the John R Walsh trial from Oct. 15 to some time in January. To give Mr. Walsh an opportunity, however, to obtain other counsel if necessary, the court allowed a continuance until Nov. 12.

It may now be impossible for either Mr. Miller or Mr. Hynes to conduct the banker's defense, as they have indicated other cases will occupy their attention for two months.

"I cannot put this case over until January," said Judge Anderson. "I don't see how counsel for the defendant can be in any better position then than now to go ahead with the defense of their client. However, so far as Mr. Walsh is concerned, I am disposed to give him every opportunity to obtain a fair trial and have himself properly defended. The case will be continued until Nov. 12, but not until next January."

AID FOR SOCIAL SETTLEMENT.

Performance Will Be Given at Bush Temple Theater for Benefit of Eli Bates House.

The western drama, "Drusa Wayne," will be played at Bush Temple theater next Monday evening by Adelaide Keim and the stock company for the benefit of Eli Bates settlement. The board of managers of the settlement, composed of Mrs. Fannie Powell Pardee, Mrs. James L. Rowe, Mrs. William Elliott Furness, Mrs. Fannie Howe, Mrs. Jean Packard, Mrs. Susan Whitfield, Mrs. Charles Chapin, Mrs. W. I. Candlish, Mrs. W. M. Welsh, Mrs. J. W. Roth, and Mrs. G. P Graves, will have entire charge of the affair.

Four Burned to Death.

New Holland, O., Oct. 10.—The home of Harry Mitchell was destroyed by fire yesterday. Mrs. Mitchell's aged mother and three young children were burned to death.

BIG FLAT HOUSE ON DRIVE

Apartment Building Costing Over $600,000 for Lake Shore.

NEW FREIGHT TERMINAL?

Extensive Buying Said to Indicate Move by B. & O. Road.

Lake Shore drive is to have another high grade apartment building.

It will be at the southwest corner of Elm street, in the same block with what is known as 23 Lake Shore drive, will be ten stories high, and will cost between $600,000 and $800,000.

It will front 150 feet, with a depth of 100 feet, will be of fireproof steel construction, with an attractive exterior design. Marshall & Fox are said to be the architects.

The building will be divided into apartments of fourteen and eight rooms, which will rent for $4,500 and $3,500 a year, respectively. Several of the apartments are said to be rented already. Those behind the project are said to be three or four local capitalists.

The erection of the building is said to be largely due to the financial success of 23 Lake Shore drive and to take care of the overflow inquiry for apartments in the latter.

The new building is of interest as marking another flat invasion of this exclusive residence district, and also as indicating the growing demand in Chicago for these high grade apartments.

Baltimore and Ohio Behind Buying.

It is said, on what is thought to be good authority, that the extensive buying movement south of Van Buren street between Jefferson and Desplaines streets is in the interest of a new freight terminal for the Baltimore and Ohio road. The road's present freight terminal south of Harrison street and east of Canal street along the river is said to be inadequate, and larger facilities have become necessary. The plan is said to provide for connecting with the Chicago Terminal roads' tracks just north of Sixteenth street, and to use the new terminal for freight purposes as well as yards for passenger cars.

There is also a report current that the buying is for a new freight terminal for the Burlington road, as connection can readily be made with its tracks near Sixteenth street, but the belief is that it is for the B. and O.

Rumors Again Flying.

The story has again been revived of active negotiations for property in the block between Madison and Washington streets, east of Canal street.

One report has it the Pennsylvania plans to extend its passenger terminal north from the present Union station, another is that it is for a new station for the St. Paul road, while another report is that Butler Bros. are seeking to acquire the land as an addition to their plant between Lake and Washington streets, east of Canal.

Charles A. Klotz has quitclaimed to Aaron E. Nusbaum seventy-five acres in section 10, Lyons township, for $1, subject to incumbrance of $72,500.

Do Your Meals Fit?

Do You Feel Snug and Comfortable Around Your Waist Line After a Hearty Meal?

Did your last meal taste deliciously good to you and did you eat all you wanted? Could you have patted your rotundity in glee and felt proud of your appetite and of your good, strong stomach? Do you feel rosy now because your last meal gave you no inconvenience whatever? If not, you have dyspepsia in some form, and probably never realized it.

If you have the least trouble in your stomach after eating, no matter how little or how much you eat, there is trouble brewing and you must correct it at once.

Most all stomach troubles come from poor, weak, scanty gastric juice, that precious liquid which ought to turn your food into rich, red blood.

If you have nausea your gastric juice is weak. If you have sour risings or belchings your food is fermenting; your gastric juice is weak. If you have loss of appetite your gastric juice is weak. If you have a bloaty feeling of aversion to food your gastric juice is weak.

You need something in your stomach to supply the gastric juice which is scanty and to give power to the weak gastric juice. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing.

Now think—one grain of one of the ingredients of these wonderful little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food. They are several times more powerful than the gastric juice in a good, strong, powerful stomach. They actually digest your food for you. Besides, they increase the flow of gastric juice, just what you need to get all the good possible out of everything you eat. You will never have that "lump of lead" in your stomach nor any other stomach trouble after taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then everything you eat will be digested, it will give you strength, vim, energy and a rosy disposition. You'll feel good all around your waist line after every meal and it will make you feel good all over.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will make you feel happy after eating a good, hearty meal. Take one or two after eating. You'll feel fine—then your meals will fit, no matter what or when you eat.

We want to send you a sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets free of charge so you can test them yourself and be convinced. After you have tried the sample you will be so satisfied that you will go to the nearest drug store and get a 50c box.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MINES AND MINING.

BUY BRITISH COLUMBIA AMALGAMATED COAL STOCK AT 7½C.

We believe this stock at the above price is one of the best speculations that is being offered today. While all other stocks, such as copper, gold, lead, and silver, have shown a decline the coal stocks are holding firm.

This company controls over 17,500 acres of valuable coal lands situated in the well known Nicola Valley, British Columbia.

We have only a limited number of shares left that we will sell in blocks of 500 or over at 7½ cents per share. Write for our booklet, which will give you full information.

We issue a Market Letter, which will be mailed free upon request.

STOCKS SLUMP ON SELLING

Declines Recorded After Period of Urgent Liquidation.

INDUSTRIALS IN WEAK LIST.

Foreign Exchange Market's Firmness Still a Big Factor.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Violent declines in some stocks were recorded after urgent liquidation today. Industrials particularly were weak. The feature of the market was the resistance offered by some of the favorite mediums of speculation, and which ended the day at higher prices than last night.

Those dependent on borrowed money were disconcerted by news from Washington that the assignment of treasury deposits to the banks, which has been going on for five weeks, was not being made this week. The aggressive firmness of the foreign exchange market offers little likelihood of relief for local money needs on that side.

Recuperation of the great foreign banks after the strain of the October settlements is at an unsatisfactory rate, as disclosed by yesterday's weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany and the Banks of England and France.

An incident was the heavy selling of United States Steel preferred, which carried it down to a level where the rate of dividend return is higher than on the common stock.

Bonds were heavy. Total sales, par value, $1,542,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Money on call strong, 2½@6 per cent; ruling rate, 5½; closing bid, 2½; offered at 3. Time loans firm; 60 days, 6@6½; 90 days, 6½@7; 6 months, 6. Prime mercantile paper, 7 per cent. # WHEAT TOUCHES NEW HIGH MARKS

December and May Futures Rise Sharply, but React on Heavy Realizing.

FOREIGN MARTS STRONG.

Government Report Is Construed Bullishly; Export Demand Large.

Wheat prices yesterday took long strides in their upward march, the feature of the unusually active session being the establishing of new high marks for the crop year for December and May. A big rush of buying early boosted the winter month to $1.05⅝ and the more distant future to $1.11½. Bullish sentiment prevailed strongly throughout, but there was enough realizing by longs to clip off a good part of the day's best showing. Final quotations showed advances of 1c and ⅝c for December and May respectively, and a decline of ⅛c for the meagerly traded in July.

Further upturns in the leading European markets, an expanding export demand for both wheat and flour, and fears of frost for the Argentine were foremost among the influences that frightened shorts and encouraged bulls. The coterie of big local bull leaders was credited with operating on both sides of the market, buying on the softer spots and pocketing profits on the bulges. The extent of its trading was large. Northwesterners were good early buyers here, and foreigners were reported brisk buyers of futures at Minneapolis and the seaboard.

Sharp Rise at Liverpool.

Liverpool closed at an advance of 1¼@1⅜d, messages from there indicating that traders had construed the government report bullishly, and that considerable uneasiness was aroused over the prediction of frost for the Argentine, whose exports for the week were estimated at 800,000 bu, compared to actual shipments of 536,000 bu the corresponding period last year. Paris wound up ¼@½c higher, and Budapest and Berlin stirred the trade by reporting net gains of 2c and 3@3½c respectively. Offerings in all the foreign markets were light.

Reports on export business were conflicting, but it was finally estimated that the day's workings were 1,200,000 bu, including 800,000 bu of durum. The talk that overnight offerings had been accepted at the higher prices was the basis of much of the early bullish activity in the pit. Minneapolis wired that big quantities of flour had been sold for export the last three days, with prospects bright for further important business. St. Louis and Toledo also reported large quantities of the breadstuff sold to foreigners, the latter place selling 20,000 brls at the best prices of the year.

Flour Prices Are Advanced.

Flour prices here were advanced 20c, and Minneapolis prices were lifted 20@25c. The general domestic milling demand was excellent, prices for the better grade of wheat stiffening. Local exporters claimed that every load of wheat offered overnight had been accepted at the highest prices of the crop. Big business was done in No. 2 red winter here, the increased activity in that grade strengthening bullish endeavor.

Northwestern receipts, 529 cars at Duluth and Minneapolis, exceeded those of a year ago, the gain being at Duluth. Local arrivals were 117 cars, in excess of the estimate, and total primary receipts were 945,000 bu, against 918,000 bu a year ago. Clearances at the seaboard, wheat and flour, were equal to 296,000 bu. Bulls pointed out that in September the world's available supplies showed an increase of only 2,700,000 bu, compared to a gain of 36,000,000 bu the corresponding month in 1906. Minneapolis stocks showed a decrease of 500,000 bu for five days.

Corn Gain Is Trimmed.

Corn gave a good account of itself throughout, although realizing late in the session greatly reduced the day's top gains. Business in the early hour was broad and active, commission houses executing numerous buying orders for outsiders. Some of the big longs took profits on the bulges, their action prompting similar procedure by less pretentious holders. Strength in foreign markets, much lighter receipts here than had been expected, unfavorable husking returns from Nebraska and Iowa, an improved cash call, the strength in wheat, and a bullish interpretation of the government's report formed the foundation of the bullishness. Local cars were 341, against 411 expected, the estimate for today being light at 378 cars. Total primary receipts were 624,000 bu, compared to 380,000 bu the similar day last year. Clearances at the seaboard were light at 7,000 bu. Exports from Argentina for the week were estimated at 1,800,000 bu, against 1,869,000 bu actually shipped a year ago. Final pit prices showed net advances of ⅝@½c for December, ¼c for May, and ⅛c for July. At one time gains of a cent were shown.

Oats Lose After Good Start.

After working to a still higher level for the crop year—57⅝c for May—the oats market fell into the dumps and gave a good exhibition of that tired feeling. The opening was wild and exciting, prices shooting up to sharp advances in short order. The bulge, however, called forth large quantities from scattered longs, some northwestern holders unloading freely. There was fair activity at the sample tables, prices ruling higher. Final pit quotations represented an advance of 1-16c for December, a loss of ⅛@⅜c for May, and a decline of ⅜c for July. One of the leading holders here unloaded almost 1,000,000 bu of the May. Local receipts were light at 172 cars, against 180 expected, the estimate for today being 198 cars. Total primary arrivals were 470,000 bu, compared to 741,000 bu last year. Seaboard clearances were only 50 bu.

Big Trade in Provisions.

The biggest business in weeks was transacted in the provision pit, where marked bullish endeavor was displayed. Special attention was given to the January products, which ruled strong throughout. Final quotations showed unchanged to 50c higher for pork, 5@25c stronger for lard, and 10@12½c up for ribs. Big packers and scattered small investors supported the January products, most of the offerings coming from small western packers. The general cash demand was reported good, with exporters showing more interest in lard. Western receipts of hogs were 54,500, compared to 49,500 the similar day last year. Early strength at the yards combined with the upturn in corn to stimulate bullish activity. The week's western packing was 316,000 hogs, compared to 380,000 the corresponding period last year. Estimated local arrivals of swine for today were 15,000.

Rye Prices Are Advanced.

Rye was firm, with prices about ½c higher. No. 2 free on board sold at 88½@89c; No. 3, 85½@87½c; No. 4, 83@84c; no grade, 77@78c. December sold at 90½c. Receipts were 10 cars.

Barley was 2@3c higher, new high records for this crop being made. Feed was quoted 78@80c; malting, 88c@$1.08; screenings 40@74½c. Receipts, 46 cars.

Flaxseed was 3c higher. No. 1 northwestern was quoted $1.36½; No. 1 from the northwest, $1.35; No. 1 southwestern, $1.26½. Receipts were two cars.

Timothy seed was quiet. October was quoted $4.30; March, $4.60; country lots, $3.50@4.35.

Clover seed was steady at $17.00 for contract and $10.00@16.25 for cash lots.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Many coppers made new low records for the year today. Calumet and Arizona got down to 98, North Butte touched 44, Shannon 9½, and Amalgamated 55¼. American Woolen sold at 18¾, the lowest since 1905. The market was weak all day and closed at only a slight rally. General Electric lost 4½ to 115 and Edison 6½ to 200. United Fruit was an exception, gaining ⅜ to 113⅜. New York pressed stocks of all sorts for sale all day. Call loans, 4½@5½ per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 7 per cent; time loans, collateral, 6@7 per cent; clearing house loans, 5 per cent.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

Relatively the highest prices on the crop were paid for cash wheat yesterday, sales of No. 2 red wheat being made at 1¼@1⅜c over December c. i. f. Buffalo, and some of the holders were asking 2c over December for old No. 2 red and 2⅝@3c over for new No. 2 red winter c. i. f. Buffalo. One of the leading export houses here said that all of their offers of hard winters and durums made abroad Wednesday night were accepted at the best premiums on the crop and that the demand was urgent. The price of No. 2 hard winter at the gulf was quoted 7c over Chicago December free on board steamer at the gulf, against 5c over a week or so ago. New York and Duluth reported a sharp demand for durum wheats at relatively high prices. Domestic markets were all strong. Kansas City advanced limits sharply and wired that their available supplies were about exhausted. No. 1 northern at Minneapolis was quoted 4½@5c over December and No. 2 northern was quoted about May price. Mills and elevators were active buyers. There was a sharp demand for corn in the local market at ½@⅝c higher prices, with a better foreign inquiry than for some time. A cargo was sold for export. The best demand for oats in several days was reported, and holders had no trouble in getting their prices for this cereal. Some of the shippers were not offering freely. Prices were ½@1½c higher. Local sales were 400,000 bu wheat, mostly No. 2 red, 485,000 bu corn, and 180,000 bu oats. Seaboard sales reported were 1,200,000 bu wheat and 192,000 bu corn.

Patten brokers led the buying of wheat early, but on the bulge they sold considerable wheat. The northwest was a good buyer through Daggett and Hulburd-Warren-Chandler. Barrell bought quite a little wheat. Wells and Chapin were good sellers on the advance, and towards the last of the session there was considerable realizing. Bartlett-Frazier, Roberts, and commission houses were the leading buyers of corn. Wells, Barrell, Harris-Winthrop, Wrenn, Shaffer, Comstock, and Updike sold corn on the bulge. Shearson-Hamill were the big sellers of oats. Crowd bought early. Bartlett-Frazier and Logan-Bryan bought provisions. Schultz bought January lard and Armour bought October ribs. Selling was scattered.

Superior, Wis., wired: "Canadian steamers are coming to the head of the lakes elevators for grain cargoes as the result of peculiar conditions at Port Arthur and Fort William. The Canadian crop is so backward that elevators at those terminals are shipping high grade grain back in the country to supply the demand of the mills."

Barley yesterday touched a new high point on the crop, selling at $1.08 to arrive and $1.07 for spot. Some of the local barley dealers are of the opinion that the crop figures given out by the government last year were much too high, and that no such difference in the crops last year and this as shown by government figures exists.

The following table, compiled by the Daily Trade Bulletin, shows the supplies of breadstuffs afloat for Europe and in store in Europe, America, Argentina, and Australia on the dates named:

| | Oct. 1, '07. Bu. | Oct. 1, '06. Bu. |
|---|---|---|
| Afloat for Europe | 29,290,000 | 26,960,000 |
| In store in Europe | 41,910,000 | 56,240,000 |
| In store in Argentina | 348,000 | 840,000 |
| In store in Australia | 2,500,000 | 1,400,000 |
| In store in America | 89,766,000 | 97,484,000 |
| Total | 163,814,000 | 182,924,000 |

Rates on flour from New York and Boston to London have gone up from 8c to 11c per hundred during the last two months, and from 11c to 16c from New York and Boston to Irish ports, as a result of the stiff demand for flour.

Schwabacher's estimate of local provision stocks, with comparisons, follows:

| | Estimated Oct. 10, '07. | Oct. 3, '07. |
|---|---|---|
| Pork, brls | 22,500 | 24,677 |
| Lard, tcs | 79,000 | 90,144 |
| Short ribs, lbs | 18,750,000 | 20,316,809 |

St. Louis wired: "A party in from Ohlman, Ill., says some of their corn husking out 8 bu. Last year the same man shipped 5,000 bu. He says he won't have any to ship this year."

The increase during September equaled 2,776,000 bu, compared with an increase of 5,687,000 bu during August and an increase of 36,451,000 bu during September, 1906.

A Minneapolis message to W. H. Lake said that big sales of patent flour had been made by millers and that the legitimate situation in December wheat would corner it.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, spot 1½@2½d higher, futures 1¼@1⅜d up; Paris, ¼@½c higher; Berlin, 3@3½c up; Budapest, 2c up.

The Cincinnati Price Current in its weekly review said that the bulk of the corn crop was out of danger and that wheat was progressing favorably.

Jacob F. Goergen has applied for membership on the board of trade, and O. W. Mosher has posted his membership for transfer.

New York wired: "There is a line of fine bids here for corn for export, but the exporters cannot get the corn offered to them."

George A. Le Count left Chicago yesterday for Argentina, where he will investigate crop conditions for Finley Barrell & Co.

Estimated receipts for today are: Wheat, 115 cars; corn, 378 cars; oats, 198 cars; rye, 12 cars; barley, 40 cars; hogs, 15,000.

L. W. McMasters, who has been associated with Re Qua Bros for a number of years, has gone with C. H. Canby & Co.

Charters were made for 200,000 bu wheat to Buffalo at 2c, 100,000 bu corn at 1⅝c, and 100,000 bu rye at 1⅞c.

An Antwerp cable said that drought in Russia was delaying the seeding of winter wheat.

Argentine shipments for the week were estimated at 800,000 bu wheat and 1,600,000 bu corn.

Winnipeg receipts of wheat yesterday were 234 cars, against 207 a year ago.

Some Important Stocks Show Weakness on Local Exchange.

NEW LOW RECORDS MADE.

National Biscuit Preferred Drops to 108 and Common to 70.

Important stocks on the local exchange were weak yesterday. National Biscuit preferred made a new low record, selling at 108. The common was also weak, dropping to 70. The weakness in the latter started in New York. Local commission houses do not understand why Biscuit common should sell at 70, while American Shipbuilding common, earning 14 per cent and paying 6, should sell between 56 and 57. The explanation, however, appears to be that there is a pool in Biscuit common which for nearly two years has been holding up the price with a view of unloading. The unloading process, however, never has been effected. The stock has been mostly bought for New York account.

American Can preferred was another weak issue. The price touched 45, which is the lowest recorded in many months. The insiders long since ceased to support the market, and the price has been allowed to drift. The earnings are declared by the management to be as good as last year. The stock is one, however, which sympathizes more or less with the New York quotations and New York has been both uncertain and weak.

Swift & Co. shares also suffered and were the most active on the list. The price dropped to 101, a quotation not previously recorded in a number of months. While the selling was more or less concentrated, the buying was scattered.

United Boxboard preferred was fractionally lower. There was some gossip to the effect that new competition is forming. Sears-Roebuck preferred also was weak, selling on small transactions at 87. The remainder of the list was generally steady.

Cotton Must Be Moved.

Some of the Chicago banks which have loaned money to southern banks for the purpose of moving the cotton crop have let it be understood they will not continue these loans merely to enable cotton to be held for higher prices. Current quotations for cotton are above the average, and it is the intention of the Chicago banks that the cotton shall be marketed and thus cause a return of funds to the lending banks.

Meantime southern financial institutions are finding it difficult to borrow money of their New York correspondents for the purpose of holding cotton. This creates a new situation so far as cotton is concerned, but the urgent general demand for money seems to justify the position taken by both the Chicago and the New York banks.

Possibility of Gold Exports.

There was a great deal of discussion in New York yesterday over the probability of gold exports to France. As usual, there were two opinions, but the fact that the matter was so much discussed indicates the possibility of an outward gold movement. Should there be exports the fact would serve to strengthen an already close money market.

Erie's Dividend Warrants Explained.

At the annual meeting of the Erie railroad company President Underwood made the following explanation of the issue of warrants instead of cash for dividends:

"Owing to the unsatisfactory condition of the bond market during the last year, your board has considered it inadvisable to authorize the sale of bonds which have been issued from time to time to reimburse the treasury for capital expenditures. While recognizing the claims of the preferred shareholders to a portion of the surplus income derived from the operations of the year, your board has deemed it wise to conserve the cash now in the treasury and the current income of the company to meet obligations already incurred and continue the improvements so necessary to handle the volume of traffic offered at reasonable expense, and has therefore declared dividends on the preferred shares at the customary rate, but payable at some time in the future, thus giving the company the use of the funds which cannot be secured on reasonable terms from other sources. This action of the board is sure to inure to the ultimate benefit of the property and all of its stockholders. Dividend warrants, payable ten years after their issuance, will be issued to the holders of preferred stock of record at the closing of the company's transfer books, as indicated in the announcement made of the declaration of this dividend, as soon as the necessary authority therefor can be secured."

Western Electric's Floating Debt.

According to advices from Boston, headquarters of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the floating deft of the Western Electric is substantially $15,000,000. The debt has been worked down from $24,000,000 to the amount named. The new bond issue of $15,000,000, it is asserted, will provide funds for funding the remainder of the debt whenever the condition of the bond market warrants the sale of bonds.

It is further announced that the decision to issue bonds rather than stock at this time is due in part to the desire to relieve the Telephone and Telegraph company from advancing the necessary cash to take up its proportion of new stock as the majority owner of 60 per cent of the present $15,000,000 of stock outstanding.

Equipment Business Slackens.

Joseph E. French, president of the Railway Steel Spring company, says, concerning the business of railway equipment companies:

"Practically no new business is coming in for cars, but the demand for locomotives continues as active as ever and the railroads cannot receive them too quickly. Our own business keeps up remarkably well. Since the first of this month our orders have been as good as for any month this year. However, there has been a slackening in certain departments sufficient to allow us to stop running on the double 'turn,' that is, night and day, but as we have been rushed for almost two years we welcome this opportunity to attend to machinery and effect necessary repairs. We have not paid off one man and we have business enough on hand to keep us busy during the remainder of the year.

"A great deal is being said of a break in the metal markets, but so far as we are concerned we are not able to buy steel a cent cheaper. It is our experience that the railroads are crying out for early deliveries. As to what will happen when orders now booked are overtaken, I do not of course foresee, but in my opinion the stock market speculators have gone too far in depressing the prices of certain stocks."

Dividends Declared.

The Pacific Coast company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on first preferred stock, 1½ per cent on second preferred stock, and 1½ per cent on common stock—all payable Nov. 1. Books close Oct. 17, reopen Nov. 7.

General Financial News.

Since last Friday the New York subtreasury has lost $100,000 to the banks.

Production of gold at the Rand in September is officially announced to have been 538,034 fine ounces, compared with 555,037 fine ounces in August and 505,111 ounces for September of 1906.

The board of directors of the Union Pacific Railroad company met in New York yesterday and organized by reëlecting the retiring officers. The directors of the Oregon Short line also organized by the reëlection of the retiring officers—and thus was Mr. Harriman ousted from the management of the two companies.

The decline in the price of silver is attributed by some of the large bullion dealers to the drought in India, resulting in serious damage to the wheat crop and lessening silver requirements in India.

The bond department of E. H. Rollins & Sons notes some improvement in the investment demand for bonds, but the change is not pronounced.

Union Pacific Convertibles.

The Union Pacific railroad company has made application to list on the New York stock exchange $73,762,000 twenty year first preferred convertible bonds. The listing committee is further empowered to list prior to July 1, 1908, $1,230,000 additional of said bonds on official notice that they have been sold, making the total amount to be listed $75,000,000. In the application for listing these bonds the company submitted a statement showing total assets and liabilities of $795,789,482, and a profit and loss surplus of $55,672,830.

Bank clearings in Chicago yesterday were $40,009,039, and a week ago $44,156,558.

New York exchange sold before clearings at 5c discount and after clearings at par.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Money was in quiet demand today and rates were easier. Discounts were firmer. On the stock exchange there was some anxiety as to whether the settlement would be concluded without any failures in view of the recent heavy liquidation. In the meantime business was extremely narrow, and although the continent was selling, there was less realization going on in other quarters, which, with the poor bank statement, caused further declines in British and foreign securities. The prices of Americans opened weak, but at about noon moderate covering operations raised values half a point. Later New York sent a few buying orders for Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, and Erie, which caused a firmer close. Grand Trunk improved during the afternoon, especially third preferred shares, on President Wilson's favorable remarks at the shareholders' meeting today. The Bank of England today sold £125,000 in French coin.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

|---|---|
| Total reserve, decreased | £1,497,000 |
| Circulation, decreased | 358,000 |
| Bullion, decreased | 1,855,413 |
| Other securities, decreased | 1,163,000 |
| Other deposits, increased | 1,416,000 |
| Public deposits, decreased | 1,978,000 |
| Notes, reserve, decreased | 1,361,000 |
| Government securities, increased | 1,500,000 |

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability this week is 46.51 per cent as compared with 48.86 per cent last week.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—Prices on the boerse today were weak on the New York advices.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Prices at the opening of the bourse today declined on the New York advances, but later became steady and closed at a better tone. The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes:

| | Francs. |
|---|---|

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The dry goods market was quiet at first hands today. Prices held steady. The jobbing trade was quiet, as retailers are buying for only immediate needs. The higher priced lines of men's wear are reported as well sold for spring, but the lower lines are in an unsatisfactory condition. Raw silk holds steady in the market. Large sales are reported at Yokohama.

Metals—There was a sharp decline in the London tin market with spot closing at £145, and futures at £143 10s. Locally, the market was weak and lower at $32.50@33.00. Copper closed at £62 for spot, and £61 for futures in the London market. Locally, the market was weak and still lower with lake quoted at $13.87½@14.12½. Electrolytic at $13.70@13.75, and casting at $13.37½@13.62½. Lead was 10s lower at £19 in London. Locally, the market was weak but unchanged. Spelter closed at £22 in London. Locally, the market was unchanged. Iron was higher in the English market, with standard foundry quoted 53s 6d, and Cleveland warrants at 54s 6d. Locally, the market was unchanged.

Antimony—Demand for antimony continues of moderate proportions, with European quotations steady. The local market presents an easier appearance, and quotations are a little lower. Cookson's is quoted at 10¼@11½c, Hallett's at 10¼@10⅝c, other brands at 9⅝@10c. In London Hallett's is steady at £45; ordinary brands are quoted at £43.

Butter—Steady, unchanged. Receipts, 5,897 pkgs.

Eggs—Steady, unchanged. Receipts, 5,884 cases.

Poultry—Dressed—Firm; western spring chickens, 12@18c; turkeys, 10@16c; fowls, 12@14½c.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Despite a sharp advance in swine prices early in the day, the hog market suffered a reaction towards the close and the final results showed a small decline on the whole day's trading. Cattle were generally steady, but class was lacking in practically all grades offered for sale and business was never rushing. Sheep and lambs were unchanged, but enthusiasm was lacking in this market, too, and the day had nearly passed before the run was disposed of. Receipts for the day were: Cattle, 9,000; hogs, 14,000; sheep, 24,000. The general range of prices was as follows:

Cattle.

LIVE CHICKENS ARE LOWER.

Liberal supplies of live chickens on sale with only a moderate demand were responsible for a weak market with prices ½@1c lower. The demand for butter was not quite as sharp as recently, and the tone of the market was easy, but there was no change in the range of prices. Grape receipts were light, but the demand was not as large as expected. It was claimed that the high prices were curtailing consumption to some extent. Few eastern grapes were on the market.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT IN FOWLER MACHINE

Cuts Cost of Type Setting to One-Fifth.

ORDERS BEING RAPIDLY RECEIVED

$1,300 Clear Profit On Each One Sold.

Many Investors Seizing This Unusual Opportunity.

It is not often that the public is given the opportunity to become interested in an important industrial enterprise upon the exceptional basis now offered in the Fowler Type Casting and Setting Machine.

In view of this, it is not at all remarkable that the last few days—in fact ever since the first intimation that stock might be obtained—orders have been received for shares at a rate that is most satisfactory.

Not only has the public demand for stock been all that could be desired, but in almost every instance the large number of printers, among them the foremost in the trade in this city, have left orders for the machine themselves after making a thorough examination and seeing how simple the invention is and the wonderful work it does. The complete success of the enterprise seems to be assured.

Like all other successful industrials, the profits to be realized are so large that those who secure any portion of the securities may be assured of an exceptionally high return for the amount invested. It may be safely predicted that even if there was never another printing office established and the trade never gained a dollar in importance, there will be sold no less than 100,000 of these wonderful machines. When it is stated that there is a clear profit of over $1,300 on every machine sold, the enormous returns to the stockholders of the Fowler Company will be better realized. At that rate it means a return of 40 per cent on the par value of the stock, or 160 per cent every year, at the exceptionally low price at which stock may now be obtained. The above estimates are figured upon the present plan of starting the factory with a capacity of five machines per day.

The machine, as has been stated before, casts and sets printing types such as are used for all printed matter, but instead of picking the letters from a case the operator of this machine sits at an ordinary keyboard, much like that of a typewriter, and by simply working the keys casts new letters and arranges them into words and lines. One man with this machine can do the work of five men working by hand.

The stock offers a splendid opportunity for careful investors and is now being sold at only $25 per share, par value $100.

An invitation is extended to all to call and examine the machine, and to those who cannot call a handsome descriptive book will be sent free upon addressing J. Renwick Preston, secretary National Mortgage & Bond Co., 524 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago. Mr. Preston will issue tickets of admission to the demonstration of the machine.

GROWERS OF CORN FORM ASSOCIATION

Object Is to Encourage the Improvement of Cereal by Scientific Breeding.

EXPERTS TAKE THE LEAD.

Increase in Quality and Quantity of Crops Will Bring Farmers Wealth.

The National Corn Growers' association was organized last night at the corn exposition at the Coliseum. It is expected to form the nucleus for an organization of not less than 10,000 corn growers and people interested in corn. Officers elected were as follows:

President—Eugene D. Funk, Shirley, Ill.

Secretary treasurer—J. W. Jones, Ames, Ia.

Executive committee—Prof. P. G. Holden, Iowa Agricultural college; Prof. E. G. Montgomery, state college of agriculture, Lincoln, Neb.; and the other members and vice presidents to be selected by various corn growers' associations throughout the corn growing states.

The objects of the association, as set forth in the constitution, are as follows:

To encourage the improvement of corn by breeding.

Dissemination of information regarding the best methods of soil culture and farm management for corn.

To encourage the holding of a national corn exposition annually by stimulating interest in corn culture in undeveloped territory; by unifying methods and standards of corn judging so far as possible; by the adoption of uniform classification for corn exhibits and rules governing exhibits; by encouraging the development and use of corn products, and by opening up home and foreign markets through education regarding the use of Indian corn and corn products as food for man and beast.

Clearing House for New Ideas.

The purpose is to make this association a great clearing house for the most progressive ideas concerning scientific corn culture in the several states. The promoters of the present corn exposition will be represented on the directorate.

Thousands of people who attended the exposition at the Coliseum passed before a glass case in the center of the building where the $150 prize ear from Clinton county, Iowa, was on exhibition. The ear took the prize at the exhibition last January at the state agricultural college at Ames, Ia., and it is regarded as the most perfect ear in the world. It is a Reid yellow dent sample, and represents the result of fifty years of careful seed selection. D. L. Pascal exhibits the ear, and the corn experts never grow tired of commenting on the uniformity and size of the kernels and their maximum percentage to the cob.

The $150 prize for the best thirty ears of yellow corn, open to the world, was awarded to George W. Dunseth, who has taken most of the prizes so far. H. C. Crain of Elmo, Mo., took the second prize in that class, and L. Marshall Vogler of Hope, Ind., took third prize.

Day's Meals for Six for $1.38.

Mrs. Elizabeth O. Miller, who is demonstrating corn foods at the exposition, told how a day's meals for a family of six could be provided at a cost of $1.38. The menu she presented follows:

BREAKFAST.

Cornmeal griddle cakes. Brown sugar sirup.
Brown and white bread and butter, café au lait.

DINNER.

Roast pork with baked apples. Browned potatoes.
Indian meal pudding. Bread and butter.
Tea or coffee.

SUPPER.

Broiled smoked white fish. Corn salad.
Steamed rice with prunes. Cocoa or tea.

"It would be possible to make out a menu entirely of corn," Mr. Miller continued, "but the diet of corn alone would grow monotonous, just as a diet of turkey alone would become monotonous."

Mrs. Miller has a fine, large turkey cooped up in the annex for her demonstration at 2 o'clock this afternoon. She will tell the audience how to market, how to select a turkey, how to singe it, draw it, cook, and serve it.

Prizes Awarded for Exhibits.

Among the awards made were:

Wisconsin, best ten ears yellow corn—D. A. Drew, Baraboo; J. N. Finsnes & Son, Stoughton; L. R. Kerbel, Madison.

Wisconsin, best ten ears white—Robert Lachmund, Stark City; Thomas Royston, Mazomanie; A. L. Anderson, Madison.

Wisconsin, best ten ears other than white and yellow—Clyde Akins, Warren; John Bradford, Winslow; Francis J. Slavin, Lake Geneva.

Nebraska, best ten yellow ears—Arnold Martin, Dubois; R. Hogue, Crete.

Nebraska, best ten white ears—Henry Seits, Da Sota; Arnold Martin, Dubois; Charles J. Brush, Auburn.

Nebraska, best ten ears other than yellow or white—Charles J. Brush, Auburn; Arnold Martin, Dubois; John Martens, Gretna.

PRETTY MILKMAID NO MORE. NATIONAL DAIRY FAIR SHOWS.

That Machinery Is Monarch Even in Pasture Is Proved by Exhibit at the Stockyards Exposition.

"The maiden all forlorn who milks the cow with the crumpled horn" had a rival for popular homage last night at the opening of the National Dairy show in the Amphitheater building at the stockyards. Instead of the "pretty girl milking her cow"—or the muscular farmer boy who is the American milker—the 15,000 people at the opening ceremony saw a machine doing the cow milking.

It was the first time a milking machine had been seen in operation at a public exhibition of such magnitude. Its working was watched with interest by the expert dairymen and farmers in attendance, and with feelings of amusement by the multitudes of "city folk." Exhibitions of the automatic milking will be given three times a day until the close of the show on Oct. 19.

Dairy Chief Opens Show.

Prof. Edward Webster, chief of the dairy bureau, United States department of agriculture, opened the show with a brief address. Then the parading of the several groups or classes of dairy cattle was started in the big arena of the amphitheater. The managers led off with a grand march of practically all the 600 cattle comprising the herds on exhibition. The parading was done in every instance to the accompaniment of the soft music from Señor Nabor Zasques's Mexican National Military band, fresh from the Jamestown exposition.

One of the prettiest exhibits of the show is the herd of Dutch "belted" calves. With cincture markings of spotless white on bodies otherwise ebony black, they were the most spectacular as well as the most popular exhibits even in the ring, and when they kicked up their heels in frolic they were given rounds of enthusiastic applause.

Bulls Fight; Man Hurt.

At the hour of opening the scene was enlivened by a fight between two bulls. One of the animals slightly injured John Mulligan, an aid to the herdsmen.

A lot that attracted unusual attention was the herd of thirty-seven head of Jerseys sent by Thomas W. Lawson from his farm at Scituate, Mass.

Arthur Meeker and Granger Farwell of Lake Forest are among the local dairy cattle fanciers who are well represented at the show. The famous prize winners at the show are Stockwell, which recently sold for $11,500, and Brookhill Fox, valued at about the same figure. Both are Jersey bulls.

GAMBLERS FLEE POOLROOMS; TELEPHONE WIRES SEIZED.

Evidence of Bookmaking Discovered by Police in Raids on Recently Vacated Offices.

Detectives from Assistant Chief Schuettler's office yesterday tore out more than forty telephone wires which they found in an office on the eighth floor of a building at 171 Washington street. The wires were taken from an office formerly occupied by Anthony Brockman, one of Mont Tennes' agents, who conducted a clearing house for a dozen or more downtown handbooks. Buzzer wires used by the "lookouts" to notify the inmates of the office of the arrival of the police were torn out also.

When Detective Sergeant Schubert and his assistants arrived at the office which had been occupied until Tuesday by Brockman, they found the place deserted. Several private telephones and a switchboard had been taken out. The wires were found in the walls. One of the wires was traced to the depot at Forest Park, which has been attacked twice by dynamiters.

Sergeant Schubert and other members of the gambling detail went later to the Star hotel, Van Buren street and Plymouth court, to arrest an agent of "Andy" Craig. Detectives Wernicke and Schubert climbed up a fire escape and entered the room through a window. They found nothing but a lot of telephone wires.

Our New Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats Show the Highest Perfection in the Tailoring of Men's Ready-Made Garments.

This is a fact needing no emphasis with the men of Chicago whom we have served in this Section. We wish especially to impress the superiority of our new fall and winter Clothing upon men who are now being satisfied only with the finest custom-made garments.

We have had the co-operation of many of the foremost tailoring establishments in our efforts to bring our Ready-to-Wear Clothing within the requirements of the most particular men.

The study given to proportions and sizes shows practical application of new and successful principles of measurement. In this important detail—the fitting of men of almost every proportion, the organization of this Section shows its greatest efficiency.

The possibility of certain patterns becoming commonplace is minimized in our lines. We select our fabrics from unbroken assortments submitted to us first for our approval by foremost American and European looms. Thus we have the widest possible latitude for selection. We take but a few pieces of each pattern, and our selection confines that line to us for Chicago.

Our lines are chosen and our styles determined with a keen appreciation of the likings of critical men, to whom we have proved our ability to obtain the most distinctive new patterns as well as the finest workmanship in our garments.

Youths and Boys With a Critical Eye for Distinctive New Style Features Are Favoring Our New Fall and Winter Suits in Their Selections.

The new Suits for youths show a notable degree of success in our efforts to specialize in these lines. They are proportioned by tailors who devote their entire attention to studying the clothing requirements of the period between boyhood and manhood. Young men's tastes have also been closely observed in the selection of the handsomest new brown shades and new mixtures. Particularly attractive values are offered at $16.50 and $20.00.

A new line of Boys' Norfolk Suits is marked at $8.00. Their unusual value is due to the way in which the garments have been made as well as to the wearing qualities of the materials. They are splendid suits for school boys. The sizes range from 8 to 16 years.

Boys' Russian Suits at $6.50 are made of fine qualities of blue serge, worsteds and cheviots in red, blue and brown.

The new Reefers and Overcoats in sizes from 2½ to 14 years embrace all the season's best weaves and colors in the heavier materials at many prices ranging from $7.50 to $18.00.

An Undermuslin Sale That Offers a Great Variety of Garments at $1.00

As an object lesson attesting to the wide resources and splendid facilities enjoyed by our Third Floor Muslin Underwear Section we believe the great variety offered below at the featured price is strongly convincing.

Handsome gowns in flannelette, cambric or nainsook, with either high or low neck—$1.00. The materials and trimmings are of excellent quality. We illustrate three of many equally good values:

Gown illustrated above is made of flannelette (in white only) with tucked yoke and fancy stitching. A decidedly strong value at, $1.00

Gown illustrated above, in nainsook, high neck, yoke of solid tucking, and dainty openwork embroidery insertion, lace edge on neck and sleeves, $1.00

Gown illustrated above is of nainsook slipover style, neck and sleeve finished with embroidery, beading and ribbon drawn through a bias band, $1.00

Skirt Drawers These garments are priced at about one-third the regular selling price—they are so full as to have the effect of an underskirt. Perfect fitting at the hip and finished with full embroidery or lace edged ruffle..... $1.00

Petticoats

Women's white petticoats in two styles—one has flounce of torchon lace insertion and edge and another has deep embroidery edge..... $1.00

Chemise

Women's nainsook skirt chemise, daintily finished with Val. lace and ribbon beading—full lawn flounce on skirt. An unusual value at $1.00

Women's Footwear

Correct for Street and Dress

In this diversified showing for all occasions our fall and winter models duplicate the lines of the highest grade custom made footwear at prices which are consistent with the represented qualities. We illustrate three styles that are meeting with ready favor with critical buyers.

Patent leather evening slipper, made "Empire" style, with imported rhinestone buckles (made especially for this line). The slippers also come in white, pink and blue glace kid—$7.00.

A tan Russia calf lace street boot with a brown buck top (illustrated at the left) is ten inches high and has the popular new "Napoleon" cut—$7.00.

A patent leather button boot (illustrated at the right), with black buck top and patent leather trimmings around top and up front—it also comes with gray buck top—$8.50.

Fall and winter styles are ready for women and children in the popular "Patrician" shoe—$3.50.
